Flat Freight Increase of 15 Per Cent Is Denied; Items Granted.

AID FOR WEAK ROADS BY POOL PROPOSED

I. C. C. Sets March, 1933, as Limit for Emergency; Decision Epochal.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

In an epoch-making decision rejecting the plea of the railroads for a blanket increase of 15 per cent in freight rates, the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday presented a far-reaching program for rehabilitation of railroad credit—through individual commodity increases, an emergency pooling of certain revenues and a broad plan for cooperative action to reduce operating costs.

Special increases approved will net the carriers between $100,000,000 and $125,000,000 a year in additional revenues, the commission estimated. They may not be applied, however, until the railroads submit a plan for pooling the new revenues in such manner as will assure a measure of assistance to weaker roads from the stronger. The commission allowed the roads until December 1 to perfect and submit the pooling arrangement for approval. The emergency commodity increases are authorized only until March 31, 1933.

Wage Fight Is Predicted.

The decision, in the view of railroad representatives, probably will result in early demands for a general reduction in prevailing wage scales of transportation brotherhoods.

Tentative plans looking to this end have been under consideration for several months, and the great labor organizations have been preparing with equal vigor to resist the move.

Neither labor's spokesmen nor the railway representatives, however, would discuss the probable coure of the wage controversy until opportunity had been afforded to examine the commission's ruling in detail.

On the basis of current traffic, the 15 per cent increase would have added approximately $450,000,000 a year to the railroads' freight income, but the commission found that such a blanket increase likely would increase revenues, if at all, only temporarily, "and that its ultimate effect, not very long postponed, would be to harm rather than help the railroads."

The commission also concluded that a horizontal rate adjustment "would raise the rates upon many kinds of traffic above a just and reasonable level."

Industrial Products Affected.

On the whole, the increases granted are on industrial products, while rates on agricultural products remain unchanged. In no case shall the increase be more than 10 per cent of the existing rate, it is provided.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's rate decision sanctioned increases as follows:

A flat increase of $3 per car on anthracite coal, bituminous coal, coke, iron ore, copper ore and concentrates, lead ore and concentrates, zinc ore and concentrates, gravel and sand, stone, posts, poles, pulp wood, lumber, shingles and lath, box, crate and cooperage materials, veneer and built-up wood, products of forests, not otherwise specified, furnace slag.

On the following commodities an increase of $5 per car: Phosphate rock, crude, sulphur, iron, pig, scrap iron and scrap steel, stone petroleum, asphalt, artificial stone.

Farm Products Stay Same.

On the following, an increase of 1 cent per 100 pounds: Cottonseed meal and cake, oranges and grapefruit, lemons, limes and citrus fruits, cantaloupes and melons, cabbage, onions, tomatoes, vegetables, fruits, dried or evaporated, vegetable-oil cake and meal, peanuts, products of agriculture not otherwise specified, rosin, tur-

Subpena Is Scored By Walker's Agent

Service in Mexico Is Held Illegal; Sherwood to Ignore Summons.

Mexico City, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Russell T. Sherwood, business agent for Mayor James J. Walker of New York, was served today with a subpena summoning him to appear before the Hofstadter New York City investigating committee, but he announced that he "refused to recognize the service" because he considered the action illegal.

Sherwood, who has the subpena in his possession, told the United Press that he announced when taking it he did not accept service and has no intention of being in New York October 30, as directed by the subpena.

Sidney Handler and Philip Haberman, two youthful representatives of the Hofstadter investigating committee, who had arrived here at noon after a dash from New oYrk by train and airplane, served the subpena on Sherwood in his room at the fashionable Ritz Hotel.

First Lady to Attend Edison Funeral Today

President Detained in Capital by Press of Business; Nation Prepares to Observe One Minute of Darkness Tonight as Tribute.

(Associated Press.)

A nation plunged in darkness for one minute tonight is President Hoover's suggestion for a tribute to Thomas Alva Edison, lighter of the world's lamps.

The Chief Executive will not be able to attend the funeral of the inventor. He will take part, however, in the country-wide ceremony of darkness—planned to present a living picture of more than 120,000,000 people robbed for a moment of the fruit of Edison's work.

In a statement issued yesterday at the White House, Mr. Hoover set the minute for lights out in the Nation as 7 o'clock Pacific time, 8 o'clock Mountain time, 9 o'clock Central time and 10 o'clock Eastern.

It was his understanding, the President said, that broadcasting companies will undertake during this moment of darkness a brief program of eulogy to Edison.

Mrs. Hoover will represent the White House family at services for the inventor. She will leave for West Orange, N. J., this morning on an early regular passenger train.

Up until late yesterday White House officials said the President would attend the Edison services if possible. Then it was said officially that the rush of public business, including preparations for the visit of Premier Laval of France, would make the trip impossible.

"The President greatly regrets being unable to pay a final tribute to his friend," Theodore Joslin, one of his secretaries, said.

JEALOUSY IS BLAMED IN TRUNK MURDERS

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 20 (U.P.).—A woman who answered the description of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd was taken into custody tonight after she stepped from a Western Airline plane that arrived here from the Pacific Coast.

Police said the woman resembled Mrs. Judd. She was not able to furnish credentials to identify herself positively, officers said. Authorities doubted that she was Mrs. Judd.

The plane took off from Los Angeles this morning.

A. Peterson, Amarillo hotel manager, said he personally knows Mrs. Judd, but could not say for certain whether the woman held is the murder suspect.

The woman gave her name as Mrs. J. W. Kaleb, of Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—A slight, blonde woman of 26 years, wife of a physician and daughter of a minister, was sought tonight as the perpetrator of a murder plot in which two women were killed and their bodies sent here in trunks from Phoenix, Ariz.

The quarry of squads of detectives, thrown into an all-encompassing search of the city by a crime which horrified even those accustomed to brutalities, was Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, former employe of a Phoenix medical clinic and wife of Dr. W. C. Judd, under technical arrest here.

The victims were Miss Hedvig Samuelson, 27, graduate of a North Dakota State normal school, and Mrs. Agnes Le Roi, 32, formerly of Portland, Oreg., both employes in the clinic where Mrs. Judd worked.

With every bit of evidence pointing to Mrs. Judd, police capped their accusation with a statement from her brother, B. J. McKinnell, a university student, that she had confessed the killings to him and fled from his automobile after suspicion had spread at an railroad station here, where the bodies were found.

Authorities in Phoenix, scene of the murders, swore out warrants for Mrs. Judd and a deputy prepared to fly here with the warrants.

If the evidence met the test, the Phoenix officers indicated McKinnell

Vatican City, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Don Philip Bartocetti, of Detroit, Mich., was reelected superior for United States missions today by the Congress of Benedictine Fathers.

CANNON ASKS RELIEF FROM FOREIGN DUTY

Accused Bishop's Statement Says He Will Continue His Other Church Work.

Atlanta, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, under indictment by the District of Columbia grand jury for alleged violation of the corrupt practices act, tonight asked that he be relieved "for the present" of his duties as bishop of the Brazilian and Belgian Congo conferences.

He issued a statement which he said was the only one he would make regarding his indictment and the indictment of Miss Ada L. Burroughs, which grew out of his operations in the 1928 presidential campaign against Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee. Miss Burroughs was treasurer for the anti-Smith campaign funds used by the bishop.

The Methodist prelate said he had asked that general supervision of his work in Brazil be taken over by Bishop John M. Moore and that of the Belgian Congo by Bishop Darlington.

Bishop Cannon has no other duties than those in Brazil and Belgian Congo.

He was jointly indicted with Miss Ada L. Burroughs last Friday for alleged violations of the corrupt practices act in connection with his operations in the 1928 presidential campaign against Alfred E. Smith.

Husband Slays Man in Triangle

Rocky Mount, N. C., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—D. W. Coleman, a railroad detective, returned to his home here early today and shot and killed Tom C. Chappel, 35-year-old father of three children, who was trying to escape through a rear door. Chappel died instantly.

Coleman surrendered to police, posted bond of $1,000 and then disappeared with Mrs. Coleman. So far no formal charges have been preferred. Coleman would not discuss the shooting, but police said he returned home earlier than expected, and, upon knocking at the door, heard someone go out the rear door.

Chappel, who was carrying his shoes in his hand, was wearing a high school class ring bearing Mrs. Coleman's initials.

U. S. ASKS EAST TO END WAR BY KELLOGG PACT

WASHINGTON JOINS NATIONS IN PROTEST

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The peace offensive in Manchuria continued yesterday when the United States dispatched identic notes to China and Japan, solemnly reminding them of their obligations under the provisions of the Kellogg-Briand pact.

One of the coauthors of the Pact of Paris, Monsieur Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, sitting in Geneva with the representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain and Germany, decided on this move, and cabled his suggestion to the State Department.

Previously the American representative in Geneva, who has been sitting in at all sessions of the "Big Five," Prentiss G. Gilbert, had assured M. Briand that the State Department was in hearty agreement with him.

Note Sent Promptly.

Only a few hours elapsed between the reception of the Geneva note and the cabling of the American notes to Tokyo and Nanking.

This common action of most of the important nations in the world is expected to halt effectually any further possibility of war in Manchuria. The cumulative effect of this latest peace endeavor comes at a peculiarly opportune moment, when the clashes between Japanese and Chinese troops are becoming rarer and rarer.

The Japanese Ambassador on Monday had announced that the relations of the two forces in Manchuria were distinctly encouraging. He had received no report of any engagement between the two armies for five days.

Effect of Move Seen.

The concerted action of the 50-odd nations signatory to the Kellogg-Briand pact will probably be the final gesture of the international forces for peace, who have been viewing the Manchurian crisis with growing concern for the last three weeks.

The most significant feature of all the peace interventions that have been invoked in Geneva, as well as here, is the complete absence of the League of Nations' authority.

Beyond the preliminary step which was taken while the league assembly was in session in September, the peace program has consistently been based on the Kellogg-Briand pact.

Text of Communique.

"On receipt of an official statement from M. Aristide Briand through the French Embassy, that Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Spain have sent identic notes to Japan and China calling to their attention their obligations under the pact of Paris, the American Government has also sent identic notes to these countries along the same lines."

The surprising developments of the last 24 hours, particularly with regard to the conciliatory spirit of the Japanese government, both with reference to American participation in the Geneva conversations, as well as with regard to the Chinese forces, made the action of the Kellogg-Briand signatories almost superfluous. Nevertheless, it was decided in the State Department here that since the Geneva conversations had approved unanimously the invocation of the Kellogg pact, the appeal to both parties in the dispute should be carried out.

The complete lack of league supervision in the present emergency served to revive the opinion in diplomatic

LAVAL WEIGHS PACT TO CURB AID TO ENEMY

Use of Resources of One Not to Be Allowed Against Other.

PLAN MIGHT ADMIT MANY SIGNATORIES

Premier Repeats Purpose to Seek Initial Steps to Halt World Crisis.

S. S. Ile De France, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Premier Pierre Laval, of France, is understood to be ready to propose a consultative pact between France and the United States when he talks with President Hoover in Washington, but he indicated today that if any primary accord is reached, it should prove beneficial to the world as well.

The premier, who is on his way to the United States to visit Mr. Hoover, repeated that his purpose was to improve world-wide conditions and that he hoped initial steps could be taken during his brief stay in Washington to restore confidence.

His attitude was understood to be that the United States and France, as leading countries and among the soundest financially and economically, could accomplish this by clarifying their relations and reaching an agreement on outstanding questions.

Pact Aims at Enemy Aid.

The settlement of these matters to the satisfaction of President Hoover and himself, he considers far less important in itself than in its general effect.

The "consultative pact" that has been suggested would be an agreement that in case of war involving either country, neither would permit its resources to be used against the other. The French idea is that it should be of a very definite character and possibly include other signatories, so that in case of attack on any signatory, no neutral power included in the agreement would aid the aggressor.

The premier made it clear that he was willing to meet Mr. Hoover half way on any proposals the President may make, so long as they are acceptable to the French Parliament. A promise of American cooperation, which seemed to justify to the French the reduction of expenditures on armaments would give him even wider latitude in the Washington negotiations, he indicated.

France's Welfare First.

Premier Laval has certain convictions about the welfare of his country and is prepared to meet the American viewpoint only so far as it does not conflict with these convictions.

One concerns the linking of military with financial problems. The French Government and Parliament consider that war debt reduction would mean a financial loss to France, no matter what conditions were agreed upon.

The French do not foresee any debt reduction plan which would not mean the loss of a share of the money and goods which they regard as needed to cover the expense of restoring the devastated regions.

To Oppose Debt Reduction.

As to war debts, therefore, the premier's attitude is understood to be that, as a favor to France, no proposal for a 50 per cent debt reduc-

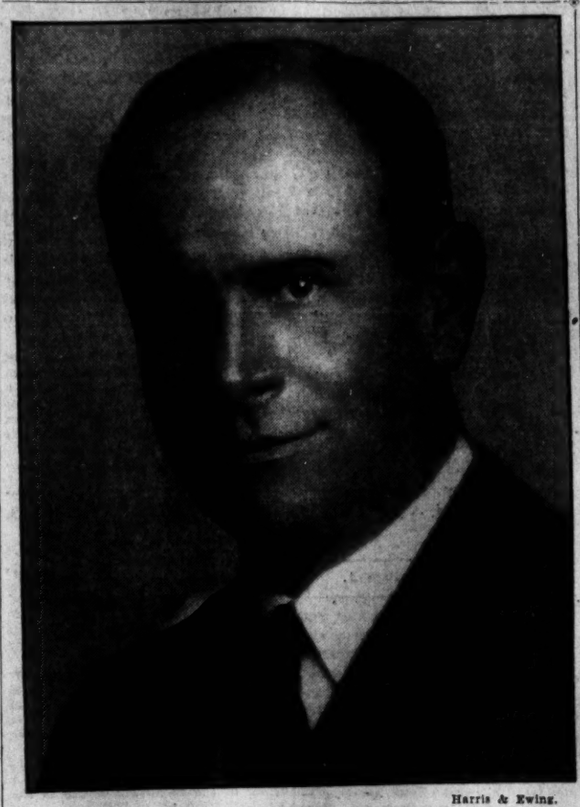
GLASSFORD TO BECOME POLICE CHIEF NOV. 16; PRATT AND SHELBY OUT



Harris & Ewing.

BRIG. GEN. PELHAM D. GLASSFORD.

Captain and Patrolman Also Recommended for Retirement.

STEP IN STOLL CASE IS EXPECTED TODAY

Several Promotions Slated as Shake-Up Is Spurred by Post's Story.

The long-predicted shake-up in the Metropolitan Police Department began yesterday with the retirement of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent, and the appointment of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, U. S. A., retired, as his successor.

Maj. Pratt's retirement becomes effective on November 1, while Gen. Glassford will not take office until November 16. In the interim Ernest W. Brown, assistant superintendent, will be acting police chief.

District officials acted with unusual rapidity yesterday after a forecast was published in The Post that Maj. Pratt and Inspector Louis J. Stoll were to be retired to forestall an inquiry by Congress. The police superintendent's retirement was rushed through the Board of Surgeons, the Police and Firemen's Retiring and Relief Board, and the District Commissioners, with all the red tape absent.

Simultaneously, the Commissioners approved retirement of Assistant Superintendent William S. Shelby and Capt. Walter Emmerson, of the Thirteenth Precinct, and Patrolman J. E. Wilson, of the Ninth Precinct, the latter two having reached the compulsory retirement age of 64 years. The retirement of Inspector Louis J. Stoll was not acted upon, but it is expected today as soon as the Board of Surgeons reports its finding to the Commissioners.

Jokes With Reporters.

Maj. Pratt, upon leaving a hearing of the retirement board, joked with reporters, but said he had no statement to make because he was still a member of the Police Department.

"You can see for yourselves, boys, that I am totally disabled," he chuckled.

Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, Police Commissioner, likewise declined to comment on the sudden change of affairs in his department. He likewise refused to say whether other retirements of police officials are in prospect. All depends, he said, upon recommendations of the Board of Surgeons.

Maj. Pratt was given a hurried physical examination yesterday morning following the report in The Post that he and Inspector Stoll were scheduled to be eased out of the department. Shortly afterward a special session of the Retirement Board was called and Dr. John A. Reed and Dr. Daniel C. Borden, of the Board of Surgeons, were questioned at length regarding their findings.

Totally Disabled.

A report then was sent to the Commissioners based entirely upon the physicians' declarations that Maj. Pratt was "totally disabled" and "unable to perform the duties of a policeman."

William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, presided as chairman of the retirement board upon request of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, chairman, but Bride signed the recommendation sent to the Commissioners.

The ailments of the police chief as cited by the retirement board were listed as coming from the board of surgeons. They are: Defective vision 20/70 uncorrected; blood pressure 155/100 on one test and 155/90 in another, with myocarditis, cardiac hypertrophy and indications of a systolic murmur. Maj. Pratt's teeth also were reported as being very defective.

"In view of this recommendation and relying on the testimony of Dr. Borden and Dr. Reed that Maj. Pratt is unable to perform any manual labor, this board recommends his retirement as totally disabled," the retirement board's report read. "In view of his service of 35 years and 8 months, the board recommends that

EMPLOYMENT GAINS DURING SEPTEMBER

Pay Roll Volume Registers Slight Increase for Last Month.

(Associated Press.)

A slight but gratifying gain in employment yesterday brought fresh encouragement to Federal relief officials as they pressed on with a Nation-wide campaign for funds to alleviate cold-weather distress.

Meanwhile, the unemployment relief organization created by President Hoover rejected the Farm Board's offer to furnish it wheat and cotton at current quotations. Such purchases, it was announced, lie outside the group's scope, although independent national and community relief organizations are free to make them.

The increase in the number of workers with jobs was reported by the Labor Department as eight-tenths of 1 per cent for September. Pay roll totals, however, decreased 2.8 per cent, a fact which the department attributed largely to a widespread observation of Labor Day without pay.

The Farm Board announced on October 3 it was prepared to authorize the grain and coton stabilization corporations to sell wheat and cotton at market prices to appropriate relief agencies. The purchases could be made for cash or on deferred payments.

"Permanent relief organizations possessing either cash or credit," a statement from the unemployment organization said yesterday, "will themselves determine whether they desire to purchase raw materials from the surplus now held by the stabili-

Lawyer and Doctor Aid Widow in Erlanger Suit

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—An Atlantic City physician and a Philadelphia attorney testified today in Mrs. Charlotte Fixel's suit to share in the estate of A. L. Erlanger, theatrical producer, as his common law wife, that they had known her as Mrs. Erlanger.

Testimony that Saul J. Baron, administrator of the Erlanger estate, introduced her as "Mrs. Erlanger" was offered by Max D. Steuer, her counsel, through Dr. Joseph C. Marshall, of Atlantic City, who attended the producer here from July 27 to September 20, 1927, and on other occasions.

BACKING GIVEN POOL ENCOURAGES HOOVER

President Is Told Midwest Favors Plan; Nye Also Adds Support.

(Associated Press.)

Brand-new assurances of favorable reaction to his $500,000,000 credit plan heartened President Hoover during the course of a crowded and busy day.

They came in the midst of presidential activities that ranged from planning a Nation-wide lightless minute in memory of Thomas A. Edison, conferences on the banking and railroad situations, reviewing the Annapolis midshipmen, and on to untangling his end of a misunderstanding with the mayor of that city. Visitors waited almost constantly before his door.

Rome C. Stephenson, of South Bend, Ind., former president of the American Bankers Association was the first to see Mr. Hoover. He told him bankers in the Midwest were pleased with his credit plan, and more money was being deposited.

Senator Nye reported also the plan would have a salutary effect in his part of the country. The North Dakota Republican said the President had given assurances he would recommend to Congress the appropriation of more capital to land banks, allowing more leniency to borrowers.

The President's day started almost before sunrise. After a night aboard the U. S. S. Arkansas, returning from Yorktown, he was ashore at Annapolis by 8 a. m. There, while cannon crashed a 21-gun salute, he walked between long lines of Naval Academy midshipmen.

Richard Dix, Film Star, Marries California Girl

Yuma, Ariz., Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Richard Dix, film star, and Miss Winifred Coe, San Francisco society girl, were married here late today.

Only 24 hours earlier Dix had said the marriage would not occur until December, but he flew here in an airplane for the ceremony. He gave his name as Ernest Carlton Brimmer, 37, in applying for a marriage license. Dix met Miss Coe five years ago at the home of his parents, he said.

Doolittle Flies to Mexico From Ottawa in 12 Hours

Mexico City, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Maj. Jimmy Doolittle, making a three-stop speed flight from Ottawa, Ontario, to Mexico City, landed at Valbuena Flying Field today after a flight of 12 hours and 24 minutes.

Doolittle averaged approximately 200 miles an hour for the flight of some 2,500 miles from Canada, to Washington, to Birmingham, Ala., to Corpus Christi, Tex., and thence to Mexico City, linking three capitals in one day.

Following the New York-to-Venezuela plane of George Pocaterra and Luke Hoover into Valbuena Field, Doolittle's racing craft flashed down from the north at a terrific clip and completed a successful flight which broke Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's record time from Washington to Mexico City.

Lindbergh flew nonstop from the United States Capital to the Mexican capital in the Spirit of St. Louis in 27 hours. Doolittle's speed plane covered the distance today in 10 hours and 15 minutes.

Doolittle, who holds the American transcontinental record of 11 hours 16 minutes, said he began the flight with a definite idea of attempting to average 200 miles an hour and unofficial figures on his flight showed that he had probably made a fraction better than his goal. It was the first time the three capitals ever had been linked between dawn and dusk and there was no record for the en-

The Washington Post Bicentennial Information and Registration Bureau

The Washington Post has established a Bicentennial Information and Registration Bureau for the benefit of visitors to Washington and residents of the Capital.

Any information desired in regard to the plans for George Washington bicentennial celebrations in Washington and throughout the country will be furnished free of charge by The Washington Post.

During 1932 various celebrations will be held in the National Capital, rendering homage on a national scale to the memory of George Washington, founder of the Nation and its Capital.

The Washington Post Information and Registration Bureau will gladly serve the needs of individuals in any part of the United States who are planning a visit to Washington next year. They are invited to apply to The Washington Post Bureau for any desired information. Upon arrival in Washington they will find at The Washington Post Bureau a convenient rendezvous for meeting their Washington friends. Registration of visitors will be published in The Post, giving temporary Washington address, thereby enabling residents of the city to locate their friends.

$50,000 Gem Theft Stirs Passengers on Laval Ship

Aboard the S. S. Ile de France, at Sea, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—A $50,000 jewel robbery with all of the trimmings of a detective novel overshadowed affairs of international politics today on board the S. S. Ile de France, which will land Premier Pierre Laval of France in New York on Thursday morning.

Mrs. R. J. Anderton, of Newport, R. I., reported the loss of her jewels to officers of the transatlantic liner, and plans immediately were made to cooperate with police in New York in an effort to capture the thief.

Mrs. Anderton told officers she had taken off the gems last night when she went to her stateroom. She placed them in an unlocked drawer of her dressing table. This morning she discovered the jewelry missing, although she had not been out of the room for more than a few minutes.

She informed the purser, and a wireless message was sent to New York police, who are expected to meet the boat in an effort to seize the thief before he can escape.

Meanwhile, Premier Laval had virtually completed his study of technical questions in preparation for his conversations with President Hoover at Washington. The Ile de France, which has been well ahead of schedule, ran into heavy weather off the Newfoundland Banks and probably will not arrive at Ambrose Light before 1 a. m. Thursday.

The premier and his party will land at 9 a. m., after being transferred to the city tug Macom, according to present plans.

RAILROAD RATE RISE BELOW EXPECTATION

Wall Street Views Increase Allowed by I. C. C. as About 4 Per Cent.

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—While Wall street had held little hope that the full 15 per cent freight rate increase requested would be granted, the limited and conditional increases suggested by the Interstate Commerce Commission were said in banking circles to appear at first glance to be smaller than generally expected.

There has been little agreement, however, as to the probable efficacy of an increase in freight rates at this time, and there has been much discussion among bankers interested in railroad financing of the possibility of wage reductions and loans from the Government.

Both railroad stocks and bonds were strong today, and there had been rumors that the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision might be announced after the close of the markets, or at least by the end of the week.

The over-the-counter market was still operating after the I. C. C. decision was announced, and bank stocks declined somewhat.

While traffic departments of the various roads declined to comment officially on the suggested increases without further study, one rate expert said that at first glance it appeared that the increase would amount to about 4 per cent, as contrasted to 15 per cent requested, and that it would "help considerably."

Wall street had looked for increases on a graduated scale for various commodities, amounting to about 7 or 8 per cent in the aggregate.

Transportation Chiefs Warned of Overdesire

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Ezra Brainerd, jr., chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, today warned the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners in convention here that in the "Desire for greater and more flexible service we must be careful not to destroy our existing transportation system."

He added "that ruthless economic laws eventually will determine" a preference for one mode of transportation or another.

EMPLOYMENT SHOWS GAIN IN SEPTEMBER

Rejection of the Farm Board's offer was recommended by the national relief organization's committee on administration of relief. It met here October 5 to consider ways and means of caring for the needy. Its findings were announced yesterday through Walter S. Gifford, whom the President placed in charge of the entire organization.

Describing the unemployment emergency as constituting "a major crisis that requires the active participation of all public and private organizations for relief," the committee held that responsibility for adequate local funds for relief is primarily a joint obligation of local public authorities and private agencies.

Avoids Breadlines.

It also urged that public breadlines, soup kitchens and public distribution of food and clothing be avoided "to preserve the independence and self-respect of the unemployed."

Another recommendation favored a unified employment system in communities, a social service exchange, qualified personnel in charge of administration of relief and an approved accounting system.

A gain in the amount of employment on State highways in September, as compared with the same month last year, was reported to Fred C. Croxton, assistant director of the President's relief organization by the American Association of State Highway Officials.

It estimated that 312,000 persons were employed in September and 33 States let contracts during the month for 2,604 miles of road costing $29,870,872.

Plan Construction Work.

He added that Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ohio already are planning construction work this winter.

The Labor Department's estimate was based on reports from 47,521 establishments in 15 major industrial groups having in September 4,707,018 employes whose combined earnings in one week totaled $104,303,613.

Five of the 15 groups reported increased employment. They were anthracite and bituminous coal mining, retail trade, canning and preserving and dyeing and cleaning. For 10 of the other groups the decrease was 1 per cent or less.

In manufacturing industries, employment decreased six-tenths of 1 per cent and pay roll totals dropped off 5.3 per cent. Per capita earnings were 4.8 per cent lower than in August. Reports from 12,266 operating establishments in 64 manufacturing industries showed an average operation of 88 per cent of full time, a drop of 1 per cent from August.

Nation Gladly to Forgive Business If It Comes Back

By JOHN J. DALY

BUSINESS, caught in the Acheronian bog and drifting down the ancient river, Acheron, into Hades—hell-bent for destruction—is about to be saved, according to a bulletin issued by the American Federation of Labor.

Expeditions from every quarter, all over the world, have been searching for business—A. W. O. L.

When found, business was flat on its back, but looking up, out of fishy eyes.

From the slough of despond, poor old business is being picked up by tender loving hands, is on the way back to the old stand, and soon there will be rejoicing and merry-making for the wanderer returned. If any one can find a fatted calf it will be killed.

Just as absinthe makes the heart beat faster, so absence makes the heart grow fonder—as all the world discovered when business went away. Strive as it will, mankind cannot get along without business. The two need each other.

SOME of the iconoclasts used to laugh at the slogans of business men, those energetic souls who had learned their lessons from that grand old authority, Smiles' Self-Help: Attention, Application, Accuracy—the Three A's.

Method, punctuality and dispatch are the principal qualities required for the efficient conduct of business.

Because not much attention was paid to it, business got discouraged and drifted away, down the river.

Business men, ceasing to complain, now broadcast the intelligence that if business comes back all will be forgiven.

'Tis the old story of love. When neglect came in at the front door business went out at the back—and got lost.

Poor old business! It has suffered much, wandering off by itself, with no loving hands to caress it and guide it and care for it.

* * * *

NOW that relief has come to the aid of business and business is helping to pick itself up out of the bog, these fellows who are supposed to attend to business will, undoubtedly, get back on the job. They will probably pay more attention to business in the future, a good thing for all concerned.

Naturally, business is a responsibility and a care. Everybody, once in a while, wants a little leisure, but after a certain amount of idleness it is good to get back to business.

Lucan, the Roman poet, nephew of Seneca, made a similar observation when business deserted Pharsalia, a district in ancient Greece. That was the time Pharsalia became For Sale.

BLANKET RAIL RAISE DENIED; POOL PROVIDED TO AID WEAK

pentine, petroleum oils, refined and all other gasolines; fuel, road and petroleum residual oils, lubricating oils and greases, petroleum products, not otherwise specified, cement, natural or Portland, brick and building tile, lime, ice, fertilizers.

The following commodities will continue to move at the old rates: Wheat, corn, oats, barley and rye, rice, flour and meal, hay and alfalfa, straw, cotton, cottonseed, fruits, potatoes, other than sweet, beans and peas, flaxseed, sugar beets, horses, mules, cattle and calves, sheep and goats, hogs, logs, ties, railroad, excelsior and sawdust.

On all other commodities the commission authorized an increase of 2 cents a hundred pounds.

Aid to Securities Seen.

This applies also to all less-than-carload consignments. An increase of 10 per cent in switching charges also is approved.

The long-awaited decision was about in line with what had been expected in the financial world. Experts in rail finance expressed the belief that the pooling arrangement, an unprecedented peace-time measure, would prove a buoyant influence in the market for rail securities.

By assuring interest charges on the obligations of even the weaker roads, this arrangement achieves, as regards some roads, far more than would have been realized from a considerably larger rate increase.

"Many difficulties," the commission noted, "will have to be met in working out the details of a plan for marshaling of the fund derived from increases authorized, and for distribution of that fund in the first instance among the carriers which fail to earn their interest charges, in proportion to their deficiencies. We are convinced these difficulties can be met."

Panic Approach Feared.

Only pressure of the war emergency in 1917 had previously dictated a pooling of railroad resources. Success of the projected plan will be determined largely by alacrity with which carriers work out practical details of its application.

"It is motivated," the Commission said, "by the thought that the distrust of railroad securities is rapidly gaining such elements of panic that a slight charge on the traffic of the industries of the country best able to stand it, may justifiably be imposed . . . for the purpose of increasing confidence and averting developments which might further disturb an already tremendously shaken financial situation, and to avoid impairment of an adequate system of transportation."

But this drastic action was suggested, the commission emphasized, as merely an emergency measure. In the long-time view, the report said, the evidence did not justify misgivings concerning the fundamental position of the railroads.

Low Earnings Held Temporary.

"The present low earnings are not the result of low rates, but reflect general industrial conditions. The earnings will continue to reflect those conditions as business improves, just as they have in the past.

"While the tide may be slow in turning, there is no more reason for thinking that business will not improve than there was in 1928 for thinking that depressions were a thing of the past and that we were in an era of permanent prosperity. Public emotion swings from one extreme to the other, and there is nothing more volatile than the emotion of the investing public. When railroad earnings take a sharp turn upward, as in due time they will, railroad credit will also rise."

The commission is not impressed with the thought that the railroads "are doomed, in anything like the near future, to go the way of the stage coach and canal."

"The railroads now furnish the backbone and most of the other vital bones of the transportation system of the country," it says, "and we believe this will be the situation for a long time to come."

The commission repeated the suggestion in its last annual report for repeal of the recapture clause of the transportation act of 1920.

Passenger Loss Cited.

"The problem presented by the varying earnings of different railroads can better be met in other ways, such as consolidations, pooling arrangements and the adjustment of (tariff) divisions," it holds.

The commission recommended that "Congress and the State Legislature should also * * * direct their attention to the proper regulation * * * of all competing forms of transportation."

It was pointed out that the passenger business of the railroads "fails by something like $450,000,000 annually to contribute its proportionate share toward taxes and return on railroad property."

"The close similarity of this figure to the amount of money which the carriers estimated they would realize from the 15 per cent increase, if no loss of traffic resulted, is striking. In other words, if the carriers were able to conduct the passenger business as profitably as the freight business they would even now, under adversity in a period of great depression, be earning enough to stabilize their credit situation. * * *

"The new competitive conditions make it necessary, also, for the railroads to cooperate more efficiently with each other and reduce the waste, both in service and in rates, which has marked their own competition," the report concludes.

Mellon to Testify In Customs Court

Body Moves Session Here So Treasury Head May Be Subpenaed.

(Associated Press.)

Because Secretary Mellon is wanted as a witness, the United States Customs Court will move from New York to Washington to hear a case tomorrow. The suit was brought by the C. G. Flynn Leather Co., of Vermont, against the Treasury as result of an order in 1922 barring importation of Canadian leather under the anti-dumping law.

The court feels the Treasury chieftain could disregard a subpena issued by it in New York, but if it transfers its jurisdiction to Washington he is bound to appear. Mellon expects to give his testimony, but the Treasury legal staff is not conceding that the court may make him testify by moving to Washington.

Treasury officials also expect to be summoned in the Russian and Austrian attacks on the antidumping order issued last year against Russian matches and this year against Austrian matches.

Commissioners Indorse Exposition.

Speaking simultaneously over two Washington radio stations, Commissioners Luther H. Reichelderfer and Herbert B. Crosby last night gave their unqualified indorsement to the seventh annual industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, which opens in the Washington Auditorium next Monday night.

MARSHAL PETAIN HAILED IN CAPITAL

Gold Medals Are Given to Pershing and Pollard as Mementos.

Marshal Henri Petain, one of France's greatest military heroes and commander of the allies at the siege of Verdun, yesterday took the City of Washington by his charm and dignity.

The gray-haired veteran who once invoked the famous battle cry, "They shall not pass!" received an ovation on the way from the Union Station to the Mayflower Hotel that this country reserves for its heroes.

As chief of the delegation sent by the French government to attend the ceremonies at the Yorktown sesquicentennial ceremonies, the marshal was received as a guest of the Nation by Gen. John J. Pershing and Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr., in the name of the President and the Secretary of State.

Suite Accompanies Him.

He had made the trip from the centennial in company with the brilliant suite, which accompanied him, members of the French aristocracy and descendants of the men who aided the colonists in their fight for independce.

The customary military honors were rendered to the marshal at the station by a detachment of crack troops from the Sixteenth Brigade, Brig. Gen. Edward T. Collins in command. Rear Admiral Henry V. Butler, of the Washington Navy Yard, represented the Secretary of the Navy.

The members of the State Department who accompanied Mr. Castle included Warren Delano Robbins, chief of the division of protocol, and Pierre de L'Boal, chief of the division of Western Europe, who served as interpreter.

The presence of the marshal in Washington marked the beginning of a period of Franco-American festivity and ceremony that has not been seen here since the war. For the first time in history, France's most brilliant soldier and her chief of state will find themselves the guests of the American Republic at the same time.

Guest of Newport.

The visit to Washington is in the nature of a rest for the distinguished soldier, who will continue his trip on Friday to Newport, where he will be the guest of the mayor of the city. The municipal authorities of Newport are taking a keen interest in the presence of the French delegation because Newport was one of the cities visited by French volunteers in the Army and Navy sent by France to the support of Washington.

The marshal made the trip from France to the United States aboard a French cruiser, the Duquesne. He dined with the members of the party last night at the French Embassy.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Marshal Henri Petain, head of the French delegation to the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration, accompanied by Gen. John J. Pershing and Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States, today visited Richmond to present to the State mementos of the Yorktown mission.

The French military leader was greeted in the Capitol rotunda by Gov. Pollard. He delivered to the governor and to Gen. Pershing gold medals struck by the French government as a souvenir of the participation of France in the celebration. The gift came as a surprise to the governor.

"This city, noted for the charm of its inhabitants, for its kindness to strangers, is all I had hoped for," Marshal Petain said in response to the governor's greeting: "This marble"—indicating the Houdon statue of Washington—"is in the very spirit of life. A replica of it is in Versailles, a gift to France of this Commonwealth.

Cincinnati Confer Membership.

Gen. Pershing, in response to the marshal's gift, said: "This is a most agreeable surprise to receive a medal from the French people brought by you. It is something I can not express in words. From the bottom of my heart I thank you, sir."

A wreath of laurel and white roses was placed on the statue of Washington by Marshal Petain.

The Society of the Cincinnati of the State of Virginia immediately afterward received the French delegation in the old hall of the House of Delegates and conferred upon Marshal Petain and Ambassador Claudel honorary membership in the society. Gen. E. E. Hume presided.

Scouting Fleet Quits Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The French cruisers Duquesne and Suffern at Yorktown during the sesquicentennial celebration, steamed into Hampton Roads today and moved alongside the docks at the Hampton Roads Naval Operating Base.

The cruisers of the scouting force, also at Yorktown, weighed anchor today and steamed directly out to sea to resume target practice on the Southern drill grounds, 50 miles off the Virginia Capes.

American Rose Society Branch Is Organized

Organization of a branch of the American Rose Society for Washington, nearby Maryland and Virginia, will be completed at a meeting tonight in the home of Dr. Whitman Cross, 101 East Kirk street, Chevy Chase, Md. The organization was started at a meeting held at Dr. Cross' home Sunday at which a committee was formed to draft by-laws and a name for the group.

The committee, consisting of Dr. Cross, chairman; Prof. David Lumsden, of Battery Park, Md.; P. F. Brandstedt, district secretary of the organization; Mrs. Fairbanks, of Washington and Mrs. Benjamin T. Elmore, of Alta Vista, Md., is expected to report at the meeting tonight. D. A. Stevens, associate editor of the American Rose Annual, addressed Sunday's meeting.

LAVAL PLANNING PACT TO BAN AID TO ENEMY

tion should be considered. His majority supporters in Parliament are understood to be emphatic on that point.

The premier indicated, however, that he is ready to consider any proposal on this subject with an open mind as well as any others which Mr. Hoover may propose.

Another conviction concerns security from invasion. Premier Laval has maintained that fortifications are a proof to the world that France seeks only defense and has not militaristic purposes.

If supplemetnary security could be acquired through the United States agreeing not to help any nation which attacked France by supplying munitions or other provisions, it was understood that France feels she could make reductions on her military budget.

Reception Plans Ready.

Definite arrangements for reception of M. Laval have practically been completed. Some changes have been made in the original program, most significant of which is the presence of the French statesman at the official dinner in honor of the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration. Marshal Henri Petain, of France, will also be present at this ceremony.

Secretary Stimson and French Ambassador Paul Claudel will leave Washington today to meet M. Laval and his official party. They will greet arrival of the liner Ile de France tomorrow morning when it comes up New York Bay and will accompany the French premier to Washington.

One of the largest corps of newspaper correspondents that ever accompanied a foreign statesman will be with the Laval party. The French newspapermen will number sixteen, including Stephane Lauzanne, of Le Matin; Georges Coulon, of the Agence Economique; Fernand de Brisson, of Information; M. Bassee, the Havas Agency; Gabriel Perreux, Paris Midi; Albert Jullian, Le Petit Parisian, and Marcel Ray, of Petit Journal.

Woman Editor in Party.

The newspaper Le Journal will have two correspondents, M. Saint Brice and Jacques de Marsillac. Others will be Andre Geraud of the Echo de Paris, M. Malet, of La Volante; Georges Schilling, of the Radio Agency; Marcel Pays, of Excelsior; George Meyer, of Era Nouvelle; Robert Tabouis, of the important provincial paper, Petite Gironda, and M. Prouvost, of Paris Soir.

The famous woman editor of L'Europe Nouvelle, Madamoiselle Louise Weiss, and Madamoiselle Guimier, daughter of one of the directors of the Havas Agency, will also be in the party.

Full program of the Laval visit follows:

The Thursday program of the Laval party provides for it to be met by the mayor's committee at quarantine on the Macom and go to the Battery, where the Secretary of State, the French Ambassador, the French Counselor of Embassy, the chief of protocol, Warren D. Robbins, and the chief of the Division of Western European Affairs, Pierre Boal, will meet it.

The party will then be escorted to the City Hall where an official reception will be given by the Mayor of New York. At 11 o'clock the party will leave the Pennsylvania Station for Washington.

Honors to Mark Arrival.

At 3:15 p. m., the party will arrive at Union Station, Washington, where it will be received by William R. Castle, jr., Undersecretary of State, accompanied by Mr. Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President; Lieut. Col. Campbell B. Hodges, military aid to the President, and Capt. Charles R. Train, naval aid to the President; the Assistant Secretaries of State, Wilbur J. Carr, Francis White, James G. Rogers and H. H. Bundy; Brig. Gen. Edward T. Collins, commanding general Sixteenth Brigadg, and by the French Embassy staff.

M. Laval will be received with the customary military honors.

At 3:45 o'clock M. Laval and his party will arrive at the house of Ambassador Edge, 1526 Eighteenth street northwest.

At 6:00 o'clock the President and Mrs. Hoover will receive M. Laval, accompanied by the French Ambassador, at the White House.

At 8:00 o'clock M. Laval will attend the official dinner in honor of guests of the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration.

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—An attempt to broadcast a message to the United States from Premier Laval of France and his daughter, Jose, aboard the liner Ile de France will be made by the National Broadcasting Co. tomorrow between 11 and 11:30 p. m. M. Laval will speak in French and his daughter in English, to which the premier's words will be translated.

NAVAL SLASH PLAN RAPPED BY BRITTEN

House Committee Chairman Tells D. A. R. Hospital Is Fire Trap.

Discontinuance of he Navy Band unit here and indefinite postponement of the new Naval Hospital project proposed in President Hoover's $61,000,000 naval economy plan were sharply attacked last night by Representative Fred Britten (Republican), Illinois, chairman of the House naval affairs committee, who said he would vigorously fight any such move if it reached the legislative scene.

Speaking before the State regents of the D. A. R., who compose the finance committee of Constitution Hall, the naval affairs chairman also criticized numerous other features of the Chief Executive's plan.

With regard to the Naval Hospital project, Britten termed the present structure here a "fire trap." He pointed out that $100,000 had already been appropriated for plans and specifications for the new hospital and that $3,000,000 had been authorized but not appropriated. He argued that a small saving would be effected by scrapping the Navy Band. All of its members are enlisted men in the Navy, he said, and would be necessarily kept on the Navy's pay roll.

Homer Daughters In Joint Program

Louise Homer Stires and Katherine Are Given Fine Reception.

Louise Homer Stires, soprano and Katherine Homer, pianist, daughters of Mme. Louise Homer, the noted vocal star, were heard in a joint program at Central High School Auditorium last night under the auspices of the Community Institute.

Mrs. Stires displayed vocal prowess on her own account besides her inherited gift for music. Her voice is a very sweet true organ admirably adapted to the German lieder and ballads which composed the bulk of her share of last night's program. In her two operatic numbers an aria from "Madame Butterfly" and another one from "Linda di Chamounix" by Donizette the finer qualities of her voice had a chance to be exhibited.

Miss Katherine Homer who acted as her sister's accompanist as well as a soloist although still quite young, is a real musician. Her singing tone was worthy of the great musical name she has inherited. Bach, Schumann and Brahms were among the composers she interpreted successfully.

Lantern Festival At School Tonight

Four Organizations to Take Part at Festival in Central High.

The Greek Community, Neighborhood House, Lido Civic Club and the Americanization School Association will participate in the Lantern Festival tonight at 8 o'clock at the Central High School Auditorium.

The music judges for the event will be Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs, Mrs. Lillian Brousseau, of the Public School music department and Isaac Gans.

The judges of picturesque costumes and theatrical effec- will be Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, Gideon A. Lyon and Robert Cottrell. Edwin C. Graham, of the Community Center Council, will announce the winners of the awards which will be in the form of silver cups.

WOUNDED MAN HELD AS CHICKEN ROBBER

Suspect, Once Questioned in Triple Fire Deaths, Is Jailed in Manassas.

His back marked by 60 to 70 slight shotgun wounds, Walter Woolfenden, 45-year-old Prince William County farmer, yesterday was lodged in jail at Manassas, Va., on a charge of chicken theft. The man was once questioned in the mysterious deaths of Goodwin Miller, his wife and child, whose charred bodies were found in the ruins of their burned home near Kopp, Va., and residents of the section regarded his arrest as a new move in the Miller case.

Wolfenden was arrested by Sheriff John P. Kerlin when he was unable to explain satisfactorily how he received his wounds. J. M. Shelton, a neighbor of Wolfenden, living near Woodbridge, reported he had shot a man early Friday morning when he discovered him in his hen house.

Woolfenden said he had shot himself accidentally while fox hunting, but Sheriff Kerlin declared the wounds were too slight to have been received in this manner. He also checked Woolfenden's story, Sheriff Kerlin said, and found discrepancies in the tale of his movements on Thursday night and Friday morning. A preliminary hearing will be held October 27.

Prince William County authorities were believed to be working on a new theory last night in the Miller case. There have been a number of chicken thefts in that section of the county recently, and Miller is known to have kept and sold a number of chickens. While not discarding the theory that he and his family were slain as result of a rum feud, authorities were investigating on the theory that he may have quarreled with some one over his chickens.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 81

IN "the grand old days" before jazz, this orchestra pleased the more refined ears of musical Washington. Emil Christiani, with the violin, was the leader.

Mr. Christiani's son, C. E. Christiani, is head of the Washington Institute of Musical Art today. The former was leader of the German Men's Choir for 30 years and was organist at one of the Lutheran churches for a long while. He was killed in a traffic accident in 1920.

circles that the Kellogg-Briand pact will henceforward be the chief protagonist for peace in all future international misunderstandings.

No attempt was made by the league proper to invoke any of the peace-making machinery provided for in the league covenant. The delegates to the special emergency meeting of the league council voted to seat an American to take part in league discussions for peace in Manchuria, which discussions were never held.

All the discussions revolved around the Kellogg-Briand pact. Nevertheless, it was admitted that the league has been carrying on, in its own special way, its endeavors for peace. These endeavors have, however, played a very secondary role to the Kellogg-Briand arrangements.

Free State Opens War On "Republican Army"

Dublin, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The Free State government initiated a strong-arm regime under the new public safety act today by declaring illegal membership in the "Irish Republican Army" or other republican organizations.

A military tribunal was formed to try offenses against the act. Trials may be secret, and penalties which may be inflicted include flogging and death. The situation was quiet throughout the country and extremists appeared to be impressed by warnings from the government and the Catholic hierarchy.

U. S. Gold Money Stock Is Reduced $9,065,000

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The outpouring of monetary gold stocks from the United States increased today after the smaller loss reported yesterday.

A net loss of $9,065,000 was shown in today's statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. This included an increase of $7,900,000 in gold earmarked for foreign account and exports of $1,165,000. The exports consisted of $645,000 to France, $415,000 to Switzerland, $100,000 to Holland and $5,000 to Belgium. There were no imports.

LEAGUE MARKS TIME; WAITS JAPAN WORD

Council's Outlook Gloomy as Nipponese Strengthen Manchurian Position.

Geneva, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The next move in the negotiations to bring peace between Japan and China in Manchuria was up to the Japanese tonight.

The Council of the League of Nations awaited word from the Japanese government on Aristide Briand's flexible peace proposals, submitted in behalf of the council to Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japan's representative, and transmitted by him to Tokyo.

While the peace efforts of the council marked time, reports came from China that the Japanese troops were involved in "feverish activity" for the purpose of consolidating their positions in Manchuria. These reports, together with the lack of progress in the conciliation negotiations, fathered considerable pessimism in Geneva.

The Briand peace suggestions were not explained officially, but those in contact with the council's private sessions said they involved three points.

These were: Steady withdrawal of Japanese troops to the railway zone; simultaneous replacement of each soldier withdrawn by two or more Chinese soldiers to insure the security of Japanese lives and property; "observation" of this process by a neutral commission of military experts or civilians representing the League of Nations.

It was understood that Prentiss B. Gilbert, the American representative, had no discussions with members of the council during the day. The impression gained in official quarters was that the deadlock between Japan and the council remained unsolved, and that the situation continued to be most grave.

JAPAN'S POSITION SEEMS STRONGER

China Fails to Persuade French and British to Send Troops.

Tokyo, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—The position of Japan in conflict with China over Manchuria appeared tonight to have been strengthened by a series of rapid developments in China and at Geneva.

The developments were:

1. Government advices from Geneva that China had failed in an effort to persuade France and Great Britain to send troops into Manchuria.

2. Consular advices that a prominent leader of the rebel Canton government would become foreign minister of China, indicating a settlement of the internal disputes in China, and that direct negotiations with Japan would be undertaken in such an event.

3. Government advices from Manchuria that provisional governments favorable to Japan and hostile to Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian ruler and ally of China, were being established in Manchurian cities.

The government awaited official Chinese confirmation of a message from the Japanese consul at Canton, who said Eugene Chen, foreign minister of the Canton government, had announced he was succeeding C. T. Wang as foreign minister of the Chinese national government at Nanking. Chen told the Japanese consul he was prepared to open direct negotiations with Japan for settlement of the Manchurian conflict, as demanded by Japan but persistently refused by China.

Establishment of provisional governments in Manchuria, all favorable to Japan and many of them directed by Japanese advisors, was reported to the government.

FORD AND FIRESTONE REACH EDISON HOME

Two Cronies of Inventor Go to Library Where Body of Comrade Lies.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The last caravan is organized—Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, Thomas A. Edison—and it will travel tomorrow to Mr. Edison's grave.

The two cronies of the famous inventor, who with him formed a triumvirate of travel and companionship, which became a symbol over the world—arrived late today at the bier of Mr. Edison.

They, with the First Lady of the Land, will be among the close friends to join the family in a private funeral service at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. President Hoover will be unable to attend because of the press of public business in Washington, but Mrs. Hoover will leave for West Orange tomorrow on a regular morning passenger train.

Go to Library.

Accompanied by Mrs. Edison, Mr. Ford and Mr. Firestone went to the library of the laboratory where the inventor's body lay in a bronze coffin. The long line of men and women, running into thousands during the last two days, was halted while the party entered the building.

Mr. Ford did not enter the room.

"You remember the last time I saw him (Edison) in the library—how we talked together—well, I wanted that as a lasting memory," he was quoted as telling Charles Edison, the inventor's son.

His reference apparently was to his visit at the Edison estate July 24 and 25, only a week before Mr. Edison collapsed.

Funeral Will Be Simple.

Sheltered from the public, who looked for the last time on Mr. Edison's face tonight, relatives and friends will bow in a simple ritual tomorrow at Glenmont, the Edison home. After a service conducted by the Rev. Stephen J. Herden, a friend of Mr. Edison and former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Orange, the bronze coffin then will be borne to Rosedale Cemetery at Orange for burial.

By a coincidence the funeral will be on the fifty-second anniversary of Mr. Edison's perfection of the incandescent lamp.

A wreath of oak leaves on the coffin was replaced by an American flag, laid there by members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars in appreciation of Mr Edison.n's contributions to national defense.

Mrs. Edison stood silently by, visibly impressed. Several representatives of the World War Naval Consulting Board, which Mr. Edison headed, also visited the bier in a group, as did a number of Edison pioneers, men who worked for the inventor years ago.

Schools in Argentina To Teach Edison's Life

Buenos Aires, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The story of Thomas A. Edison's life will be taught to school children of Argentina, in accordance with a special order from the national council of education.

So closely incorporated with Argentina's life are Mr. Edison's inventions that the electric light company rejected as technically impractical a proposal to suspend service for a moment as a memorial to his death. Instead, a lamp post recently erected in the Plaza Congreso in his honor was draped in mourning.

Travis Reported Found On Beach of Mexico

Mexico City, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Capt. C. K. Travis and two companions, who have been missing for 24 hours on a short flight, were reported today to have been sighted on a beach midway between San Jeronimo and Tapachula.

A Pan-American plane engaged in the search sent word here that it did not know whether the three men were injured or not.

Capone's Florida Mansion To Be Attached for Taxes

Officials, Elated by Conviction, Order Liens on All Known Property for Amount Due, Which May Run More Than $1,000,000.

(Associated Press.)

The tax-thirsty Government has decided to plaster a new decoration on Al Capone's mansion-hangout in Florida, but it won't be elegant or anything to brag about to the gang.

It's called a lien. Only a flimsy bit of paper, perhaps, but with the big words thereon signifying that back of it is the might of a government determined to force Chicago's notorious gangster to pay.

This latest strategem in the drive to crush Capone and his ilk means simply that the Government is out to attach every bit of his property it can find, from the estate in the South to the gaudiest necktie in the wardrobe he sports in the North.

The reason: To satisfy those back income taxes he stands convicted of evading.

It may be asked why would liens be placed on tremendous amounts of property, when $215,000 would satisfy the tax claim placed against the spendthrift gang director. The answer is that the amount already set as due may be increased to $1,000,000 and more.

Revenue experts for the Government esimated today Capone would owe more than a million by the time the amounts of which they say he sought to defraud the Treasury and penalties have been calculated.

Even as this information was given, the command went forth to internal revenue collectors at Chicago and Jacksonville to go ahead with the liens.

Decision for action in the civil courts was reached by officials elated by the triumph over Capone in Criminal Court at Chicago. He probably will be sentenced in Chicago late this week on the tax-evasion conviction. The maximum to which he is liable is seventeen years imprisonment and $50,000 fine.

Much legal fencing is expected, however, before the underworld boss goes to a cell. Legal experts have said that by having the case appealed to higher courts he could stay free as long as two years, even if the guilty verdict is sustained.

This sort of delay has worked in the past for the gangsters and is working now in the case of Al Capone's brother, Ralph. Only today the latter asked the Supreme Court to invalidate his conviction for false representation and concealment of income in connection with Federal tax payments.

If this is refused, he at last will have to start the four years' imprisonment and pay the $20,000 fine to which he was sentenced early in 1930. The charge against him was failing to pay $10,000 income tax between 1922 and 1925. Among his contentions to the Supreme Court is that the statute of limitations precluded his prosecution.

The liens on Al Capone's property will not interfere with his occupancy of the Florida place this winter unless the court orders the property forfeited to the Government. Internal Revenue Bureau officials said they had no intention of interfering with any trip South by the gangster, but added they had some suspicion that the Chicago jurist who sentences him Friday might have other ideas as to the best place for Al to spend the winter.

The filing of liens is the usual procedure in cases where a person has been convicted of evading income taxes. It is expected that considerable time will be required for final court determination of the civil action.

Just how much property Capone actually owns has not been determined. Officials expressed the belief his recent trials and other expenses have caused it to dwindle to small proportions as compared to what they believe he held at what they termed the height of his underworld prominence.

MRS. HOOVER TO GO TO EDISON FUNERAL

Ford and Firestone went immediately to the Edison estate upon their arrival. It was stated that later in the evening they probably would visit the library of the Edison laboratory, where the body of the aged inventor now lies in state.

stedt, of Annapolis. Irked at the President's failure to greet him Saturday while going to Yorktown, the mayor asked by letter for an explanation and absented himself yesterday.

Following Mr. Hoover's return to the White House, it was explained that no slight to Quenstedt was intended. The President thought, it was said, that the mayor would be on the Naval Academy dock instead of at the edge of the city, the affair was termed merely a misunderstanding. Quenstedt was quoted in Annapolis as saying: "It must have been quite a misunderstanding."

Throughout the President's day there occurred almost in quick succession a meeting with his Cabinet, reported as discussing mostly routine matters, a greeting to Lord Cornwallis, and a conference with Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Two Women Are Killed In Auto-Train Crash

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Two young women were killed today at a railway crossing near Derita, Necklenburg County, when a Southern Railway passenger train struck their car and hurled it 60 feet.

They were identified as Miss Ethel Christenbury, 24, daughter of Nard Christenbury, a farmer, and Mrs. Mildred Vance, of Huntersville.

CHICAGO BEER KING IS FOUND OPERATING

Quiz Into Assets of Bank Reveals Property of Terry Druggan.

Chicago, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—A search for hidden assets of one of Chicago's closed banks brought out the statement today that Terry Druggan, the supposedly inactive "beer baron," still owns at least three breweries and is operating one upon which the Government has a tax lien.

Andrew H. Dressel, who was president of the West Central Savings Bank when that institution was closed last January, was being questioned by Circuit Judge Michael J. Fineberg. He said the bank had made unsecured loans of $16,000 to Druggan and that he had personally loaned the gangster $12,000 with a three-story apartment house put up for security.

"As far as the bank's loans go," he told the Court, "they are amply secured and these notes can be taken up any day. Druggan has plenty of good assets."

"Fine," said Judge Fineberg. "That's just what we want to know."

"He had the Standard Brewery at Campbell avenue and West Roosevelt road, Stege's Brewery at South Ashland avenue and Fifteenth street, the Gambrinius Brewery at Albany and Fillmore streets, and the Mutual Brewery," said Dressel.

"Is Druggan in any business now?"

"Sure," replied the former bank president. "He's still operating the Mutual Brewery."

The Court asked how Druggan could operate the brewery when the Federal Government has a lien against it because of the gangster's unpaid income taxes. Dressel said, "I don't know."

Quenstedt Awaits Reply of Hoover

Quite a Misunderstanding, Mayor Says, Concerning Official Greeting.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, when informed that the White House today had explained President Hoover's failure to greet him last Saturday was a misunderstanding, said: "It must have been quite a misunderstanding."

Further than to reiterate that he had made arrangements for the official reception at a point on the Defense highway at the Annapolis city limits with an official of the secret service, he declined to comment until he had received President Hoover's letter of explanation.

Mayor Quenstedt did say, however, that in line with arrangements for the reception he was called from the White House on Saturday and informed of the time the presidential party left Washington so that he could reach the designated place of meeting.

Three Men Seized In Maryland Raids

Trio Is Accused of Making and Possessing Liquor; Fourth Is Held.

Three men were arrested yesterday by Federal dry agents after two raids in Southern Maryland, and a fourth man was held for the Federal court in Baltimore after a hearing on a liquor charge before U. S. Commissioner J. Frank Parran, in Marlboro.

Mark Stonestreet and Ralph Pilkerton, both of Newport, Md., were captured when agents raided an alleged still near the men's home. They were charged with manufacture, possession and possession of articles for manufacture. An alleged still of 150 gallons capacity and 600 gallons of mash were also found, the agents said.

Lewis Morgan was arrested in a raid near Leonardtown, when the agents found him near about 100 gallons of mash. They found no still, however. Morgan was charged with manufacture and possession of liquor.

Herman Thiele, arrested after a still on his farm near Davidsonville exploded and killed a colored man, was held in bond of $500 for trial in Baltimore. He is charged with manufacture, possession and possession of articles for manufacture.

FORMER STAGE GIRL HEARD IN BALM SUIT

Betty Randolph Testifies She Promised to Marry Pastor-Plaintiff.

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Betty Randolph peeped out of her furs on the witness stand today and murmured to the court the workings of her thrice-won-heart—and why it failed to throb in the case of Bartholomew J. Chudacek, erstwhile Czechoslovakian clergyman.

Chudacek is asking $50,000 because, he alleges, the former Follies beauty let him stand twice at the altar with a bouquet for a bride, but no bride.

She did promise to marry him once, she admitted.

"He came to my apartment smelling of liquor and tried to throw me out of the window so I promised to marry him the next day to save my life," she said.

Chudacek's suit, which began with a letter of "I saw your lovely picture in the paper" came right after her third divorce, Miss Randolph said, and she was lonely and nervous—and he seemed sincere.

Miss Randolph was a bit perturbed by Chudacek's assertion that he interested himself in her and resigned his pastorate at Johnstown, N. Y., because "she wanted to be saved from the night life."

She said he wanted her money. Her income is purported to be $62,000 a year.

"He was always asking me for money," she said. "Once he asked me for $100,000 and said he wouldn't marry me unless I gave it to him."

Prior to Miss Randolph's testimony Chudacek enumerated the flowers he bought for her and the general expense of courting her, and denied the defense allegation that he was a "religious gigolo, male flirt of Johnstown and fortune hunter."

Jobless in Britain Decrease.

London, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Great Britain's unemployment total October 12 showed a decrease for the second consecutive week. On that date the number of jobless was 2,766,746, which was 24,774 less than the week before but 578,074 more than at the same time a year ago.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Mothers of would-be artists—here is a new game that will help the children to learn more about colors and color-blending. The game consists of a miniature stage, nine pottery figures which represent Hal Roach's "Our Gang," color palette, brush, and every color needed to make them look natural. There is also a colored picture to go by, if you need suggestions.

2 KILLED, 1 WOUNDED IN GUN RAID ON BANK

Son of President, Hostage in Robbers' Getaway, Shot as Bandit Is Slain.

Menomonie, Wis., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Machine gun robbers killed the kidnaped son of a bank president today after one of their band was slain in the getaway of four men who looted the Kraft State Bank of $10,000. Another son of the banker was wounded seriously.

Shot after having been forced to drive the looters' car while citizens took up pursuit, James Kraft, 19, was found dead on the highway 6 miles from here.

His body and that of the slain bandit, who was not identified, had been dumped from the automobile. Kraft was believed killed in reprisal.

The other victim of the gunmen's bullets, W. R. Kraft, 23, was shot because a raider refused to believe his assertion that there was no more money in the bank. He was wounded in the shoulder and believed suffering from a lung puncture. Physicians said he might die.

The brothers, sons of President W. F. Kraft, of the institution, were at work with seven other employes when three bandits entered. A fourth, machine gun ready, waited in a car outside. Both were assistant cashiers.

Several customers were in the lobby, and with employes were forced to lie on the floor during the robbery. Sixteen persons lay there as the leader, whose companions gathered an estimated $10,000 in cash and securities, asked W. R. Kraft where other valuables were.

Kraft replied there were none. The man then fired his pistol point-blank.

As a guard pressed an alarm from his bullet-proof cage on the balcony and ran to the roof to fire at the car, the men seized Mrs. Alice Schafer, a stenographer, and James Kraft as hostages, and, using them as shields, entered the waiting car. Mrs. Schafer was released, but while the machine gun swept the street, Kraft was forced to drive.

As the holdup men drove away, Edward Trinko, working nearby, fired six shots and he said he heard one occupant cry out he was hurt.

Possemen found the bodies. The dead man wore a steel vest, which had been punctured by a bullet. The clothing lacked marks or contents that might lead to identification. One group of pursuers was able to get close enough to exchange shots with the raiders, but was outdistanced.

Possemen later found the car in which the group fled, blood bespattered and with windows shot out. They said the flight continued in another car, probably driven by an accomplice who waited.

Officers were satisfied Kraft was not shot by pursuers. The manner in which he was shot and the fact that the car did not reduce speed as it left the city indicated he was slain later, they asserted.

Chicago Railroad Head Denies Consolidation

Chicago, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Patrick H. Joyce, acting president and executive committee chairman of the Chicago Great Western Railroad said today there had been no negotiations as yet between his road and the Kansas City Southern Line.

"Since we purchased 20 per cent of the Southern's stock, however," Joyce said, "we expect to reach an agreement soon." This agreement, he added, would probably affect only the hauling of freight. "There is no thought at this time of a consolidation," Joyce said.

WOMAN SLAYING SUSPECT AND 2 WHO WERE KILLED

might be arrested as an accomplice. He is in technical custody here. McKinnell and his sister are the son and daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, of Darlington, Ind.

Quizzed by Sleuths.

Questioned and requestioned by detectives, Judd and McKinnell told stories which further baffled authorities, already desperate in the search for the woman and the hunt for a motive. Judd offered the possibility that her mind was "deranged."

McKinnell said his sister arrived in Los Angeles early Monday and called him from his classes, telling him she had some trunks which she wanted him to take to the ocean and "throw them in deep water." He met her at the station. Insects hovering over the trunks aroused his suspicion that "something was wrong."

As they left the station, presumably to get the keys, McKinnell said his sister confessed the crimes, but offered no motive. He said she asked him for some money. He gave her $5 and some small change.

The story related by McKinnell was changed later in the day. He denied he had implicated his sister in the crimes, saying "She is innocent; she is not guilty of this."

Police at Phoenix were told that shots were heard Friday in the apartment building where the two slain women were living.

Denies Boy's Story.

A grocery boy, Harry Ruppelias, said he saw a man resembling Dr. Judd at the Judd home on Friday, but the physician denied to police here that he had been out of Los Angeles, saying he came here several weeks ago on a vacation from his work as physician in a mine at Bisbee, Ariz. Later another physician told police he was the man seen by the boy, but the lad held to his identification.

From another friend of the three women, Miss Evelyn Nace, an employe of the clinic, police learned that Mrs. Judd had come to work Sunday with a bandaged hand and said she was leaving at noon for Los Angeles because her husband was seriously ill.

Draymen told of being called to move the trunks to the Judd residence from the Le Roi-Samuelson apartment. They complained of the weight and were told the trunks contained books. On Sunday the trunks, at Mrs. Judd's instructions, were transferred to the baggage station.

Discovers Scalpel.

Magazines, letters and other papers littered the trunks, partly covering the bodies. In one was found a surgeon's scalpel, and examining physicians said some such instrument was used in dismembering Miss Samuelson's body.

In the valise police found a small-caliber pistol, about the size of the one with which one of the women was shot.

Chicago, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—An almost insane jealousy which kept three tubercular young women quarreling among themselves must have been responsible for the Phoenix trunk murders, Mrs. Phillip Anderson, sister of one of the victims, said tonight. "The awful jealousy of Mrs. Judd," she said, "is the only reason I can advance for the tragedy."

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Emil E. Hoitola, Portland, arrived here today broken in spirit at the murder of his fiancee, Mrs. Agnes Le Roi, and her companion, Hedvig Samuelson.

Hoitola showed daily letters to him from Mrs. Le Roi which told of friction between the two women and Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, hunted in connection with the slaying. He said he and Mrs. Le Roi were to have been married about Christmas.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—While police in California and surrounding States today hunted Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd as the killer of two women, her aged father, the Rev. H. J. McKinnell, and invalid mother remained at their home in Darlington, Ind., bewildered by events that had overtaken them. Faith in the 26-year-old daughter was expressed by Mr. McKinnell.

"I am worried, of course, but I know that my daughter could not be involved in such an affair," the Rev. Mr. McKinnell said. "Her early training at home and in the church would prevent her from doing such a thing."

From Lafayette, Ind., and Evansville came details of Mrs. Judd's life. She became a student nurse at the Southern Indiana State Hospital in Evansville in 1923 and worked in the officials' kitchen. Dr. Judd was on the staff for about a year but left before Mrs. Judd, then Miss McKinnell resigned.

After leaving Evansville she went to Lafayette and became a telephone operator.

She worked at that vocation for seven months and on April 18, 1924, was married to Dr. Judd in Lafayette. Small and blonde the McKinnell girl was well liked by all persons who met her, it was disclosed in various parts of the State where she had stayed.

Mother and Daughter Ill From Monoxide Gas

Mrs. Virginia Belt, 34 years old, and her daughter, Loraine, 16 years old, were overcome by carbon monoxide gas in the kitchen of their home at 1728 L street northeast last night. The gas was generated by a heater.

CONTRACT APPROVED FOR GIANT DIRIGIBLE

Will Be Sister Ship to Akron; Navy Also Orders 18 Planes and Huge Hangar.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy yesterday splurged itself on aircraft. It approved a contract for building the ZRS-5, sister ship of the giant airship Akron. It ordered eighteen new planes and let a contract for beginning work on an airship hangar in California.

The new airship is to be built by the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation within fifteen months of the time the U. S. S. Akron leaves the dock.

Weather permitting, this will be today. The Navy will accept the ship officially as soon as Commander Rosenthal starts her for Lakehurst. There she will be armed, equipped with planes and put in commission.

To Cost Only $2,450,000.

The ZRS-5 is to cost $2,450,000, about half as much as her elder sister. This difference was provided to safeguard the Zeppelin company's tremendous plant investment in case the second craft was not built.

A contract was awarded the Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation of Baltimore for eighteen convertible observation planes, costing $463,700. They are to be used either with landing gear for the aircraft carriers or with pontoons for catapulting from battleships and cruisers.

Plans Great Airship Hangar.

Simultaneously the Secretary awarded contracts for the foundation of the great hangar at Sunnyvale, Calif., which will house the ZRS-5. Foundation, tracks, and grading must be completed in six months by the Raymond Concrete Pile Co., of New York, for $181,181.

As soon as that is done the Wallace Bridge & Structural Steel Co., of Seattle, and Siems-Helmers Co., Inc., of St. Paul, will begin the hangar. This is to be completed in March, 1933, the date for delivery of the airship.

The Akron now is undergoing necessary finishing touches. She is expected to report at Lakehurst tomorrow. There she will occupy the space several times taken by the Graf Zeppelin, beside the now dwarfted Los Angeles.

A collection of blimps have been shooed out to make room. They are over at Cape May, N. J., until a smaller home can be arranged for them.

BANKS PLAN TO HOLD COTTON UNTIL JULY

Loans Not to Mature Until July 31 Would Affect 7,000,000 Bales.

Atlanta, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Southern bankers agreed today to make or renew loans, with cotton as security, to mature not earlier than July of next year, thereby officially approving a plan whereby approximately 7,000,000 bales of cotton would be kept off the market at least until July 31, 1932.

The bankers had been called into meetings in their respective States to approve or reject the plan developed at a conference in New Orleans of Federal Farm Board members, American Cotton Cooperative Association officials and a group of Southern bankers.

Loan extensions by Southern bankers on 3,500,000 bales of cotton would be followed by continuation of American Cotton Cooperative Association obligations by the Farm Board on approximately 2,000,000 bales, it was decided at the New Orleans conference.

Farm Board Plan.

In addition, the Federal Farm Board announced it would keep 1,300,000 bales off the market until 1933 if legislatures of States having 75 per cent of the cotton acreage passed laws reducing the 1932 acreage.

Texas bankers unanimously voted today to hold until next July every fourth bale of this year's cotton crop.

West Tennessee bankers "approved and indorsed the general tenor" of the plan, but 30 representatives of banking institutions said they should not be required to specify an exact number of bales they should finance.

The Georgia Bankers Association vote to support the plan by financing 350,000 bales.

Urge Acreage Reduction.

The Bankers Association of Arkansas, in addition to voting fully for approval of the New Orleans conference plan, adopted a resolution urging cotton acreage reduction.

Bankers of Oklahoma, without announcing the number of bales pledged, predicted the State's quota of about 250,000 bales would be oversubscribed.

Pledges amounting to 158,700 bales were signed by Louisiana bankers representing about one-third of the number of banks in cotton growing sections.

More than 100 bankers in Mississippi approved pledging 369,000 bales as their official approval of the conference plan.

RELIEF FOR RAILROADS.

In denying the railroads' petition for a 15 per cent blanket increase in freight rates the Interstate Commerce Commission has attempted to grant some measure of relief to the carriers without hampering the recovery of business. Rates on most agricultural products will remain at the same level. The commission suggests that the carriers apply for higher rates on coal, iron ore and various other products of mining, sand, gravel, forest products, petroleum and fresh vegetables. These increases would be considered as temporary to enable the railroads to meet their fixed interest charges, and would be granted on condition that the carriers agree to pool revenue from that source.

The law provides that rates shall be fixed at a figure that will allow the railroads a reasonable return on their investments. Since the depression began they have not been earning a return that in any way meets those requirements. Apparently, the commission has concluded from the testimony taken at its hearings that the slackening of traffic will be temporary, and that the railroads will return to a profit-making basis as soon as business revives. This is clearly indicated by the temporary nature of the suggested increases.

This decision will have far-reaching effects, but it is not necessarily adverse to the interests of the railroads. Many authorities from the beginning questioned the wisdom of a blanket increase at a time when truck competition is increasing rapidly. The commission's decision leaves no doubt that this element was taken into consideration. Most of the increases suggested are on commodities that are not easily transported by truck.

The railroads now have an excellent case to demand that trucks operating upon highways built at public expense be taxed for that privilege and that they be regulated as are other carriers.

Perhaps the most important question now to be decided is that of wages. Thus far the railroads have maintained their wage scales while there has been a general decline in wages paid by industry and agriculture. It is only reasonable to suppose that the carriers will seek to reduce their operating cost by a moderate reduction of wages. In view of the reductions that have taken place in almost every other branch of industry that movement will be difficult to resist.

No doubt the railroads will take advantage of the commission's suggestion that specific rates be raised to form a pool for the benefit of those roads that are in the greatest distress. This plan is designed to enable all carriers to meet their obligations. General cooperation is expected during this period of emergency.

VALUE OF KEEPING FIT.

Two of the world's leaders have recently expressed their opinion on the value of physical fitness. In discussing the subject President Hindenburg of Germany cited the Latin phrase, "Mens sana in corpore sano." This idea of a sound mind in a sound body has also been one of the tenets of Premier Mussolini's creed, not only for himself but for the youth of Italy. Fascism is a muscular creed, he has said, that believes in discipline, which is impossible without the coordination of intellectual, moral and muscular powers. Mussolini allows nothing to interfere with his regular exercise. Physical activity has maintained in him a healthy vigor which has made him one of the dynamic figures of his time. His remarkable physical stamina makes possible eighteen hours of work a day over extended periods.

In his eightieth year, President Hindenburg enjoys remarkable health, which he attributes to his regular daily periods of exercise and rest. Now that German youth is denied military training, due to the treaty of Versailles, Hindenburg says that they will develop physical culture with scientic precision. He believes that the old German army had a high order of physical training as well as mental and spiritual development. Today, however, sports must replace army life, and health must be found in outdoor activities.

Among the leading personalities of the day are many men who have retained youthful vigor in advanced years. George Bernard Shaw attributes his strength to sunshine, common sense, diet and exercise. Einstein is no pale student who lives exclusively in his work. His muscles are enormously developed; he loves to walk and swim. Clemenceau, up to a short time before his death, worked with enthusiasm in his garden. Examples of vigorous old age are too numerous to specify.

The practice of proper health measures contributes much toward making the last years of life the richest and most productive.

NEW CHIEF OF POLICE.

More vigilant supervision of the officers and men of the Metropolitan Police is the objective in placing Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, retired, at the head of the department. In theory it is well to place at the head of the department an officer who has risen from the ranks of patrolmen, but in practice the plan has not been satisfactory, at least in Washington. Many of the irregularities in the department would not have occurred if the superintendent of police had held inspectors and other superior officers to strict account for the discipline of the force. In some instances there has been unmistakable evidence of an effort by certain officers to shield wrongdoers instead of thrusting them from the ranks. The stand-together spirit is very good when it is applied in right directions, but it can be very mischievous when misapplied.

Gen. Glassford has a fine record as an Army officer. He is young and vigorous. His powers as Superintendent of Police should be enlarged, so that he can dispose of petty infractions of discipline without invoking the cumbrous machinery of a trial board. Criminal charges should be tried by the courts and not by a police board. The method of selecting recruits to the force should be improved, so that questionable characters shall not be placed in uniform.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, outgoing Superintendent of Police, is retired after long and faithful service. The system under which he has worked was not of his own making. He could have done better with more ample powers. His retirement marks the end of a regime which involved many police officers in third-degree indictments. The public now has a right to expect that the reorganized department will be free from such scandals.

CREDIT CLEARING HOUSE.

The establishment of a clearing house in New York for foreign credits is advocated by international financiers. Such an institution, operating independently, would provide information on foreign borrowers, which is often hard to obtain and in many cases given only on request of the creditor. One of its chief functions would be to curtail overextension of credit, which would prevent to a great extent such situations as now exist in Germany and South America, where a great part of the credits have become "frozen."

It would be the purpose of the institution to gather information on foreign banks and merchants doing business with the United States. It would demand monthly balance sheets showing all items in detail, especially advances, credits granted and expenditures. No borrower would receive accommodation unless he had deposited his standardized monthly balance sheet with the organization. This service would obviate the necessity of each individual bank keeping foreign credit files, which would be necessarily much less complete than those of the clearing house.

It is suggested that local bankers in London, Paris, Amsterdam and other cities would set up similar agencies for the purpose of checking credit reports. These would keep in close touch with each other and with the Bank of International Settlements at Basle.

The advantages of the proposed organization would be numerous, especially because of the comparatively recent entry of the United States into the field of international banking. It has been pointed out by The Post that the transfer of the world's financial center from London to New York had found America in no way comparable to England in its facilities for handling foreign banking matters. Widely scattered British banks provide a source of credit information from all parts of the world. America has no such extended connections. The clearing house for this purpose would, therefore, facilitate and in many cases make possible intelligent transactions with distant points.

JAPAN'S EXPANDING TRADE.

Japan's activities in Manchuria have aroused fears of a Sino-Japanese conflict. This struggle may be averted, but the world will remain apprehensive over Japan's growing commercial penetration in this and other parts of Asia. British imperial interests are especially uneasy regarding expanding Japanese ownership in the field of mining and industry. The foothold that Japan has gained since the war in Asiatic commerce has been extended even into Britain's domain.

In the Malay States one big Kobe firm has acquired virtually a monopoly of the rich iron deposits of the Muar River, where it has supplanted the Chinese owners of iron and tin mines. It has been estimated that in a few years Japanese interests will control 85 per cent of the mining and agricultural holdings in these states. By lending money to Chinese proprietors the Japanese have been able to force them to sell out in time of stress. Burmese and Chinese merchants of Rangoon, who formerly managed most of the business there, have been ousted by this method. So powerful have the Japanese merchants become that in the recent Burma rebellion they smuggled in the arms and ammunition found in the possession of the rebels. More than 35 per cent of the business in Burma had passed into Japanese hands in 1930.

The last decade has also witnessed a transfer of a large share of the trade of India to Japan. In Bombay Japanese cotton goods have been disastrous to Indian production. The boycott on British imports gave Japan first place in this line, and now the Indian nationals are beginning to wonder whether Japan may not be a more dangerous competitor against native goods than Great Britain. It was found cheaper to import cottons from Japan than to make them at home, and Japanese rice cut the profit from Indian rice. It is estimated that Japanese investments in India total $400,000,000; in Burma, $80,000,000; in the Malay states, $150,000,000; in Siam, $45,000,000, and in Indo-China, $65,000,000.

British interests fear that this expanding commercial activity will not confine itself to the realm of business indefinitely, but that it will ultimately be followed by an attempt to develop political influence in these territories.

O'NEILL'S NEW PLAY.

The theater season opened a few weeks ago in New York, but theater lovers are still awaiting the production of the new drama by Eugene O'Neill. This eagerly anticipated play by America's foremost dramatist introduces again innovations in the length and hours of the drama. It was originally announced that the forthcoming trilogy would be presented on three successive evenings. This, however, will not be the case, as it has been decided to give the whole play in a single evening.

The Theater Guild of New York will produce "Mourning Becomes Electra." Starting at 5 p. m., the first of the plays, "Homecoming," will run until 7. After an intermission of one hour for dinner the second, "The Hunted," will follow, and last is "The Haunted." The total running time will be somewhat longer than that of the nine-act "Strange Interlude," which began at 5:30 p. m. and lasted until shortly after 11.

The decision to play the three sections of "Mourning Becomes Electra" in one evening was reached after the first complete rehearsal by the Guild players revealed that the unity and suspensive action of the plays would be aided if they were all given the same evening. This was made possible when it was discovered that the playing time was actually shorter than Mr. O'Neill had calculated.

The premiere of the trilogy will take place on October 26. It is anticipated that this will be the most important first night of the theater season.

Politicians urge us to show the courage of our forefathers. It would be dangerous for politicians if we did.

JEFFERSON AND THE PRESS

From an Address by Representative JAMES M. BECK at the Dedication of a Room at Monticello to the Liberty of the Press.

The home of Jefferson is more eloquent than any spoken word. Here lived and died one of the great liberal leaders of mankind. From this hilltop he profoundly influenced the men of his own generation and from his grave he still inspires men everywhere with the great ideals of liberty. He gave to mankind new title deeds to liberty, written in terms so comprehensive that "time can not wither nor custom stale" their infinite verity.

There were "brave men before Agamemnon" and there were great democrats before Jefferson, but, above all men, Jefferson, like Chanticleer in Rostand's noble allegory, did proclaim the reddening morn of the democratic era. He summed up the significance of his whole life in the words, "I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

In my opinion, the noblest tribute ever paid to him was that of his biographer, Parton, who, in summing up his long and useful life, said:

> He defended the honor of the human intellect when its natural foes throughout Christendom conspired to revile, degrade and crush it.

This foundation does well to dedicate one room in this historic mansion to Jefferson's passionate devotion to this great ideal. When we speak of the "liberty of the press" we mean the liberty of thought, the inalienable right of every man, not merely to think, but, within reasonable limits, to express his thought in any medium he chooses. To attain that fredeom has been the supreme struggle of mankind from the dawn of history, and the significance of this occasion lies in the fact that the battle is an unending one and must be fought by every generation.

No objective was greater in Jefferson's mind than liberty of thought—irrespective of the medium—and it may be well to recall a few of his many utterances upon this great subject. He called the press "the only toesin of a nation." Writing to Elbridge Gerry in 1799, he said:

> I am for freedom of the press and against all violations of the Constitution to silence by force and not by reason the complaints or criticisms, just or unjust, of our citizens against the conduct of their agents.

Again, he wrote to President Washington:

> No government ought to be without censors; and where the press is free, no one ever will.

Nothing to me in Jefferson's life is more touching than his correspondence in his old age with his former political enemy and antagonist, John Adams, to whom, with his invincible optimism, he once wrote:

> I will not believe our labors are lost. I shall not die without a hope that light and liberty are on a steady advance.

This recalls that night of July 3, 1826, in Monticello, when the dying Jefferson struggled to live to see the dawn of the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. In that noble declaration of human freedom he had written that man possessed certain inherent and inalienable rights, among which was the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and that these were not the gift of a government, but of God Himself, and that governments were ordained, not to destroy these rights, but to protect them. To him "life" without the freedom of thought by any medium of expression was valueless; "liberty," without such freedom, a mere rhapsody of words and "happiness," impossible of attainment, if a man felt that he could not express his thoughts without the permission of the state. May the light thus enkindled shine forever!

Hobnobbing with all those French soldiers at Yorktown doubtless was good practice for the President's parley-voo with M. Laval.

When the Federation of Labor and Government reports agree that things are looking better it must be so.

Lots of young things demand independence these days. All they ask of parents is that they provide board, lodging and spending money.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

WORKING MEN.

Back among the busy men, back among the workers!
Done with all the talkers big; done with all the shirkers;
Done with all the tinseled sham. Those gay days are over

Howsoe'er we blundered then, luck stayed right beside us.
Waste was seldom thought about; fields were richly seeded.
Fools were able high to rise when wisdom wasn't needed.

None wastes time to sharpen blades he no more is using.
None keeps training for the fight he has no fear of losing.
Pleasure, though we guessed it not, turned every muscle flabby,
And fortune's lack of problems grave let many minds grow shabby.

Done are all the sunny days; terrific storms beset us.
We have need of conquests now which only strength can get us.
Luck no longer dogs our heels; stark trouble floods the nation.
Life has called us back to work to find our own salvation.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS is addressed primarily to young people—and especially to those young people who tremble with dread as they wait for the awful moment when they must stand up in the presence of their fellows and say: "Second the motion."

Within the last month I have been invited to address Rotary, Kiwanis and Lion clubs in three different States. Some time ago I was asked to address a national gathering of newspaper editors. The only other speaker invited was Mr. Hoover. He accepted and I didn't. I never accept.

My stark fear of perpendicular speaking had its inception in school days when, once a month I religiously played hooky to escape the Friday afternoon ordeal of "speaking a piece." In the course of years that dread of an audience became a mental habit. And, like other habits, it proved expensive.

I mention these matters only to show that I am qualified to speak as a horrible example.

Inability to speak and speak well costs me money. If I could stand before editors and other important citizens and make the welkin ring with silver words of wit and wisdom, the resulting publicity and admiration would create a broader market for my wares and fatten my bank account.

Man learned to understand spoken words and depend upon them for instruction and guidance long before writing was invented. In the race for public attention, the speaker had a million-year start. And the racial heritage of fondness for oratory makes spoken words infinitely more impressive than written ones.

The scholar may prefer ideas mixed with ink in a form permanent and dependable. He requires an exactitude seldom if ever attained by extemporaneous speech. But the mythical "man in the street"—the ordinary, mill-run, warmly-human man—is much more moved by oratory.

The same words that meet with no more than mild approval when they appear in print can lift men out of their seats and cause total strangers to embrace in ecstacy when they are roared from the larynx of a gifted rabble-rouser.

In America, as in no other land, the man who makes a better mouse trap or a cheaper car is supposed to be qualified to advise his fellow men in all matters from birth control to foreign policies, and frequently is invited to do so—orally.

If he does it well, his future is assured. If he declines to try, he denies himself the easiest and best way to make friends in the world that buys his product.

Learn to speak in public. Get the habit while you are young. Take it from one who knows, you'll be sorry if you don't.

PRO AND CON

Kansas City Star.

John W. Davis paid an eloquent and deserved tribute to the memory of Thomas Jefferson at Richmond the other day when a bust of the author of the Declaration of Independence was unveiled in the Virginia capitol. Few Americans will be found to disagree with any word of it—unless it might be, of course, in the heat of an election campaign when nobody agrees with Jefferson that "we are all Federalists, we are all Republicans."

But granting that all Mr. Davis said about Jefferson is true, we wonder if he doesn't owe some explanation to his party, which once nominated him for President, for this candid admission: "It is not too much to say that the political and social life of America is what it is today in large part because of the teachings and labors of Thomas Jefferson."

This statement does not indicate very good teamwork between Mr. Davis and the national leadership of the Democratic party. If what America is today is owing to Jefferson, his party ought to accept the result as satisfactory, one would think. But if we understand it, the Democrats claim that what America is today is owing entirely to the Republicans, that it is a wholly unsatisfactory condition and that it is the duty (and the extreme pleasure) of the Democrats to make America as much as possible unlike what it is today and as quickly as possible.

Theodore Roosevelt's Future.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

According to the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Theodore Roosevelt, governor general of Porto Rico, has been interviewing a number of senators, seeking their opinion on whether he should seek the Republican nomination for the Vice Presidency in 1932. What encouragement, if any, he has received has not been announced.

Gov. Roosevelt's interest in the vice presidential nomination has been increased, no doubt, by two recent events. One was the removal by death of Senator Morrow as a possibility for second place on the ticket with Hoover, and the other was the announcement that Dwight F. Davis would remain as governor general of the Philippines until the end of the Hoover administration.

We'll Have a Navy, All Right.

Lewiston Journal.

Senator Hale of Maine seems to be in the center of a mighty barrage. From all sides thunder the guns against "Navy expansion." But we must remember that much of this is for effect and some of it is for real economy. The Middle West has never liked the Navy. It is something they can not see. The ocean is far removed. The Middle West fought revival of our merchant marine, until suddenly it discovered that this was a Union of States. Out of it will come a compromise. We shall maintain a Navy sufficient for peace, to say the least.

It's a Beginning, Anyway.

Atchison Globe.

Mr. Coolidge has come out in favor of Mr. Hoover. But, of course, Mr. Hoover will need more than one vote.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Is Machinery Responsible for Depression? This Writer Demands That Its Use Be Restricted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the discussion of the business depression and unemployment nothing is said about the effect machinery has had on those conditions. In my opinion most of these troubles are due to the unrestricted use of machinery in the manufacture of all kinds of goods and in the planting, cultivation and harvesting of wheat and cotton with machinery. The unrestricted use of machinery has thrown out of employment and pauperized millions of people in this country.

Heretofore when "big business" seemed to threaten the safety and happiness of the people Congress was asked to pass laws, and did pass laws, to protect the people, but when the people are robbed of employment and pauperized by the unrestricted use of machinery by business no outcry is made or anything done about it. Laws are made to control "big business" in some directions, but none are made to restrict its use of machinery, although that is doing more harm than anything else. At present there is great excitement about public utilities, but machinery is ignored.

In this country there are between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 people unemployed. This number, with dependents, make, say, 25,000,000 of our people reduced to the pauper class by machinery. That is about one-fifth of the population of the United States. Where these 25,000,000 people were paying consumers they are now depending on charity for existence. I wonder why nothing has been done to limit the destructive use of machinery.

Unless Congress takes prompt notice of these conditions, at least half of those usually referred to as the working people of this country will be on what is really the dole, although it may be called some other name. The depression will continue and unemployment will grow until the use of machinery that displaces human labor is restricted.

Shorter Hours for All Workers Would End Unemployment and Distribute Purchasing Power.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Numberless committees and commissions are daily wrestling with elaborate methods of curing that dire disease known as unemployment. One might suppose that a new and insoluble problem had been presented to the human race in all countries of the globe, but common sense seems to point to a quite simple cure.

Memory takes me back to my early experience as a clerk in a bank. Our regular working hours for serving the public were from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.; therefore a half hour to three hours were employed in closing and balancing books. Moreover, there was no half-holiday on Saturdays. Bank business hours have now suffered a daily reduction of two, but banking still goes on as usual with larger clerical staffs. So far as I know no banker has complained of the change, nor become bankrupt because of it. Nor was any worker's pay reduced.

Apply this reduction of hours to all other workers. If one-fourth are unemployed, while those employed are working eight hours a day, the reduction of working hours by one-fourth would automatically give employment to all of the unemployed, with a six-hour day for all.

The measure of leisure enjoyed at present by one or two classes of workers could be enjoyed by all. Whatever this shortening of hours might add to the cost of production would be at least somewhat compensated by the greater demand for the goods produced because of the greater number of employed wage earners able to purchase the products. Moreover, it would conserve the worker's self respect.

Old-Timer Protests Against Reduction of Jobs in Theaters While Price of Admission Remains Same.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heartily indorse what Ann Hanly says in The Post about the picture theaters and the use of a good large orchestra. I can not but wonder how long the public will be patient, and allow the managers and owners to cut first this thing and then another. They cut everything but the price of admission and the dear people stand for it. If a man bought an overcoat now for the same price he paid last year and found that it had no sleeves in it, what would he do?

About a year ago the theaters discharged all the piano players in the small houses and in most of the large ones. About a month ago twelve organists were let out, also six men out of every orchestra in the large houses. Now they want to cut the stage crews down to nearly nothing. Yet the people stand in line for an hour, and pay the same price for half the show they have been getting.

I have had 50 years of experience in the theatrical business and I know that this reduction of wages and number of workers is not justified by business conditions. OLD-TIMER.

Britain Has Low Tariff, a Dole and Beer, But Is Not Prosperous.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please allow me to congratulate and commend you for what I consider the high class and appropriateness of your editorials, which I think are the best I have ever known to appear in The Post.

May I also add that, while so many people are blaming President Hoover, the Republican party, prohibition, and the tariff, for the depression, unemployment and conditions in general, there is no logic in their contention. England has a low tariff, the dole, beer, wine and liquor, and she is worse off than the United States. W. H. F.

PINCHOT, IN CAPITAL, SEES PROGRESSIVES

(Associated Press).

Politically alert, Washington responded quickly yesterday to round of calls by Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, upon some of the Republican Independents.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, who has advanced the Pennsylvanian as a candidate of the "Republican Progressives" for the presidential nomination in opposition to President Hoover, was one of those visited by the governor.

The Iowan declined to say whether presidential politics were discussed, but significantly added that he hadn't "backed down," as a Pinchot supporter.

Frazier in Number.

Senator Frazier, of North Dakota, in whose State one of the early presidential primaries will be held, also talked with Pinchot. He said the conversation was only general and did not relate to politics.

Unemployment relief was the governor's subject in calls upon Senator Couzens, (Republican) of Michigan, and Costigan, (Democrat) of Colorado. The latter was the one Democrat sponsoring the Progressive conference here last March. The governor also called on Senator Borah, of Idaho, whose name also has been advanced for the Republican presidential nomination.

There are increasing indications that the question of direct Federal relief for unemployment will be one of the points of dispute between Mr. Hoover and the Independent group in the Senate next session.

Future Conferences Hinted.

Whether Pinchot's conferences of yesterday will lead to any organized move by the group on this point was problematic, but there were intimations that future conferences might be held.

It is known that the governor encountered frank opposition to some of his views in his conversation with Senator Couzens, but the Michigan senator declined to comment on their chat.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, has taken Pinchot to task publicly for his demands upon President Hoover for unemployment relief, replying that it was up to the governor to take care of his State and people.

The governor called at Reed's office to pay his respects, but the senator was away at the time.

Rear Admiral Magruder To Retire in November

Officer Who Talked About Navy Will Spend Days on Farm.

(Associated Press.)

Rear Admiral Magruder, who spent two years "waiting orders" because he didn't like the way the Navy was run—and said so—is going to retire.

He'll be leaving the service late next month, and with his going the Nation's three fighting arms will be free of outspoken uniformed critics.

Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, who, like Magruder, agreed that at times he may have "talked too much," recently retired voluntarily from the Marines. Brig. Gen. William L. Mitchell, who raised a storm with his blunt attacks on Army and Navy Air Corps policies, was permitted to resign from the Army several years ago.

Magruder, however, is quitting the Navy because he is about to reach the age at which retirement is compulsory. He will be 64 on November 29. Next to pacing the bridge of a rolling battleship, he prefers the softer tread of a dirt farm. He probably will, figuratively, beat his sword into a plow share.

When the admiral's magazine articles got him into difficulties with his superiors, he had a stanch supporter in Mitchell.

"Every line Admiral Magruder has written in criticism of the Navy is based on actual truth," the fiery 'Billy' Mitchell said at the height of the dispute raging about the head of his Navy friend.

Magruder's difficulties came in September, 1927, while he was commanding the Navy Yard at Philadelphia. He persisted in his stand that the Navy had never been returned to peace-time needs and efficiency. The service was overorganized, he said, and wasteful.

Secretary Curtis D. Wilbur gave him "waiting orders" and it was nearly two years before "Unlucky Tom" was assigned to command the fleet base on the Pacific. He was transferred last March to the command of the New Orleans Naval District.

REAR ADMIRAL THOMAS P. MAGRUDER.

"If you want to get along with the old man you've got to work," is the way friends of Magruder summed up the man who has given 40 years of his life to the Navy.

"He has no time for a sailor or officer who is just getting by," they say.

Intimates of "T. P." as some call Magruder, also insist that in criticising the Navy he had the Navy's welfare absolutely at heart. He was not a publicity seeker, they claim, nor did he have any "big job" in view.

Magruder's naval career started off with a bang. He was one of a picked group ordered to cut the cables at Cienfuegos, Cuba, during the Spanish-American War. The cables were cut in the face of a withering fire and Ensign Magruder was advanced five numbers in grade.

He commanded an Atlantic fleet patrol squadron in the World War and received the Distinguished Service Medal for helping keep French waters free from mines and submarines.

RUM AND ARMS HOLD METHODIST SESSION

Special Liquor Report Will Be Made at Insistence of Church Editor.

Atlanta, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Prohibition and world disarmament were under the spotlight at the Methodist Ecumenical Conference in Atlanta today.

At the insistence of a group headed by L. O. Hardman, D. D., editor of the Zion Herald, published in Boston, the conference instructed its business committee to appoint a group of five to draft a resolution setting forth the church's views regarding prohibition in the United States and Canada. The resolution will be reported to the general conference for action.

The Rev. E. Aldmon French, of England, told the delegates that failure of nations to disarm constituted "the most diabolical situation" in the world at present. He said this was one of the major problems on which Methodists in all parts of the world should unite.

Dr. Hardman made the plea for a conference report on prohibition after 200 delegates in a group meeting took a stand against a sparate resolution on the liquor question, and advocated, including that issue in a general report on social problems, such as marriage and unemployment.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of New York, president of the Council of Churches of Christ in America, and the Rev. Mr. French delivered addresses in support of prohibition enforcement.

Mr. French said, on disarmament: "We can not pass resolutions here on disarmament and expect it to come to pass. It's a fight and we must face it. We are not out to improve war, as some have said is necessary to end war, but to drive it from the face of the earth."

The Rev. Herbert B. Workman, of London, said that the greatest need in America today is the teaching of "Christian religion in the elementary schools."

BISHOP CANNON ASKS RELIEF FROM DUTY IN FOREIGN FIELDS

Miss Burroughs was treasurer for campaign funds used by the bishop.

His statement follows:

"For three years certain elements of the opponents of prohibition, including the newspapers, not all—of Roman Catholics and their church press, not all, of stand pat Southern Democrats, not all—have tried to destroy my health, thus impairing my activities, to destroy my financial credit, and to destroy my influence in my church and with the general public. They have nearly destroyed my health, and thus because of months in hospitals greatly curtailed any personal activities as chairman of the General Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

"I rejoice that my health has somewhat improved, but my activity is greatly impaired.

"Financially only through the help and confidence of my friends have I been able to meet my heavy medical, hospital and living expenses, for the Nye committee, after examinnig all my bank accounts, did not find the large funds which vindictive enemies have declared that I embezzled, instead of using them for political campaign purposes.

"The extraordinary public and private expressions of confidence at this world-wide Methodist conference and the continuous insistent demands that I continue my lifelong work for social betterment, and especially against the liquor traffic, have laid upon me an obligation which I can not conscientiously ignore to continue my activities to the limit of strength.

"After very careful study, I believe that no indictment would have been found had the Roman Catholic district attorney summoned the witnesses whose names I gave him, and also, if the district attorney had clearly and fully explained to the jury the law applicable to the facts.

"The case will, if necessary, certainly be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, although I must say frankly that I do not know now where the money will be found to meet the heavy expense.

"For the present I have requested my colleague, Bishop John M. Moore, to take general supervision of my work in Brazil, and Bishop Darlington of my work in the Belgian Congo. But, as indicated above, I shall as far as time and strength permit continue my work for prohibition, against war, for marriage and the home, for a better adjustment of economic and industrial life, for improved racial relations, for better amusements and similar matters to which I have given the greater part of my life."

Quiz of Political Steps By Power Firms Urged

(Associated Press.)

An investigation of political activities of power companies was demanded yesterday in a bulletin issued by the National Popular Government League.

Judson King, director of the league, cited a recent investigation by a committee of the Canadian House of Commons into conditions under which the Beauharnois Power Corporation attempted to develop a power site on the St. Lawrence River as proof of the need of such an inquiry in this country.

French Interest Demand Ignored

Withdrawals of Foreign Funds Held Unlikely to Affect U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Demand of the Bank of France upon New York banks for a higher rate of interest on foreign central bank deposits was received in silence here yesterday by officials in close touch with the financial situation.

It was said that if France and foreign banks withdrew all of their credits in this country it could not affect the economic situation of the United States.

The gold withdrawals which recently have taken large amounts of the metal to France and other European countries were said to be only a natural development of the abandonment of the gold standard by some European nations. This movement has about run its course and it was expected that the gold shipments would decrease from this time.

Rediscount Rate Raised By Dallas Reserve Bank

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday that the Dallas Reserve Bank had increased its rediscount rate from 3 to 4 per cent, effective today.

The action of the Dallas bank made eight increases in the rediscount rate by six of the twelve Federal reserve banks in the last two weeks. The New York bank increased its rate twice to 3½, as did the Boston bank. Chicago also increased its rate to 3½, while Cleveland raised the rate to 3 per cent, and Richmond to 4 per cent.

Venezuela Killing Of Pirates Denied

Men Taken From Steamer Were Not Executed, Legation Says.

An emphatic denial of a message sent from Mexico City by a press association stating that members of the filibuster expedition from the Mexican steamer Superior, recently captured in Venezuela, have been shot was made yesterday by the Venezuelan Legation in Washington.

"Venezuela is a civilized nation where human life is respected," the statement said. "The barbaric custom of executing prisoners is unknown. Capital punishment was abolished long ago, and our constitution prohibits the practice even in the case of foreign wars or as a means of reprisal.

"The regular legal proceedings have been undertaken since the capture of the Superior, and this will bring to light the real facts and circumstances of this ugly, piratical enterprise, especially from what source came the large supply of arms and ammunition furnished the pirates in Vera Cruz."

Mildred Harris Granted Final Divorce Decree

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—A final decree of divorce in favor of Mildred Harris, film actress and former wife of Charlie Chaplin, from Everett T. MacGovern, of Jacksonville, Fla., was entered today.

Miss Harris won the interlocutory decree February 18, 1930, on the grounds of desertion. MacGovern did not contest the case. She divorced Chaplin several years ago on a complaint of mental cruelty.

French Flags Over Capital Honor Petain

Embassy Gives Dinner to Visitors From France; Many Fetes Today.

The tricolor of France will float proudly in the Capital this week as Marshal Petain, famous standard bearer of the French, accepts the welcome of official Washington. Climaxed by a dinner at the White House tomorrow night, when he will share honors with Premier Laval, the great French commander is the central figure in the round of fetes which will mark the visit in Washington of foreign guests who participated in the Yorktown celebration.

This afternoon the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, will entertain in the Pan-American Union for Marshal Petain and his staff and the visiting delegation. Mrs. Stimson will greet at Woodley at the same hour a group of Washington women to meet the women of the French party and Baroness von Steuben. In the afternoon Marshal Petain will be the ranking honor guest at the reception of the National Society Sons of the American Revolution in their headquarters in Sixteenth street, when the president general of the society, Mr. Benjamin N. Johnson, with other national officers, will entertain.

Gen. John J. Pershing will entertain at luncheon tomorrow in honor of the man who said of the German armies "they shall not pass." The luncheon will be at the Army and Navy Club, with about 75 guests invited.

With Marshal Petain at the reception this afternoon of the Sons of the American Revolution will be the Marquis de Rochambeau, the Marquis de Chambrun, Marquis de Grasse, Duc de Broglie, Gen. D'Ollone, Gen. de Chambrun, and others of the delegation. The Marquis de Rochambeau is vice president general of the National Society Sons of the American Revolution, representing the foreign district, and the Marquis de Chambrun, who is a direct descendant of Gen. de Lafayette, is the president of the society in France of the Sons of the American Revolution, and are the special honor guests of the occasion.

Members of the District of Columbia Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and their wives and daughters, and members of the society in Washington from other States have been invited to attend.

The distinguished list of guests included the Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis; the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson; the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Francis Adams; Senator David A. Reed, Gen. John J. Pershing, the Chief of Staff of the Army, Gen. Douglas MacArthur; the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral William V. Pratt; the Acting Secretary of War, Mr. Frederick H. Payne; the Undersecretary of State, Mr. William R. Castle; the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. F. Trubee Davison; Mr. George Wickersham, former Attorney General and present president of the American Society of the French Legion of Honor; the Duke de Broglie, president of the French Society of the Cincinnati; Marquis de Chambrun, member of the French Chamber of Deputies; Admiral Descotes-Genon, representative of the French navy at the Yorktown Sesquicentennial; Gen. de Chambrun, representative of the French army; Marquis de Grasse, and Marquis de Rochambeau, descendants of the French admiral and general who commanded at Yorktown; the Duke de Noailles and Gen. d'Ollone, delegates of the French Society of the Cincinnati to Yorktown.

Also Mr. William D. Guthrie, president of the Franco-American Society; Mr. Henry R. Webb, acting president general of the Society of the Cincinnati; Mr. Warren Delano Robbins, chief of protocol; Dr. James Brown Scott, president of the French Institute of Washington; Mr. Pierre Boal, chief of the Western European Division of the Department of State; Mr. Richard Southgate, Capt. Bout de l'Epine, aid to Marshal Petain; M. Jules Henry, Counselor of the French Embassy; and M. Pierre de la Blanchetais, First Secretary of the Embassy.

Plans are going forward at Fort Hamilton, near Brooklyn, N. Y., for the entertainment of Marshal Petain, who is expected to attend the First Division Association reunion there on Saturday when Brig. Gen. Lucius R. Holbrook will be in command. Among the officers who will be at the reunion are Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retired chief of staff, and Lieut. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, retired, both of whom were battle commanders of the First Division, and Maj. Gen. Hanson B. Ely, who as colonel held Cantigny with the Twenty-eighth Infantry of the First Division against heavy odds. Marshal Petain will leave Washington either Friday night or Saturday morning.

In Newport, where the marshal and his staff will visit before sailing for France, plans have been furthered for their entertainment when they reach there October 27. Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, chairman of the committee, and Mrs. Rice will entertain.

Mrs. Charles L. F. Robinson, Mrs. William Watts Sherman, Mrs. Charles Moran and Dr. George Cerio are the latest cottagers to contribute to the fund for the entertainment of the distinguished visitors.

The Institut Francais de Washington will entertain Marshal Petain and the French delegation to the Yorktown celebration at dinner on Friday, at the Mayflower, preceding the reception which will be tendered them by the French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel. The large reception which the institute had planned for today, had to be canceled because of the visit of Mr. Laval.

Besides the members of the delegation the following distinguished guests will attend: The French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, Mlle Claudel, Mlle Jose Laval and the French Embassy staff, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams, Gen. Pershing, Senator Hiram Bingham, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Mrs. Robert S. Brookings, Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Borden Harriman, the Very Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, rector of Georgetown University; the Righ Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University; the Rev. Miss Mitchell Is Married to Mr. Trueblood Ceremony Performed in Home With Reception Following.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Mitchell, daughter of Mrs. C. Stoddard Mitchell, of Washington, and Mr. Edward Gatewood Trueblood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Trueblood, of New York, took place yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother in Massachusetts avenue, the Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, reading the service.

The bride, who is the daughter of Gen. William Mitchell, attended Vassar College and the Ecole des Sciences Politiques in Paris. She made her debut in Washington several seasons ago, later entering the Foreign Service School wtih the idea of entering the foreign service.

Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, godfather of the bride, escorted her to the improvised altar. She wore a gown of ivory satin and old duchess lace which had belonged to her great-grandmother. Her veil of ivory tulle was caught with the same lace and she carried a bouquet of madonna lilies.

Miss Harriet Mitchell, sister of the bride, was her only attendant and she wore a frock of pale green chiffon velvet and carried an arm bouquet of autumn flowers. Mr. David Monahan, of New York, was the best man.

The ceremony was attended by members of the two families, many of them having come from out of town. A reception followed the ceremony at which the couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Mitchell, who wore a gown of lilac satin with rose point lace. Immediately afterward Mr. and Mrs. Trueblood left for New York and will sail tomorrow for Costa Rica, via Havana and Panama. They will make their home in San Jose, where Mr. Trueblood is serving as secretary of the American Legation.

Mr. Trueblood was graduated from Princeton in 1926 and attended the Ecole des Sciences Politiques and the Ecole des Tanques Orientales in Paris. In 1928 he entered the United States Foreign Service and after a short assignment at the Department of State was sent as vice consul to La Paz, Bolivia. For eighteen months he was in charge of the consulate and in 1930 was transferred to the diplomatic service and was designated secretary of legation. For the last four months before leaving Bolivia he was charge d'affaires at La Paz.

Dr. Irujo Here As Charge for Spanish Nation

Marques de los Arcos Officially Known by Family Name.

The Marques de los Arcos, or as he will be known officially by his family name, Dr. Luis Martinez de Irujo, arrived in Washington yesterday from New York to assume his duties as Minister-Counselor of the Spanish Embassy. The marques has been Spanish Minister in Panama for the last two years, and comse to this country to hold the rank of Minister and conduct Spanish diplomatic affairs here until the arrival of the Ambassador, Senor Salvador de Madariaga, who is now at Geneva attending the league council sessions.

Bridal Parties Planned For Miss Bolling.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

If October 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:15 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 11:50 a. m. to 2:10 p. m., and from 6:15 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 8:45 p. m. to 10:10 p. m.

There is evidenced on October 21, according to astrological conditions, a pessimistic atmosphere. If caution is not observed, monetary loss will result. Investments should be gone over and revised. Health conditions will not be good, especially for the middle-aged. Curious experiences will occur, especially to those who take an interest in the religious, occult or mystical side of life.

Children born on this October 21 will be cleverer with their hands than their heads. They will be frank and out-spoken, but not in the least malicious. They will, unfortunately, have jealous dispositions, and demand, without always getting it, undivided affection and unremitting attention.

You, if born on October 21, are rather a melancholy person and take life altogether too seriously. Imagining always the calamitous, never realizing that things might be worse, your lugubriousness, chilly conviviality, strangles all that is congenial. At times, you seem to bear on your shoulders all the accumulated ills of humanity. Such an attitude deprives you of all incentive, as, in your mind, you are quite content to believe that your efforts are doomed to fail. This unfortunate spirit characterizes your home life if a woman, and is ever present with you in business if a man.

You are, undoubtedly, clever—inherently so. You will have opportunities above the average. You will have those who are willing to help you. These conditions, which would conduce to another's success, will all be lost on you unless you learn to open your eyes and see that life is not as drab as you think.

Your horoscope is a dull one until you attain middle-age. At that period, it becomes bright and glowing. It can, therefore, be deduced that something will then happen which will bring about a complete change in your outlook, and from then on life will be pulsating and joyous, even though there will be regrets over many distorted fancies and lost opportunities.

Successful people born October 21:
1. Charles P. Cushing, writer.
2. Will Carleton, poet.
3. Margaret Mather, actress.
4. Samuel F. Smith, clergyman, and author.
5. John E. Sweet, inventor.
6. Paul A. Chadbourne, educator.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

PROTECTING SPRING FLOWERING BULBS.

IN parts of the country where we have real winter, all spring flowering bulbs must be covered, after the first heavy frost, with straw, leaves, pine boughs or peat moss. This material is not intended to keep the bed warm, but to provide a more even temperature for the soil and to avoid the freezing and thawing in the spring. Never use fresh or heated manure to cover a bulb bed. Growing bulbs in the South is a bit less troublesome because the bulbs do not require covering.

It is impossible to suggest any date in the spring when the covering can be removed, for, of course, that will depend on local weather conditions, but we must remember that the tender shoots put up by the bulbs must not be exposed to the elements until all danger from heavy frost is over.

After the covering has been removed in late March or early April and the bulbs have pushed aside the brown soil, it is well to give the bed or border a light dressing of sheep manure. Scatter this over the soil and then work it under with a narrow rake. Some growers feel the results are better if the plants are stimulated with liquid manure when the buds show color. After the bulbs are under the ground our other garden tasks can be done in a more leisurely manner.

Plants that have been cut down by frost or by the sickle ought to be cleared away and burned, thus destroying any bugs or disease spores which may have chosen old foliage or stems for a winter home.

We should now collect all stakes, grade them, and put them away for another season. All vacant beds and borders should be dug and left as rough as possible.

Now is the time to prune honeysuckle for the last time. This means to cut away all dead wood and much that isn't dead. The honeysuckle is one vine that requires severe pruning.

Wherever we go, we should keep on the lookout for weeds. These should be uprooted, especially from beds or borders. Weeds, especially the hollow-stemmed varieties, all harbor insects and disease. If permitted to set seeds, they only lead to more and more weeds, for all weeds self-sow. It must be remembered that when spring comes the less weeding we have to do the more time we will have to do the other garden work.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Oct. 20.

NOT only for evening gowns, my deahs, but for daytime clothes as well, the latest idea in the fashion world is to dye the fur trimmings! And as furs are so plentiful these days, and so many novel things are done with them, this dyeing business is not surprising.

Long and short haired fur bandings have been used in the past to lend elegance to evening gowns—now they're dyed and used for harmony. Especially popular is a pale fuschia shade, and evening gowns use this fuschia color banding of dyed fox or ermine very effectively. This dyed fur banding is used around the skirt of the gown, either at the hem or a short distance below the knee, for edging the decolletage or the short puffed sleeves, or on detachable little cape scarfs.

Dyed furs for daytime wear are extremely new! Persian lamb is a favorite pelt in dyed furs because of the even color it takes, and the interesting depth of color its rough surface takes.

'N' don't worry, you lovely ladies who fear that dyed furs will detract from the dignity and good taste of your daytime clothes—the furs that have been accepted so far are in very dark colors only—with dark blue leading. And if you could have seen the coat I did the other day, of navy blue rough woolen cloth with a square, upstanding yoke collar of matching blue astrakhan and blue astrakhan cuffs, you'd have fallen for this new idea, too!

Pleats are responsible for one of the most charming versions of this autumn's diverse and interesting evening mode. Don't you agree with me, when you see what pleats accomplish on the evening gown from Lucile Paray which I have illustrated today? This frock is made in violet-blue crepe de chine with a pleat-edged fichu collar, a three-tiered pleated and pointed peplum, with two wide pleated flounces at the bottom of the skirt. And then, in back, there's the quaintest little narrow draped bustle arrangement—just another interpretation of the bustle that's enjoying popularity at this time!

There's just one thing you can't do on Halloween, and that is to think about or mention the depression. It does seem from indications all about me that this year is going to mark the maddest and merriest session of the gathering of witches and other spirits that the world has ever known. Are you ready for it? Is your family ready for it? Do you know the latest and most fetching fashions in witches, cats and brooms to sweep cares away? Wel-l-l-l-l-l, you just rush your stamped, self-addressed envelope off to the Dare department of The Washington Post and you'll learn all this and more besides. For this leaflet gives fully illustrated directions for making the latest and smartest Halloween costumes as well as amusing accessories.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD.

Our Wayward Hearts.

DEAR Frances McDonald: From the beginning of time, people have always wondered at the way things turn out and asked why. But I have such good faith in your answers to the many questions that come to you that I am writing to you, wondering if you have found the answer to the question that has been on my mind for some time.

Why do we have at times the awful desire to do the things that might give us a thrill, or shall I say a change? Then when we get or do what we wanted most, we are disappointed. For example, I am going to relate an incident that occurred to me before I was married.

While working as a salesgirl in one of our large department stores I thought I was in love with a very rich man who used to buy his merchandise from the department in which I worked. All sorts of visions were running through my mind of what such a man could give a girl. I knew that he was providing many girls with luxuries. Well, one day he asked to be introduced. My heart pounded. He invited me to lunch. He coaxed me to take the afternoon off. It would be all right with the boss; he would see to that. I did. We went to lunch. For the first time in my life I took a drink. He invited me to ride over to the dock and see his boat. I did. All the while he was a gentleman in every respect, as I thought. I mean by that that in my poor dumb way I thought he was respectful and sincere. While riding to the wharf he was suggesting that some week-end I could bring along another girl and her boy friend and the four of us could take a trip in his boat. Everything would be all right. He would take care of all expenses. He was suggesting that some day wouldn't I like to see his country home and spend the day there. Would I like to drive a car of my own, just as so many girls in the city were doing.

God must have been with me, because just before he suggested what I might have realized was coming something seemed to snap, and I finally realized just what it would mean to me if I went through with this awful thing that I was doing. God only knows why I was spared.

What I had dreamed of, what I had thought was what I wanted, only filled me with disgust. I had to cry to think I had come so close to the edge.

Now after three years I am married to a wonderful man, have a baby that nothing else in the world could take the place of. But, we are poor. Sometimes when I am tired, and look around me and see girls with everything in the world—but a home and a baby—I wonder if they are happy, for they seem to be. I love my husband and I hate to admit this, but if I must complete my story I must tell facts. He is one of the fellows that you so often write about. He will never make more than $25 a week. He is just that type. Seems to be satisfied with what he has. I feel unjust for writing that, but it is so. Sometimes when I go to the city I come home, look at my poor surroundings and wonder why. Sometimes I have an inner feeling that I would like to step out, see people in nice places, have someone who can afford it to take me somewhere and give me the things that I can never have. But always when my husband comes home I lose that feeling and am glad that I have him. Why? If you do not see fit to answer this letter, I will not be in the least surprised. Perhaps you are disgusted with me, as I am myself for feeling that way. But nevertheless, I have gotten it off my mind and on paper to some one whom I think will understand.

Hoping to hear from you, I remain

BEBE.

You ask why? Simply because we are all children, spiritually longing for this and longing for that. Mother used to tell me that it was all just "longing for God." And that is a comforting thought somehow in all the turmoil—is it not? Longing for the Infinite Understanding that alone can answer all our need, end all our doubts.

You go to town and hear soft music drifting from some beautiful restaurant and you are assailed with longing. You think it is for the soft music and the beautiful room, but it is in reality for the source of the music and the source of beauty. And returning home you find yourself in the arms of a man whose love is beautiful and whose eyes hold understanding and you are comforted because in him as well as in music there is something of the thing you are seeking, and holding it close you feel at peace. No one can tell you the why. But all through life I have found mother's answer as comforting as most. And somehow I think it is the real answer. It is for me. Perhaps it will be for you. Who knows?

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

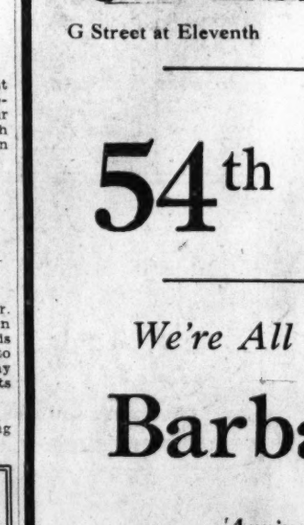
FORCE VERSUS TIME.

SQUEEZE plays, so called, are frequently utilized by master Contract players to make an extra trick or tricks, which less expert players would not make.

The principle underlying the squeeze is simple. It is only this: A player who is guarding two suits is forced, through the lead of a third suit, to lose control of one of them by a discard. Borrowing the nomenclature of baseball, this situation, which sometimes seems to make the impossible an actuality, is described by Bridge players as a squeeze. The principle underlying the squeeze in Bridge and the means used to squeeze a run across the plate are the same.

In today's hand, the unhappy leader, who failed to cash an Ace against a Slam bid, was forced, by means of the squeeze, to discard that Ace on an established card in the hands of his adversaries.

North-South vulnerable.
South—Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♡	3NT(1)	Pass
5♠(2)	Pass	6♠(3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

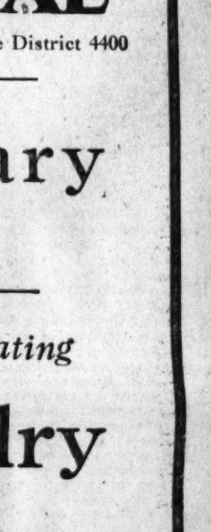
1—North's inadequate trump support makes inadvisable an Overcall in the suit bid by his adversaries. His partner can not fail to realize that his hand is very strong, however, in view of his Jump bid in notrump. Only the fact of the short spades makes a greater Jump inadvisable.

2—South has 6 sure tricks in spades and the value of his four-card tenace suit in diamonds. His partner's bid has shown at least 3½ honortricks with probably either A K of hearts or A Q of that suit. The bid of five spades invites a Slam.

3—North, who holds 4 honortricks and now is assured of the solidity of South's spades, cheerfully accepts the invitation.

In the play West opened the Queen of hearts. To lead the Ace of clubs, he reasoned, would be to accept the Slam as inevitable and his tenace holding in the club suit might be the the needed thing to defeat the Slam if it was preserved until South had to lead that suit.

This lead was won with Dummy's King and the Ace and Queen of diamonds taken in. Six rounds of spades and one more round of diamonds left the situation below.



Upon the lead by South of the last diamond, West was hopelessly squeezed. If he discarded a heart, the King of clubs would be discarded in the Dummy and the Ace and trey of hearts would take the remaining tricks; if he discarded the Ace of clubs, the 3 of hearts would be the discard from the Dummy and the same situation would result.

The squeeze is a powerful factor in play, and all too infrequently utilized.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The highly characteristic use of minimum notrump responses in the Forcing System to show negative values and yet to keep the bidding open is based upon the fact that notrump responses do not increase the original contract by a higher bid. The bidding is, therefore, not crowded, but in accordance with the Approach principle, is kept as low as possible, allowing the partnership sufficient scope to "veer and haul." Needless to add, "negative notrump" bids are perfectly safe at all stages of bidding because predicated upon strength previously shown by partner.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

AFTER EFFECTS OF CHILLS.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know something of the after effects of chronic malaria. These effects need to be considered under several heads. In the first place, a person who has once been thoroughly infected with malaria may have trouble in completely throwing it off.

Even though he takes enough treatment to consider himself cured, and then moves out of the malarial country and into one in which there is no likelihood of reinfection, he is liable to have occasional chills and fever for months or even for years. These attacks are quite liable to come on in the cold weather, and to follow chilling or wetting.

Exposure to great heat sometimes has the same effect. The reason is the malarial parasite is liable to hide away in some inaccessible part of the body and remain there, making itself at home, doing no immediate harm, and adjusting itself very well to the tissues around it. That this parasite can adjust itself is proved by the experience of certain individuals who become infected with malaria without being much harmed by it; by certain races, for instance, Negroes, who enjoy a good deal of racial immunity; and by the course of malarial infections in birds and monkeys. So long as the malarial parasites remain inactive in inaccessible locations in the human body, quinine does not harm them.

People who have this type of infection sometimes get chilled or wet and thus precipitate an atack of chills. When this occurs the parasites have changed to a vulnerable form and they have moved out of their strongholds. A few days of quinine and plasmochin compound is expected to kill them off. A few repetitions of the chilling, followed by treatment, should rid the system of the parasite.

The next heading is the secondary effects of chronic malaria. Malaria is very destructive to the blood. Anemia is nearly always present if malaria has persisted long. In the treatment of persisting malaria, iron and arsenic tonics rank with quinine tonics and plasmochin compound. Unless tonics to overcome anemia are given, there is great difficulty in curing a case of malaria. They seem to be needed to make the quinine and plasmochin compound take hold of the disease in its phases other than the acute chills and fever. And then iron and arsenic tonics are needed to "mop up" following quinine to use a soldier's expression.

Under the third heading come people who are likely to need special dieting during treatment and afterward. They need meat, eggs and good vegetables, especially those that are green and the yellow kinds as well.

And, finally, people with chronic malaria need to be rid of complications. Some of them are infested with worms and need a few rounds of worm medicine. Some need to have old gum and tooth troubles cleared up.

INSULIN.

M. D. writes:

1. Can one make a home sugar test of the urine?

2. What do you think of insulin injections as an aid in increasing one's weight?

REPLY.

1. Start with some Benedict's solution and a test tube. Pour about one-half inch of the blue solution in the test tube. Heat it to a boil. If the solution loses its blue color it is not to be used.

Add 5 to 10 drops of urine to the hot solution. If sugar is present the color of the solution will change from blue to yellow, or reddish yellow, and a precipitate will be thrown down.

2. It is not practicable. The need does not justify the trouble and expense. If the thinness is due to a disease, the cause should be removed, if it can be. If it is due to nervousness, lack of sleep, lack of regular habits, the proper policy is to correct the faulty habits. Aside from those who are emaciated because of disease, the lean are lucky. They have lower death rates than the fat. They live longer, stand operations better, overcome emergencies better, are more comfortable, have more endurance and are less subject to disease. Where is there a place left for the use of insulin?

The general examination of all policemen who are 55 or over is said to be "routine procedure," but in view of persistent rumors, which have been freely discussed in police circles since the framing of the Department of Justice report on police conditions in general based on specific brutality cases, particular significance was attached to the proceedings.

To Be Out November 1.

As forecast exclusively by The Post yesterday, Maj. Pratt is to be "eased" out of office on November 1. He is scheduled to be accompanied by Inspector Stoll. The Commissioners have not denied circumstances of the removal of Maj. Pratt, as published in The Post yesterday.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday declared that the "precipitate" action in bringing Maj. Pratt before the Retiring Board yesterday was because of the "premature" publication by The Post of the story.

The inside story on the oustings is this:

On the day following publication in The Post of the exclusive story on the beating of a prisoner in the First Precinct, a representative of a capital newspaper appeared at the District Building. After conferring with Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer and Corporation Counsel Bride, Maj. Pratt was called in.

Two Each Day.

"Mr. —— has told us of a distressing situation: he has ten 'authentic cases' of the beating of prisoners and his paper is going to publish two each day," Pratt was told. "We would like to bring it to the attention of the Atorney General."

Maj. Pratt is said to have assented to the proposal.

The Attorney General refused to conduct the inquiry. Thereupon, Corporation Counsel Bride and Commissioner Reichelderfer went to the White House.

Disapproved of Action.

After this, Maj. Pratt was informed of their action. Asked by Mr. Bride whether he approved, he is reported to have replied: "Absolutely not. Your action in bothering the President of the United States with a purely local problem, is an admission that the District officials can not handle their own affairs."

Then, about three weeks ago, Commissioner Crosby sent for Maj. Pratt. This is what was proposed: "Now, major, you have told us on several occasions that you would like to be retired. We are now prepared to receive your application for retirement."

To which Maj. Pratt is reported to have replied: "I would like very much to retire, but I would prefer to wait until these investigations are over. I would not like to leave the men who are accused in these cases until a conviction has been brought. Furthermore, I would not want any man to come into the department in my stead during this criticism. I would prefer that he be given the position with a clean slate to begin with."

Received Assurances.

But the Commissioners explained to him that they had received assurances that criticism of the police administration would cease.

To appease Maj. Pratt's ire at the manner in which he was being treated, the Commissioners are reported to have promised the retirement would be effected without much publicity and because of physical disability, and in addition they promised him "a very nice letter praising his work." To which Maj. Pratt is said to have replied: "You can keep the letter. It won't be worth the paper it's written on."

The course was all charted for the entry to Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford on the scene. Gen. Glassford saw service at the head of combat regiments and an artillery brigade in France during the World War and was wounded in action. Gen. Glassford retired from Army life in quest of more active life, so he has accepted the position of superintendent of police.

Washington is not a new city to Gen. Glassford, who is temporarily in the city arranging for a jubilee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars on Armistice Day. He received his first education in District schools.

A native of Las Vegas, N. Mex., the new police chief is 48 years old and 10 years the junior of Maj. Pratt. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1904, as the youngest member of his class. Before the World War he served at Fort Riley, Kans., as an instructor at West Point, in the Philippines, Hawaii, and on the Mexican border, during the 1913 skirmishes. All of his work was in the capacity of a Field Artillery officer.

Went to France in War.

During the World War he went to France with the First Division, as adjutant of the Fifth Field Artillery, and was subsequently promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel. After organizing an artillery school, and being put in command of the 103d Field Artillery, he was promoted to colonel and then to brigadier general in command of the Fifty-first Field Artillery.

He was cited for gallantry and awarded a Distinguished Service Medal after being slightly wounded in action.

Since the war he has done miscellaneous service at Fort Leavenworth, the Army War College, at Fort Sill, Okla., and in the inspector general's department at Washington. He was retired at his own request on July 31, this year, upon completion of 31 years service. For the past few months he has been managing his own ranch near Phoenix, Ariz.

Gen. Glassford is married to the former Cora Arthur Carleton, daughter of Maj. Gen. Guy Carleton, U. S. A., retired, and has four children. One son is at West Point. He has attended several art schools at various times.

Besides being a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, he belongs to the Army and Navy Club, the Arizona Club and the Phoenix Country Club.

Military Career.

Maj. Pratt likewise has had a military career that interspersed his service in the Police Department. He has held the post of Superintendent of Police since April 1, 1929.

A native of King George County, Va., Maj. Pratt came from a prominent Old Dominion family. One of his brothers is vice president of General Motors and the other is a physician at Fredericksburg.

His first job in Washington was with an express company, but shortly afterward, on August 1, 1896, he joined the Police Department. He served in the Seventh Precinct for four years and was transferred in 1900 to the detective bureau as a private. Promoted to detective sergeant in 1906, he remained with the bureau until 1915, when he was assigned to the United States attorney's office to assist in preparation of cases for the grand jury.

In 1917 he returned to the detective bureau, but a short time later he enlisted in the Officers Training Corps at Fort Myer, Va., and was subsequently commissioned captain in the Signal Corps and placed on active duty in October of the same year.

In Intelligence Service.

During the remainder of the World War he served in the intelligence division both in Newport News and in Washington. He was commissiond major in June, 1919, and remained in the War Department until his discharge on October 4, 1920. Afterward he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel in Officers Reserve Corps, a position he still holds.

Upon his discharge he returned to the police department, and, in 1922, became an inspector and assistant superintendent. He became chief of the Detective Bureau in January, 1929, and three months later was made chief of police.

Maj. Pratt several times has been commended for special work. He is reported to be independently wealthy because of successful stock transactions, and is a charter member of the George Washington Post of the American Legion and a member of the Board of Trade.

New Police Head Gets Chance to Meet Force

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, newly appointed superintendent of police, will have the opportunity of meeting with a considerable body of his men for the first time tonight at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held at the board room of the District Building, when the new Police and Fire Post, No. 2249, Veterans of Foreign Wars, receives its charter and its officers are installed.

Gen. Glassford was invited to attend the exercises three days ago, before the news of his appointment as police head. In order to allow as many of the policemen to meet their new chief as possible, officers of the post have made the installation an open one, inviting all members of the Metropolitan Police Department off duty to attend.

Besides Gen. Glassford, speakers will be Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Judge Robert E. Mattingly, Judge Isaac R. Hitt and David A. Hart, assistant United States attorney. The installation ceremonies will be conducted by Department Commander C. B. Jennings.

Glassford Walks Into Job Of Washington Police Chief

Gen. Pelham D. Glassford "walked into a job" when he went to Commissioner Crosby later in September to make traffic arrangements for the Veteran of Foreign Wars jubilee, which is to be held Armistice Day, it was learned in an interview last night.

The new chief of police met the Police Commissioner and William W. Bride, corporation counsel, at that time. A week later Gen. Crosby called at his office in the House Office Building and said, "Five minutes after you left, Mr. Bride and I decided that we wished you to be the new police chief."

"I protested that I did not want the position," Gen. Glassford said, "but the Commissioner persuaded me to consider it."

"A short time afterward Gen. Crosby again visited me, and I then decided to accept if time would be granted me to complete my work for the jubilee," Gen. Glassford asserted.

"The police commissioner and I agreed that I should be able to withdraw at any time if I wished, and I agreed to resign if I should be asked," the general said.

When asked as to the time he would take active charge of the police department, Gen. Glassford replied that he thought it would be shortly after November 11.

He came to Washington on September 15 to take charge of the Armistice Day Jubilee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which is to be held in the Washington Auditorium.

The general, who is tall, slender and youthful in appearance, smiled broadly when asked if he knew anything of the Washington Police Department. "A few days ago I was arrested at Ninth and Pennsylvania avenue for driving past a stop sign. Judge Robert E. Mattingly fined me $2 in police court."

Saying that he was a good soldier and could take orders as well as give them, the general said he would attack all the problems of his new office from a "common sense" standpoint.

Indicted Policemen Voted Defense Aid

Relief Association Also Sets Sum Aside for Their Families.

Aid for the eighteen policemen who were indicted by a recent grand jury on assault charges as an outgrowth of the investigation into "third degree" practices in the Police Department, was voted last night by the Policemen's Relief Association at Odd Fellows Hall.

The sum of $2,000 was appropriated for the defense of the accused policemen, on a motion presented by Lieut. Milton D. Smith, of the Traffic Bureau. An additional sum of $150 was appropriated for the immediate relief of some of the policemen's families. Otto Hauchild, of the corporation counsel's office, presided.

Three weeks ago the policemen's organization voted to permit men awaiting trial to draw on the association for the sum of $25 weekly for a period of five months.

SHUBERT SHOW FIRM PUT IN RECEIVERSHIP

Investment of $20,000,000 Owes $10,749,687; Leases Belasco Here.

New York, Oct. 20 (U.P.).—One of Broadway's most famous institutions, the theatrical organization of Lee and J. J. Shubert, was thrown into receivership today on complaint of a Chicago company to which the brothers owe $5,000—but the show will go on.

The two men, sons of a lowly Syracuse tailor, who came down to New York some 30 years ago, bucked the theatrical trust and built up an organization which owns 23 theaters, has leases on 26 others, and is interested in 19 more, have lost nearly $3,000,000 since the autumn stock market crash of 1929.

They attribute these losses to the general depression that has hit Broadway. Admission prices, in the last two years, have had to come down; real estate values have dropped, and they have had to close several of their houses.

Receivers Are Named.

The Federal court appointed Lee Shubert and the Irving Trust Co. to act as receivers. The receivers will continue producing shows pending further action by the court. A meeting of creditors and stockholders has been called for December 2.

The Shubert interests, representing an investment of $20,000,000, have among their outstanding obligations $10,749,687, according to the complaint of Gerson, Beesley & Hampton, Inc., of Chicago. There are outstanding debentures totaling $6,360,000.

In the year ended June 30, 1930, the corporation lost $1,230,000, and in the year ended last June 30 the losses totaled $1,670,000. Subsequent losses have not been tabulated, but it is indicated they have not been cut down.

In an effort to stem the tide of financial defeat, the Shubert brothers personally advanced $100,000 to the corporation in the last 30 days.

Operate Theater Here.

The Shuberts operate the Shubert-Belasco Theater in Washington under lease. The firm also was lessee of the Poli Theater, razed by the Government, which they are suing to recover losses occasioned by breaking the lease which they contend had several years yet to run.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ON the day when the mortal remains of Thomas A. Edison are being laid to their final rest, it seems fitting to recall the vital part he played in the creation and the development of the motion picture. Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, has expressed it possibly better than anyone else in the following brief statement:

"To the men and women of the motion picture industry the death of Thomas Alva Edison means much more than the passing of a great inventive genius. He was father of the motion picture. He it was who made possible in a practical sense the first frail mechanism which suggested the movement of figures on a screen. His was the genius that liberated the early motion picture from its prison in a cabinet, where it might be seen through a peep-hole by one person at a time, and threw it upon a screen to the view of hundreds of thousands of people.

"To the very time of his passing Thomas Alva Edison remained a stanch friend and champion of the art that was founded upon his own great achievements. Even in the lowly nickelodeon he saw the beginnings of a vast popular entertainment service. He saw in the first stilted entertainment pictures the struggle of a new art to rise to higher levels. When the crude, unsteady flickerings of a generation back had been transformed into clear, moving images, when electrical and photographic science had brought the beauty of music, the magic of speech and the warmth of color to the screen, none was more zealous than he in urging an open road for the further progress of the art.

"The world owes much to Thomas Alva Edison. And no debt of gratitude to his memory will be more deeply felt than by the host of men and women in the motion picture industry whose careers, whose progress and whose service were made possible by the greatness of his vision."

Recently a communication was received by this desk from Mr. Lawrence J. Anhalt, whose studio is in Essex, Conn., reading in part as follows: "The output of current dramatic writing being what it is, I am seeking in older fields plays worthy of intelligent production.

"What, in your opinion, is the best play ever written?

"I shall be grateful if you will name the play you would like to see produced—'the best ever written'—and, if you will, give your reasons, briefly written, for your choice.

"When the results are tabulated, announcement will be made of the production activities, in which eminent players and producers will cooperate."

Only yesterday I was apprised by Mr. Anhalt that as a result of his Nation-wide survey replies have already been received, and are still coming in, from university presidents, professors of dramatic literature, dramatic editors, literary editors, men and women distinguished in arts, letters, science and industry; political and legislative leaders, eminent churchmen and just plain, everyday lovers of the theater.

Mr. Anhalt now announces that any one interested in the best traditions of the theater who has not received a questionnaire is urged to send in a selection of a play, or several plays. What is the best play ever written, or the one you would most like to see produced?

The object is solely to secure a selection of immortal dramas, the production of which would be an event in the history of the theater and culture in America. Address letters to Anhalt Production Studio, Essex, Conn.

And never let me hear you complain again that the public never has any opportunity to say what it wants!

For fear I may not have mentioned Estelle Taylor in the column this week, I hasten to record that she is singing the "Shine On, Harvest Moon" and "Wabash Moon" medley as a result of an insistent request by Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York.

It seems that Miss Taylor was singing a few numbers informally in the Casino one evening and asked for requests from among the guests. Mayor Walker at every opportunity called for "Wabash Moon." Miss Taylor, never having heard of the song, found it a bit difficult to oblige, but decided that if an old song writer was so struck with any ballad as all that, it must be worth looking up. So she looked it up and liked it fully as much as Hizzoner had. Thus came into being the arrangement being heard at the Fox Theater this week.

Incidentally, Miss Taylor sang it for the first time publicly at her opening performance at the Fox last Friday afternoon.

It is reported by those who have been privileged to preview Helen Hayes' first stellar vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," adapted from Edward Knoblock's play of "Lullaby," that it will take rank as one of the outstanding productions of the year and that Miss Hayes will leap into a position of cinematic preeminence comparable to the exalted position she occupies among the stars of the traditional stage.

Many in Washington will recall those distant days when little Helen Hayes Brown was gaining her first experience as a member of Father Hurney's St. Patrick Players and in juvenile "bits" with the old Columbia Players, back in the days of A. H. Van Buren and Dorothy Bernard.

"The Sin of Madelon Claudet" will be an early booking in one of the local Loew houses, probably the Columbia.

Grateful acknowledgment is made to Mr. William C. Ewing—"Bill" to the most of you—of the Warner publicity department, for a handsome set of 11x14 photographs of Marian Marsh, soon to be seen with John Barrymore in "The Mad Genius" at the Metropolitan, taken against local backgrounds of historical interest during her recent visit to the Capital. It is surprising how much the beauty of our best scenery is enhanced by the presence of Miss Marsh standing in front of it!

Speaking of Helen Hayes, this charming young actress, who just finished playing opposite Ronald Colman in Sinclair Lewis' "Arrowsmith," quietly slipped back into New York from Hollywood last week, unheralded and unannounced. She begins rehearsals today in her new stage play, "The Good Fairy," to be produced by Gilbert Miller.

Washington will be scanning New York papers this morning to determine to what degree Manhattan's verdict agreed with ours in the matter of Mr. Miller's production of "The Sex Fable," which charmed audiences at the Belasco last week and opened in New York at the Henry Miller Theater last night.

I understand old Col. Francis Philippe Morse, who was utterly seduced by "The Sex Fable," sat up all night in Union Station meeting the trains with the mailing editions of the Gotham rags aboard!

I don't suppose by any chance you have a long shot that's sure to win out at Laurel this afternoon? Those darn moths in my spats again, and the nights are getting cool!

A Cold
Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve your cold at any stage. And genuine aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer from these things have found winter comfort in aspirin.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

ONE guaranteed formula for producing a well-rounded headache is an attempt to match any two of the colleges of the local group for a football game, as the District of Columbia committee for the unemployed is slowly learning.

There is more politics in the business of college football than in a decade of presidential nominations. What appears to be the simple matter of arranging a college football game is in reality an intricate, delicate piece of diplomacy involving ramifications that the lay football fan is not supposed to understand.

The proposed Maryland-Georgetown game was an example. Powerful emissaries of the unemployed committee visited the Maryland Athletic Board with high hopes of arranging the game. It looked simple enough. There apparently was no reason why Maryland should not play the game. But Maryland's refusal was not surprising to those who have observed the local football situation closely.

Against Georgetown, Maryland would have too much to lose and too little to gain. This column does not disparage the importance of a Maryland victory over Georgetown, which would be quite a feather in the cap of the Old Liners, indeed, but other factors pertinent to the two local institutions outweighed the possibility that Maryland would beat Georgetown.

Maryland, as a member of the Southern Conference, is in a position to bring to Washington any one of the 22 teams of high standing in football, which make up the conference. In the past few seasons, Maryland, with its attractive schedule, has intrenched itself firmly with Washington fans and has encroached deeply on the attendance that Georgetown has always claimed.

A Maryland-Georgetown game would definitely settle the superiority of either the Old Liners or the Hilltoppers. But Maryland is unwilling to risk defeat by Georgetown in the competition for local attendance. The Old Liners would prefer to sidestep Georgetown and glory in the mere supposition that they have the better team. It is significant that Georgetown has expressed its willingness to play Maryland. The Old Liners' excuse that "they must adhere to custom, which forbids participation in postseason games," ought not to mislead anybody.

The Crimson, Harvard's daily student publication, went out on the limb when it termed West Point an undesirable opponent for Harvard teams in view of the Cadets' rule which permits a player to see four-years' service on the varsity team in contrast to the three-year rule in vogue in all major colleges.

Harvard's good taste in withholding its criticism until it won a game from Army is questionable, at least.

Harvard and Yale, the remnants of the old Big Three, have a habit of dealing thusly with their opponents. Boston fans are not quickly forgetting Yale's dealings with Boston College when the Bulldogs scheduled and rescheduled the Eagles until they were able finally to score a victory for Old Eli. Then Yale cut Boston College abruptly off the schedule.

Reliable observers report that there was more rough riding in the second race at Laurel yesterday than during the previous thirteen days of the meeting.

Bob's Play, with Roussell up, appeared to be the winner as the field turned into the stretch with Bubola leading by a length. Bob's Play was making a fine bid to reach the leaders and was gaining with every stride until he was only a length out it at the furlong pole. At this point Prain, on Bubola, the leader, cut across the field sharply, causing Bob's Play to stumble and lose his rider. It was a miracle that Jockey Roussell suffered no serious injuries.

There was crowding, too, at the first turn when Bubola was forced wide and in the back stretch the ultimate winner was forced to pull up sharply to avoid going down as he was pocketed by Trice, All Columbia and Your Flag. Prain all but lost his seat on Bubola and the rough treatment he received in the back stretch doubtless led him to pay the field back in kind when he finally gained the lead on the home turn.

Mitchell Tops Capital Net Rankings

Mrs. Martinez Heads Women; U.S.L.T.A. Chief at Banquet.

DOOLY MITCHELL and Mrs. Ruth Martinez attained the highest rank tennis players can reach locally last night when they were rated the No. 1 players in the District of Columbia, as a large gathering of tennis enthusiasts sped the 1931 season into history with their annual banquet at Wardman Park Hotel.

It marked the first time either had topped the men's and women's lists. Mitchell was second in 1929 and 1930. Mrs. Martinez was second last year. Both are noted for the driving games. Both represented Washington in the national public parks championship in Detroit, Mitchell gaining the final round of the men's singles.

In reaching first place, Mitchell won the City of Washington and the public parks tournaments. He gained the final round in the Wardman Park tournament, where he met Eddie Jacobs, and lost in an upset to Bud Markey in the District championship, which fell to Eddie Yeomans, who was ranked in No. 2 place.

Defeat of Yeomans Decisive Factor.

The battle between Mitchell and Yeomans for the leading post was climaxed in the semifinal round of the Wardman event, when Mitchell won in three hard sets.

Mrs. Martinez won the District championship and the public parks title. Clara Tabler, who was ranked second, is a newcomer to the D. C. lists, but proved her mettle this year by reaching the final rounds of the City of Washington, the District and won the Wardman tournament.

Louis J. Carruthers, president of the U. S. L. T. A., the principal speaker, outlined the growth of organized tennis in the United States since the night, 50 years ago last month, the national body was formed with a membership of 33. It has grown until more than 100,000 men and women are active members, and many more thousands are, notably in public parks, are included in tennis' far flung family.

Speakers Introduced By Gilbert Hall.

Gilbert Hall, chairman of the banquet committee and toastmaster, introduced the speakers. Bob Considine read the rankings.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Fox talking films of Tilden, Pare, Vines, Lott, Helen Wills and Mrs. Whittingstall were shown, followed by a television exhibition arranged by C. Francis Jenkins, the inventor. Dancing capped the evening.

Steele Quick Victor Over Ginsburg on Mat

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Ray Steele, California grappler, used a body slam to throw Benny Ginsburg, of New York, after 18 minutes and 37 seconds of their finish wrestling match at the Coliseum tonight. Steele weighed 215 pounds, 5 more than his opponent.

In another finish bout Herbie Freeman, 220, of New York, threw Steve Znosky, 212, Poland, in 30:21. Three preliminaries all ended in falls before the time limits expired. Dr. Ralph Wilson, 206, Philadelphia, threw Andy Zaharoff, 215, Russia, in 22:51. Renato Gardini, 200, Italy, threw Bob Middlekoff, 203, Florida, in 16:53 and George Calza, 218, Italy, threw John Podubbny, 210, Russia, in 19:23.

RANKED AT TOP

Dooly Mitchell (upper) and Mrs. Ruth Martinez last night were ranked No. 1 players of the District of Columbia in the singles ratings of men and women for the 1931 season.

FRISCH WINS AWARD OF SCRIBES

Leads Klein in Votes as 'Most Valuable' Player in League.

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Frank Frisch, captain and second baseman of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, after rapping at the portals three previous times in vain, has crashed baseball's hall of fame as the National League's "most valuable player" for 1931.

Announcement of Frisch's selection, by vote of a committee of baseball writers, was made today by William J. Slocum of New York, president of the Baseball Writers Association of America. The association is perpetuating the "most valuable player" poll, which was officially dropped by the National League in 1929.

Frisch emerged the victor in a three-cornered battle of ballots with Chuch Klein, slugging outfielder of the Phillies, and Bill Terry, first baseman of the New York giants. Out of a possible maximum of 80 points Frisch topped the list with 65. Klein received 55 and Terry 53. No one else was a real contender for the honor, Elwood English, of the Cubs, in fourth place, collecting 30 points.

Twice Was Ranked Second.

Seven years ago, 1924, when the first official National League award was made, Frisch registered his first bid by finishing third to Vance, who collected the winner's $1,000. The former Fordham Flash then was the keystone man of the New York Giants' infield. After being traded to St. Louis, Frisch was runner-up to Paul Waner in 1927. He also placed second in last year's unofficial contest, trailing Hack Wilson.

Frisch and Terry this year were the only players who scored points on all eight of the writers' ballots. Klein placed on seven of the eight lists. Frisch had only one vote for first place, but piled up his winning total by getting five votes for second place, one for fourth and one for eighth. Terry had one first, one second, three fourths, one fifth, one seventh and one eighth.

The votes were tabulated on a basis of 10 points for first place, nine for second, and so on down the list of ten. Beyond ten, "honorable mention" took the place of points.

It was noteworthy that the three world series heroes of the Cardinals, Pepper Martin, Burleigh Grimes and Bill Hallahan, received no points whatever. They won honorable mentino, however, along with more than a dozen others.

Klein, Phila.	55	Jim Elliott, Phila.	6
Terry, N. Y.	53	Quinn, Bklyn.	6

Army Eleven Driven for Eli Game

All Major Colleges Groom Squads for Saturday Frays.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Army scrimmaged at full speed today in preparation for the Yale game. Felix Vidal was in at Sebastian's place at one half back position, while fields worked in Stecker's place at full. Herb played for Killday.

Two full teams ran through the Army offensive. Graham, Palmer, Brown and Cregar were other ball carriers used. Kopsack and Lonkenan played the ends on the varsity. Evans, Senter and Beasley were all used at Center. Tomorrow Army will have a protracted period of defensive work against Yale plays.

Army Plays Baffle Yale Regulars.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 20 (U.P.).—All the Yale football players who are likely to get into the Army game Saturday had a hard afternoon's work today, consisting of a supervised scrimmage with the varsity on the defense against Army plays. Ducky Pond, who scouted the Army last Saturday, was head coach of a strong gray team in his offensive charges and passes against the varsity players. The blue players had some difficulty in diagnosing some of the plays.

Hawley and Sargent were on the ends; Wilbur and Hall at tackle; Nichols and Converse at guard, and Mallin at center. In the back field were Parker, quarter; Booth and Taylor at half back, and levering at full back.

Princeton Given Hard Session.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Another gruelling two-hour session of blocking and tackling was ordered for the Princeton varsity today as Coach Wittmer pitted two varsity men, a guard and a tackle, against one side of an opposing line. Every member of the squad saw action during the intensive workout, with Billings, Capt. Yeckley and Fisher outstanding. Announcement that Corbin, Zundel, Havens and Galey had been promoted to the varsity squad was made today.

Huddle Is Abandoned By Boston College.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Boston College has discontinued the huddle, although it was among the first to adopt that method of signal calling. Head Coach Joe McKenney said he felt that "in returning to the huddle after every play we have been giving our opponents an opportunity to regain their wits and to reorganize their strength."

Harvard Concentrates On Line Play.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 20 (U.P.).—Harvard concentrated on line play in practice today, anticipating a difficult session with the Texas forward wall, which outweighs the Crimson by a generous margin. The loss of Jim Esterly, left guard, and the fact that Henry Myerson, right guard, is not in the best of condition, has created a guard problem on Soldiers Field that Head Coach Eddie Casey is not finding easy to solve.

Ohio State Primes for Northwestern.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Plays that are designed to combat Northwestern's driving attack were handed out in abundance to Ohio State University gridders today as preparations went forward on the Buckeye campus for the invasion of the Purple Saturday afternoon.

Most of the time this week, however, will be spent on defense, Coach

BYRD EASES MARYLAND DRILLS

Abandons Scrimmage for V. M. I. Game at Richmond.

SEEKING to avert further reduction of man power through injuries, Coach Curley Byrd has decided not to scrimmage his Maryland University Football Team before its game Saturday with V. M. I. at Richmond. Two regulars, Al Woods, quarter back, and Ted Keenan, tackle, are nursing injuries now that may keep them out of the struggle in which Maryland will try for its second Southern Conference victory.

The light order of practice for Maryland's varsity has been in vogue ever since October 7, when the Old Liners were preparing for the Navy contest that resulted in a gratifying 6-to-0 triumph. And having held Kentucky to a 6-to-6 tie without benefit of scrimmage, Byrd believes the plan of taking his charges along easily between games is well justified. This plan is rather unusual, most other football teams undergoing at least one hard practice scrimmage weekly.

Byrd Cautions Charges.

While V. M. I. on past performances does not figure to win, Maryland will take no chances, if Byrd's warnings are heeded. The Old Line chieftain holds fears that the rival mentor, Bill Raftery, has been teaching the Cadets a special series of surprise plays. Byrd has been cautioning the Old Liners to be set for anything when they are on the defense.

V. M. I.'s team is as big as Maryland's, but lacks experience. Whereas most of the Old Line regulars are seniors, the majority of the Cadets are juniors or sophomores.

Chunky Travers, a native of nearby Alexandria, is the star of the Lexington outfit. This sturdy half back was the spearhead in V. M. I.'s winning attack against Virginia a week ago.

Carnera-Paulino Bout In New York Banned

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission announced today that Madison Square Garden could not bring Primo Carnera and Paulino Uzcudun together November 23 in a ten-round heavyweight bout.

The commission decided that Paulino was too small for the 265 Italian giant. Although the Garden had announced the match, no sanction had been requested of the commission.

Sun Beau Retirement Confirmed by Kilmer

Laurel, Md., Oct. 20.—Willis Sharpe Kilmer, owner of the 6-year-old Sun Beau, leading money winning horse of the world, at Laurel today confirmed the report that the son of Sun Briar—Beautiful Lady, would be thrown out of training and retired permanently. The horse has been training here for the Washington Handicap. His winnings total $375,744 and he has earned cups and trophies estimated to be worth $80,000.

MILLS VIEWS G.U. CONTEST GLOOMILY

Withholds Regulars From Drills for Mich. State.

ADMITTING his team has only the slimmest kind of a chance to win, Coach Tommy Mills of Georgetown withheld all of the Hilltop regulars from scrimmage yesterday in preparation for the Michigan State contest scheduled Saturday in East Lansing, Mich. The scrimmage, which lasted for an hour, saw the second and third string players in action.

The regulars, hardly without exception, are battered and bruised as a result of their last two encounters with New York University and Duquesne University, but as they have been taking things easy in practice Mills hopes all will be able to perform against the Spartans, who, according to reports, are in prime physical condition.

Among the ailing varsity men are Dubofsky and Hudson, linemen, and Bordeau, Alenty and Donoghue, backs. Each of this group is regarded a necessary unit in the Mills machine. Only King, quarterback, remains in good condition among the back field players.

Mills' Outlook Is Gloomy.

Mills has almost despaired of regaining the services of Ben Gellis, sophomore half back, before the Boston College game, scheduled October 31. Gellis sustained a bad knee injury in the N. Y. U. clash. Mills' outlook is further clouded by the protracted absence of Wilmer Bradley, another sophomore who in his only appearances early in the season gave promise of developing into Georgetown's chief offensive threat. Bradley is still in the hospital with a fractured collarbone, the result of a fall in practice two weeks ago.

In regard to the forthcoming game, the second between the Hilltoppers and Spartans in as many years, Mills feels that Georgetown will be doing well if it holds the Crowley-coached eleven to a respectable score. The Spartans, Mills claims, possess one of the best back fields in the country with Eliowitz and Monnett, who appeared here last year in Griffith Stadium in the starring roles.

Spartans "Laying" For Hilltop.

Last year Georgetown created quite an upset by defeating the Spartans, 14-13; and if word conveyed to the Hilltop is correct, Crowley's men are "laying" for the Hilltoppers this year.

The Georgetown squad departs tomorrow at 4:30 p. m. and will hold its final drill in East Lansing Friday afternoon.

Harvard and Army Sign 4-Year Pact

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Far from having any idea of severing relations with West Point, as suggested by the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, Harvard begins another four-year football contract with Army next year.

The 1932 gridiron schedule, announced today, books Army for a later date, November 11, the game to be played in Harvard Stadium. The fourth contest of the new series, in 1935, will be played at West Point, under the terms of the agreement. Next year's Army-Harvard game, as well as that in 1934, also will be played in Cambridge.

William J. Bingham, Harvard's director of athletics, made the 1932 schedule public after asserting: "Athletic relations between Harvard and West Point have been and always will be, I hope, cordial. Harvard only asks that its opponents certify players who meet its own scholastic requirements. The Army has always done so in the past and present relations guarantee it will do so in the future."

The Crimson, in an editorial, maintained Army and Harvard had nothing in common.

CHARITY GRID PLAN HERE PUSHED

Adams Seeks Hilltop-C. U. Game or Two Other Contests.

HAVING failed to secure the aid of Maryland University in staging a game with Georgetown University for local charity, George J. Adams, chairman of the District of Columbia Committee on Employment, is now engaged in efforts to schedule Georgetown with Catholic University or each of this pair with out-of-town teams.

Adams proposes to schedule Georgetown and Catholic in a game on December 12 in Griffith Stadium. This game, he believes, would have tremendous drawing power at the "gate" and yield a handsome profit to be contributed to the work of the Employment Committee. But in the event this game does not materialize, Adams hopes to secure two teams from other cities to provide opposition for the local schools, which have signified their willingness to help in raising funds for unemployment relief.

Plans Brookland Game For Dec. 5.

Under the alternative plan, Adams proposes to stage the game with Catholic as a participant in the Brookland Stadium on December 5, and the Georgetown contest in Griffith Stadium, on December 12.

Adams yesterday conferred with Arthur J. Bergman, athletic director at Catholic University, later announcing Bergman had assured him the Brookland school will aid him in every way possible with the reservation that the game scheduled for Catholic University be acceptable to that institution.

A proposal of a Georgetown-Maryland game was declined on Monday by the Maryland Athletic Board, which based its decision on a Maryland custom of not playing postseason games. The board now has under consideration a plan to designate for charity the proceeds of one of the Old Line's regularly scheduled games.

Florida Counties Vote for Mutuels

Miami, Fla., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Florida's new law legalizing dog and horse racing with pari-mutuel betting by local option, apparently was ratified by wide margins in three county referendums yesterday.

Incomplete returns showed racing favdred for six tracks in Dade County, two in Palm Beach and one in Clay County, next door to Jacksonville.

Several other counties have proposed racing plants, but referendums will be held at later dates.

The Rev. C. W. Duke, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Tampa, announced that injunctions would be sought to prevent operations of tracks in any counties where the law is ratified.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

OUTMANNED, outmaneuvered and generally outmatched, a cucumber-green Eastern High School grid team, largely through some wideawake ball-hawking and great tackling on the part of its captain, Charlie Mades, was barely nosed out, 6 to 0, yesterday afternoon by a big, fumbling and notably stronger Central High squad before 4,000 fans at Central Stadium.

Central needed handles on the ball yesterday. For three quarters of the game, it saw its every battering march stopped as pure dairy butter fingers let go of the old hoghide.

A blocked kick, penalties aggregating 65 yards, including a fine of 35 yards for interfering with a pass, and six fumbles was the bitter drink Central had to quaff during the course of the game. Five of the six fumbles were recovered by Eastern, three by Lieb and two by Courtney, and the blocked kick and assorted penalties made it possible for Eastern to take an impotent command of the ball in Central territory during a major portion of the game.

Eastern Attack Weak; Foe's Defense Strong.

A complete absence of an offensive thrust spelled Eastern's downfall in a large scrawl. Tony Palmer, best bet of the Eastern ball luggers, was sent against the sinewy Central line time after time, staring his drives unwisely from a position not 3 yards behind the line of scrimmage. Not until the last quarter did he run from kick formation, his most obvious forte, and then he had been burnt out.

Central scored on the tail end of a drive which started late in the third period and wound up in the middle of the fourth. Holding on to the ball for the first time since the game began, Cumberland, the prime offender, and Koscis and King, aided by some superior blocking on the part of Gibbons, worked the ball down the field from 10 yards on the other side of the middle to Eastern's 27-yard line.

Koscis drove 9 yards for the first down. Central was fined for back-field motion, but Cumberland passed to Buscher to Eastern's 9-yard line. Koscis, behind good interference, got through the line, bowled over two Eastern secondaries and carried the third with him over the goal. Cumberland missed the placement, but there was no apprehension in the Central stands for everyone knew that it was a lead Eastern could not approach.

Final Whistle Halts Central in Drive.

Central came back in the closing minutes to engineer what looked like another touchdown, but Umpire O'Meara's horn tooted bravely and the game was called with the ball on Eastern's 7-yard line, put there by successive line bucks from the 30-yard line, and a sharp low pass from Cumberland to Buscher. It would have been another touchdown. Eastern's line, its only hope, was out on its feet, notably Mades, who had been shifting through the line all afternoon to toss the big Central backs for ignominious losses, two of which also caused them to fumble the ball.

Eastern, by dint of fumble recovering and what is known as "the breaks," had four chances to score. The nearest it got was Central's 3-yard stripe, the result of Cumberland and King interfering with Courtney on a wild 40-yard pass from Boyd in midfield. Three line bucks from the 5-yard line gained Eastern

Boom-Time Millionaires Good Guys When They Had It, They Can Now Reflect

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—In observing the effects of the depression on sports, I have noticed that among the people who have been hit are some ex-millionaires of the wealthy sportsman type who did not deserve to be rich anyway. There was a large class of idle rich patronizing sport in one way or another a few years ago. They always bought the most expensive tickets for the big prize fights, and they traveled to the big horse races in private cars with gold-plated tailboards. Some of them owned horses, others owned prize fighters, and all of them enjoyed themselves tremendously for several years.

Often, in watching them at their pleasures, I used to wonder what any of them had done in the way of productive toil or constructive leadership to deserve the money which they were tossing around so freely in those days. I will say this for them, that they were great spenders while they had it. The boom-time millionaire was a very hard man on a dollar, and now that he has lost it all back it is only fair to say that money to him was merely something to spend, not to save.

Economics is not my line, but I gather the meaning of the depression to this class of people is merely that for the time being they will have to do a dollar's worth of work for a dollar, if they can find the work. It is no pleasant thing to be suddenly reduced from a condition of yachts and wine and gambling at the casinos to a state of more or less genteel poverty. But the easy spenders of the boom time were good sports, and those among them who didn't damage themselves too much physically by their way of living when they were in the money will be good enough sports to take their punishment now.

Down in Florida in the winters of the boom, it was an amazing thing to see a young man drop into a broker's office in his swimming suit on his way to the beach in the morning, scan the electric tape for a few minutes, put in an order with a clerk and come back from his swim a couple of hours later to find himself several thousand dollars richer, without posting a dollar of capital in the deal. That same night the young man might toss the day's winnings right back at a roulette wheel.

Office Boy Gained $3,500 in Day.

I remember a young fellow who had been an office boy on a newspaper, picking up $8,500 in a margin trade one day at Miami Beach and about $2,000 more the same afternoon at the Hialeah horse track. Later on he bought stock in a big firm at something like $25 a share and held it until it reached about $200. His wife wished to sell, but he thought he knew better, and at last one morning they woke up broke. Still, this was all right with them, for they had never done an hour's work for the money and they had had a great time while it lasted.

Another young man revived one morning to find himself on a boat bound for France. During the afternoon he spent some time in a broker's office on board, and that evening he said to an acquaintance: "I feel terrible. Here I spend most of a week in an unconscious condition, and yet when I look at the quotations today I find I have made more

COE SPRINTERS RUN ONE-TWO IN FEATURE AT LAUREL

Khorasan, at 10 to 1, Beats Surfboard in Fourth Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 20.—A big surprise awaited the running of the Fairlee, for 3-year-olds, feature of the card. The outsider, Khorasan, carrying the Canadian silks of the Seagram Stable, was home an easy winner over the Greentree Stable's Surf Board and Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Polly's Play, the filly which was made favorite by the public, came in third, and Jubilate was fourth.

Five started in the race, and for some reason Polly's Play was in demand, and when her price was forced down to even money, the players began to scatter their money on others, seeking a long price. All prices went down except on Khorasan, the son of Omar Khayyam, which was overlooked. Blind Lane and Jubilate and also Surf Board, receded in the mutuels.

The pace was cut out by V. Smith on Surf Board, and he looked like a winner, but when Khorasan challenged at the sixteenth, it was all up with Surf Board. The winner paid $21.60. He was timed for the mile and one-sixteenth at 1:46.

Kai Feng Never Headed In the Sixth.

The Glenmount Claiming Handicap, sixth race, in which the horses were entered for $5,000 each, proved one of the best contests of the day. E. R. Bradley's Kai Feng, under a hustling ride by Fator, led all the way and won by three lengths. He was odds-on favorite and paid 3.90. Sidney Grant, an outsider, made a spurt in the stretch, guided by M. Garner, and got the place, paying better than 2 to 1. Berber, early contender, was third. Time, 1:45; 1 1-16 miles.

W. R. Coe's Masked Ball won the Tyrone Purse and her running mate, Black Majesty, was second, and Le Mar Stock Farm's Misstep, a champion of other days, making his first start since last year, was third. This was a fast race, run in 1:11 3-5. Masked Ball passed Black Majesty at the sixteenth to win by a length and a half. Misstep was a length behind Black Majesty. The winning entry paid $5.10.

Jockey Roussell Hurt in Spill.

Jockey Roussell having suffered scalp wounds and a cut in the wrist by his fall in the second race, W. Nertney rode his mount, Miss Kiluna, in the third. Mrs. John D. Hertz's French Duchess won the race eased up. Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Rabbit Skin was second and R. A. Fairbarn's Sarietta, third. Steffen took French Duchess to the front soon after the start, and she drew away. E. R. Bradley's Betty Farrell, second choice, ran a dull race throughout. The Charlotte Hall Purse was for 2-year-old fillies at 6 furlongs, and French Duchess ran it in 1:12 4-5. Odds-on favorite, French Duchess paid $3.90.

C. O. Ferguson's Bubola, a filly by Bubbling Over, won the second race in a drive, after having run into Bob's Play, choice, causing the horse to fall, and V. Roussell, jockey on Bob's Play, suffered a hard fall, the field of horses running over the prostrate lad. Due to the careful shying of the horses around the boy, he was not seriously injured. Trice got the place, and All Columbia was third. This was to have been Bob's Play's last race at the meeting, for he was placed on the outside of the field because of refusal to enter the stall gate and delaying the start. Placing a horse on the outside at this track means to automatically bar him. It appeared Bob's Play had the race won when bumped. The winner paid $8.90. Trice was $16.20 for place. The time was 1:46 2-5, a mile and a sixteenth.

—Laurel Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 20.—The Meadows Steeplechase, which features the Laurel card tomorrow, has a field of nine of the better grade of jumpers. HUFFY has been running in improved form, winning his last two races at the Laurel course in commanding fashion, and with 145 pounds up, should again score, but the opposition will be more difficult to overcome.

CHENANGO, with 160 pounds, is a dependable jumper, and has the class, but he has not run over this course since the fences have been changed around, and may need this race as a conditioner. DRAPEAU did not run to his best form last out, but is expected to improve, and may beat REDBRIDGE for show money. These four horses seem to stand out over the others, unless Gracie should run to best form. This is the best balanced field of the meeting for taking the fences, and will surely stimulate the attendance. The people turn out for a steeplechase, but do not bet on them like they back their choices in flat racing.

FIRST RACE—In the first race for maiden 2-year-old fillies, DONNELLA looks best. She has only to go five and a half furlongs, and has been tiring at a longer route. She has much early speed, and appears to be in the right spot. BOSCOBEL, which was third in the Breeders' Futurity here last week should force the pace. BIG AMERICA has had a rest and the short route will suit her also. She should not be out of the money.

THIRD RACE—In the third race 2-year-olds will go a mile. SANDWRACK, winner at the meeting twice, should make it three in a row. In both races he beat stronger fields than this one, and Monday kept well in front of Flaming Mamie. STEPPING SISTER will figure in the result, and if she can go a mile, will be very dangerous. LOUIS MERRYMAN is a long-shot possibility.

FOURTH RACE—The fourth race makes three for 2-year-olds. This also is a mile. HAGERSTOWN'S last race entitles him to consideration. He beat STEPPING SISTER at this meeting in 1:13, which makes it appear he can go the route. ZOSABA may be the favorite, and should at least be the contender. There are better horses probably on the eligible list, but they have little chance of starting. LINE OF FIRE could win if he gets in.

FIFTH RACE—FORTUNATE YOUTH has been running to best form, winning here and at Havre de Grace. He looks best in the fifth event. SEA FOX had speed in New York and may be too fast for the Labrot horse. CARUSO has not been himself in a long time, and is a bad actor. If at his best he could beat these. He should be third.

SIXTH RACE—LeMar Stock Farm is due to take another purse in the sixth race. The stable has an entry, MOUTHPIECE and MADWIND, both very fast. Either could win. WAR PLANE should be the most dangerous contender against the entry. THE CRANE won a good race, and will be in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—COCKRILL will make his first start of the meeting in the seventh race, and is said to be on edge. He is the class of the race and should win. DOUBLE O. is the most probable contender. OLD TIMES can run with this sort, and should show.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAG POLE, $11.10, $3.70, $3.60; BROADWAY LIGHTS, $3.00, $2.80; RENEWED, $7.10.

FLAG POLE, sent into the thick of contention, was kept on the inside of HAPPY WARRIOR to save all possible ground, took command when straightened into the home stretch and, well handled thereafter, had enough left to withstand BROADWAY LIGHTS. Latter, kept within striking distance of the leaders, responded when called on, swung to the outside for the final drive and closed stoutly. RENEWED, prominent the entire trip, held on well for the closing test. He was worked out a mile.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:20. Off at 2:28½. Winner, C. O. Ferguson's ch. f. *Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUBOLA, $8.90, $4.90, $3.20; TRICE, $16.20, $7.20; ALL COLUMBIA, $4.00.

BUBOLA, allowed to reach his full stride early, went to the leaders when approaching the home stretch, swerved to the inside when taking command nearing the final furlong pole, and had to be stoutly urged to outstay TRICE. Latter raced BABOO into submission, gained a head and came again, leaving the field. ALL COLUMBIA, kept in close attendance of the leaders, had little trouble in saving third after BOB'S PLAY fell. YOUR FLAG had to be taken up when BOB'S PLAY fell. TANTALIZING could never reach the leaders. GRADISET had no mishaps. JERICO had no speed.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Charlotte Hall. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 2:59½. Winner, Mrs. J. D. Hertz's ch. f. (2), by Epinard—Grey Duchess. Trained by W. Knapp. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRENCH DUCHESS, $3.90, $2.70, $2.40; RABBIT SKIN, $3.50, $2.90; SARIETTA, $4.70.

FRENCH DUCHESS, quickest to begin, raced along with SARIETTA until leaving the back stretch, assumed an easy lead midway of the turn and, shaking off a stout effort from RABBIT SKIN at the final furlong, came away smartly when called on thereafter. RABBIT SKIN, steadied along early, made a determined effort when straightened into the home stretch, but was not good enough. SARIETTA had good early speed and continued gamely in the final test.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Tyrone. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:32½. Winner, W. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MASKED BALL (entry), $5.10, $4.20, $3.20; BLACK MAJESTY (entry), $4.20, $3.20; MISSTEP, $7.30.

MASKED KNIGHT, rated in nearest pursuit of BLACK MAJESTY, moved to the pacemaker without effort and was going away after assuming command in the final sixteenth. BLACK MAJESTY displayed keen early speed, saved ground and had speed in reserve when allowing his stable mate to win. MISSTEP outpaced for the first three furlongs, entered contention approaching the home stretch and was going stoutly at the end. MAGNIFICO saved ground to enter contention, but weakened during the final furlong. ROBIN'S EGG was unable to threaten the leaders.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Fairlee. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:08. Winner, Seagram Stable's ch. g. (3), by Omar Khayyam—Evelyn Wells. Trained by W. H. Bunloe. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13, 1:39 2-5, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KHORASAN, $21.60, $5.10, $2.80; SURF BOARD, $3.70, $2.70; POLLY PLAY, $2.30.

KHORASAN, kept close to his field from the start, was sent through a narrow passage between the leaders when moving out of the back stretch, swung to the outside of SURF BOARD when being straightened into the home stretch, wore the latter down and was slowly drawing clear under pressure. SURF BOARD shook off BLIND LANE after five furlongs, was steadied along, but was unable to withstand the winner's effort in the final drive.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500. The Glenmont Claiming Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:37. Off at 4:37½. Winner, E. R. Bradley's ch. c. (4), by Kai Sang—Dauntless. Trained by H. J. Thompson. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KAI FENG, $3.90, $3.40, $2.80; SIDNEY GRANT, $6.80, $4.60; BERBER, $4.00.

KAI FENG outran his field to the first turn, was taken under restraint when moving into the back stretch, shook off SOLACE and held sway during the final three furlongs. SIDNEY GRANT, reserved off the early pace, came with good courage for the final test. BERBER, rated then usual in the early stages, held on well when put to a drive. REPLEVIN raced on the outside of his field for the entire trip.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:16½. Winner, T. Sullivan's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOT FREE, $8.40, $5.00, $2.90; MY SIS, $7.40, $4.00; KADIAK, $2.80.

SCOT FREE, away quickly and sent into a forward position, reached the pacemaker midway of the far turn, was forced extremely wide into the home stretch, but continued gamely to wear MY SIS down in the final sixteenth. MY SIS, going in her best form, sprinted into a good lead on the back stretch, was rated along until challenged, came wide into the home stretch, but held on well.

Laurel Notes

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 20.—W. R. Coe's Polonaise, a candidate for the Selima Stakes here Saturday, opened the eyes of those who saw her move this morning in which she reeled off a mile in 1:40 4-5, about the best workout of the session. The record for the Selima is 1:39 1-5.

H. P. Headley's Modern Queen arrived today from Kentucky, to start in the Selima, and worked a mile in fast time.

Plucky Play, candidate for the Washington Handicap, galloped a mile in 1:45 3-5. Curate showed a mile in 1:42 2-5.

Laurel has had a great break in the weather, and as an evidence of the success the amount handled by the pari-mutuels last Saturday scaled $600,000, and the total for Friday and Saturday was over $1,000,000, the second time during the meeting the total for two days has passed the million mark. The attendance has increased over that of last year.

Trainer Ervine has the S. W. Labrot horses at high pitch, as was shown in the feature yesterday, and the Futurity Saturday.

Edward J. Brennan, who came down from Baltimore, stated that the Maryland Jockey Club had thrown open the Pimlico infield for steeplechasing next Wednesday, October 28, and Saturday, October 31, between 8 and 10 a. m.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

STRANGE as it seems, the memorial to the Battle of Bunker Hill does not stand on Bunker Hill, and stranger yet, the battle of Bunker Hill was really never fought.

The order issued by the Committee of Safety, June 16, 1775, was to fortify Bunker Hill. However, after consultation, the Colonial officers decided to fortify Breed's Hill instead, and it was on that hill that the first important battle of the Revolutionary War took place. The huge granite shaft which rises to a height of 221 feet, stands on Breed's Hill, and as nearly as can be ascertained, on the exact spot where Gen. Warren fell.

The battle of Breed's Hill, as it should be called, was fought on the spot where the memorial now stands, but not only was the battle misnamed, but Breed's Hill has come to be called Bunker Hill. The real Bunker Hill, about 2,000 feet away, has been lost sight of entirely, in the popular mind, and is now covered with houses.

Eight players on the one-armed baseball team of Winnipeg, Manitoba, have but one arm each. For a long time, only players with one arm were allowed on the team, but the rule was broken to make room for Jack Peppin. Jack has two arms, but only one leg. This unusual team was organized five years ago, and in 1927 won 43 out of 46 games.

MRS. MECKLEY OUSTS MID-ATLANTIC GOLF CHAMPION

District Star Winner in Tourney

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE chief feature of the first round of match play yesterday in the Middle Atlantic women's golf championship on the Indian Spring course was the elimination of Mrs. M. Louise Bell, Rodgers Forge, the defending champion. She was defeated by Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, District champion, on the final green, 1 up.

The luck of the draw brought the two champions together at the head of the championship flight, with Mrs. Meckley also the medalist of the tournament. While playing in the qualification round on Monday Mrs. Meckley had the misfortune to sprain her ankle and limped around the course yesterday with the aid of a cane and a large bandage. She was 1 down at the turn and was 2 down on the fourteenth tee.

Mrs. Meckley Rallies.

Mrs. Meckley played the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth holes in a birdie and two pars to become 1 up, but Mrs. Bell squared the match with a par on the seventeenth green, Mrs. Meckley finally won with a par 4 on the eighteenth hole. Her medal score was 82, one less than the card with which she won the medal and only two strokes over the women's record for the course.

The Meckley-Bell contest was only one of the many real battles of the day. Mrs. W. F. Peterson, Elkridge, made her match all square against Miss Susan Hacker, Chevy Chase, by holing a 25-foot putt on the eighteenth green for a win. On the nineteenth, however, she missed a putt not more than three feet in length and lost the match.

Mrs. Rhyne Wins On 20th Hole.

Mrs. J. O. Rhyne, Congressional, carried Miss Edith McHenry, Elkridge, to the twentieth hole, when Miss McHenry lost by taking three putts. Mrs. E. A. Rule, Kenwood, won on the twentieth hole from Mrs. George Elliott, of Chevy Chase.

With the exception of Mrs. Bell all of the favorites in the championship survived for the second round of match play this morning. The summary:

FIRST FLIGHT—Mrs. Betty P. Meckley (Ind. Spring) defeated Mrs. M. Louise Bell (Rodgers Forge), 1 up; Mrs. J. O. Rhyne (Cong.) defeated Miss Edith McHenry (Elkridge), 1 up, 20 holes; Mrs. Hume Wrong (Chevy Chase) defeated Mrs. C. K. Osborne (Army-Navy), 7 and 6; Mrs. J. JUNIOR RIFLE HONORS TO WESTERN Local Riflists First in Prone-Standing; Score 908.

IN the opening junior rifle matches conducted by the National Rifle Association the Western High School Rifle Team placed first in the prone-standing division and tied for first honors in the highest division of the prone class, according to announcement made yesterday by H. H. Goebel, manager of the junior division of the association.

Western's score in the prone-standing division was 908 out of a possible 1,000, 8 points above its closest competitor, Grover Cleveland High School, St. Louis, Mo. The local rifle team's score in the prone division was 495 out of a possible 500, tying the Fresno, Calif., High School. Shooting in the second division of the prone matches the Western girls placed fifth, considering ties, with a score of 476.

Central Boys, Girls Attain Honors.

Central High boys placed third in the first division of the prone matches with a score of 487 and Central High girls placed seventh, scoring 762, in the prone-standing matches. McKinley High tied for third place, with a score of 479, in the second division of the prone matches.

The matches are fired over a period of eight months in three series of five matches in each series, a match being fired every two weeks. At the conclusion of each series trophies are awarded.

Fournier Gets Post At Boys Club Here

Edgar M. Fournier, former director of boys' clubs at St. Louis and Worcester, Mass., has succeeded August E. Mascaro as assistant director of the Boys Club of Washington. Mr. Fournier has had years of experience in boys' club work and is expected to prove quite an asset to the local organization.

Harry Child, formerly on the pitching staff of the Washington Baseball Team, has succeeded J. W. White as physical director of the club. Mr. Child has had a varied career in athletics, starring in basket ball, baseball, football, swimming and boxing. He left the Washington Team because of an injury to his pitching arm which forced him to give up professional baseball. The club has been signally recognized in the athletic world recently. William E. Russell, a member of the board of directors, being elected president of the A. A. U., and Charles Fyfe, director of the club, being given the post of chairman of registration, A. A. U.

De Molay Calls Court Practice for Sunday

The De Molay basketball team will hold its first practice of the year next Sunday afternoon in Laurel Armory. Hall, Brown, the Sinclair boys, McIntosh, Thayer and Anderson, last year's regulars, have all passed 21 years of age, the limit, and will play this year under the name of Phi Delta Zeta.

The De Molay team will be built anew. All new candidates are asked to report Sunday, at 2:30 o'clock, or call District 8163. Last year's team made a good showing in The Post's A. A. U. tournament.

BOOM-TIME SPORTS WERE GOOD FELLOWS

money in this period than you can make by a year of hard work. It is very disgusting."

There were around the sport business in those days, especially at the big fights and the horse tracks, a number of men in the late thirties and early forties who were generally pointed out as highly successful hustling young American business executives. They wore good clothes well, they drank hard at night, they drove themselves through a hard social routine, and somehow they managed to find a few hours a day to spend at their desks. They were all rich on paper and pyramiding their riches, but they were not really so precocious as they seemed to be. They were not good executives, but, in most cases, merely good salesmen and gay gamblers, worth in a normal labor market possibly $100 a week.

Liked to Mix With Sport Crowd.

They like to be pointed out as successful young executives and big men of the country, and it was their vanity which attracted them to sport, for they knew that when they mixed with the sport crowd, especially the newspaper writers, at drinking parties, they would be mentioned in print.

In honest industrial value, however, it will have to be confessed that many of them didn't amount to much, and as for their financial gains, it wasn't their winnings that proved the point but their utter inability to call the turn of the market and get out with their profits. Most of them stayed in and went broke.

They were an amiable lot, meant no harm. A big game was running in which it was hard to lose, so they just bought a few chips to start and rode the market to the top. Talking to a young man of this type one day, I remarked that I had never imagined such high gambling as I had seen at Bradley's tables in Palm Beach, where the most ordinary punter might fritter away in one evening enough money to buy a home for a family and send half a dozen kids through college.

"This isn't serious gambling at all," he said. "That is mere slot machine gambling compared with the stock exchange, where I play."

Not Half Bad Sports, As a Class.

As a class, they were not half bad sports, democratic and generous when the going was good, and I think most of them would be willing to admit now that they were not really the shrewd young business men they thought they were, but just high rollers who were having a bit of luck.

Certainly there is no reason to bear them malice or gloat because they got their needings after all. They supported the yacht business, the horse business, the fur, jewelry, and liquor business, and they made the $1,000,000 fights possible. Not many of them will ever come back, but they were kings for a day, anyway.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 20.—Continuing preparations for the game with Princeton, to be played in Palmer Stadium, Princeton, on Saturday, Head Coach Rip Miller and his assistants gave over most of the time in today's practice session to perfecting special plays and putting more dash into the regular formations, with particular stress to blocking. A skeleton scrimmage was held to carry this program into effect and toward the close of the session a regular scrimmage against the Squad B shock troops was held.

Considerable time was also given to improving the work of the kickers. The Tars are admittedly weak in punting, a department in which they have been strong in previous years. Kane, Samuels, Konrad, Walkup, Waybright and Hampson, regarded as the outstanding booters of the squad, all had a good inning of this phase of work. Of this group, all are back field men with the exception of Kane, who is making a strong bid for a tackle berth.

Kirn Will Play Saturday.

Lou Kirn, regarded as the ace of the backfield men, who has been on the casualty list for three weeks, went through the signal and formation drills, but did not get into the heavier work. His place was taken by Joe Tschirgi, whose improvement over last year has been marked. With Denny at quarter, Campbell and Konrad completed the backfield quartet. Kirn is rapidly recovering from his injury and will be fit for the battle against Princeton, but the coaches will not work him hard unless occasion warrants. Another regular who returned to the squad is Thompson, regular left guard, who collapsed during the game with Maryland two weeks ago. He, too, is rounding into good trim, but was given only light work today.

A stiff scrimmage is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon as is generally the case on Wednesday.

The Middies Soccer Team will play its third game of the season tomorrow, entertaining the eleven of Western Maryland College.

Pitt Drills Into Night For Notre Dame Game

32 C. U. GRID PLAYERS TO TAKE TRIP

A SQUAD of 32 players, Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman and Assistant Coaches Forrest Cotton and George Vik, and Trainer Louis Brunelle will form Catholic University's gridiron party which departs for Raleigh, N. C., tomorrow morning at 9:05 o'clock.

Players making the trip are Howe, Fraatz, Ball, John Lyons, Preston and Halloran, ends; Tom Nally, Gross, Duscha, Stafford, Lennon and Moffett, tackles; Monaco, Jim Lyons, Baumgardner, Baraldi, Billinger and Maley, guards; White, Ambrose and Conter, centers, and Sheary, Oliver, Whelan, De Mello, Jankowski, Bertoni, Callender, Guarnieri, Flynn, Donaher, Charley McVean and Bob McVean, backfielders.

Final local preparation is scheduled at Griffith Stadium under the arc lights tonight. Another such session has been arranged for the Raleigh plant tomorrow night. Fundamentals and signal calling are to comprise the routine in each instance.

Carolina State plays, as employed by freshmen and reserves, caused the varsity first stringers no little difficulty yesterday. By taking to the air, however, Cardinal regulars had slightly the best of a bristling scrimmage.

No changes will be necessary when Catholic University lines up for the kick-off. Through Trainer Louis Brunelle it was learned yesterday that Catholic's most formidable starting order will be available at the starting whistle.

Maryland Low Gross Won by J. M. Hunter

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 20.—J. Monro Hunter, jr., left the Indian Spring Golf Club today long enough to win low gross in class A, in the next to the last Maryland State handicap tournament of the year at Suburban Club with a 73, three over par. In the same division, E. T. Schaeffer, Maryland Country Club, stroked low net with 78—12—66.

HITTING THE HEAD PIN

Farnum Bowling Shoes' tenancy of first place in the National Capital League, first gained on Monday night, was encroached upon last night by National Pale Drys, who earned a tie for leadership of the circuit by defeating Barnes Used Autos, two out of three, at Lucky Strike.

Rosenberg spilled the wood for Pale Drys' highest individual score, this dependable bowler massing a total of 375. Ward was best for Used Autos with a 370 set. The team games were as follows:

Pearce, of Pica, smashed the league high set record in helping his team upset Ionic in The Washington Post League, scoring a three-game total of 373 for a new mark, Pearce had games of 141, 130 and 102. Pica won the match, 566 to 565, 520 to 417, and 449 to 507. In other matches Pica won another victory at the expense of Quads, 478-512, 489-439 and 489-442; Gothics defeated Agate, 499-432, 476-456 and 475-520, while Pearls downed Minions, 518-510, 440-512 and 479-475.

Three of the four matches in the Washington Ladies League at Columbia resulted in whitewashings by 3-0 counts. Columbians, with Margaret Leaman showing the way, held onto first place by lacing Shamrocks, and Keenos and University Park applied the goose-egg treatment to Veterans' Bureau and Cardinals, respectively. The Beeques yielded one game in beating the Hilltoppers.

Miss Leaman's high set for Columbians consisted of games of 136, 105 and 124. Rena Levy bowled 336 to press Miss Leaman for the honor, while for the Hilltoppers Margaret Miltner crashed the maples for a count of 330.

Miss Mayhew's double-header strike and an 112 total was outstanding in the Capitals' 3-0 defeat of Lansburgh in the Ladies Independent League. Kann's took two out of three from Tip Tops and Columbia annexed a forfeiture from Navy in the other matches.

Cards Deserved to Win, Mack Tells Students

Philadelphia, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, told Temple University students today that the St. Louis Cardinals were the better team in the recent world series and deserved to be world champions.

Mack drew a parallel of the fine physical condition required of present-day ball players and the stamina and vigor persons in the business world must have today to survive.

"The day is gone when managers must watch baseball players off the field," said the veteran leader. "Those kind of fellows do not last a season. The championship teams of the last ten years have been composed mostly of players who attended strictly to business."

Mack referred to Burleigh Grimes, St. Louis pitcher, who, he said, spent more time jeering the Athletics in 1930 than he did pitching, with the result he lost two games.

"This year," he said, "Grimes attended to business and won two games, the last being the seventh of the series which gave the championship to St. Louis."

ACES START WORK.

The Washington Aces basket ball team will hold its first practice at Central High School tonight at 9:30. All old members as well as candidates for the team are requested to report.

"Beat Michigan!" Is Cry at Illinois.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Even Coach Bob Zupke took up the cry, "Beat Michigan!" today as he drove his three teams through a lively workout for the homecoming game.

He shouted the battle cry several times as the teams lined up against the freshmen, equipped with Michigan plays. Harry Newman, star passer of the Wolverines, was impersonated by Jack Banan. After two days in the hospital, Gil Berry was back in his togs again today but spent his time watching the scrimmage.

Wisconsin Regulars Rest For Penn Game.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Wisconsin's first string football players were given a light workout on signals and passes here today in preparation for the game with Pennsylvania Saturday. The varsity appeared stiff and bruised from its encounter with Purdue last week and will get only one heavy scrimmage before leaving for the East Thursday. The reserves, however, were given a long scrimmage against the frosh, the latter using Penn plays. About 35 regulars will make the trip East.

G.W. QUINTET TO PLAY 18 GAMES

Duquesne, Creighton, DePaul Newcomers to Schedule.

EIGHTEEN games, featuring engagements with Duquesne, De Paul, of Chicago; Creighton, Rider and St. John's, of Brooklyn, make up the 1931-1932 basket ball schedule of George Washington University. The opening game of the Colonials' season is listed on December 16 with Shenandoah College, and the season will close on February 27 in a contest with Rider College at Newark, N. J.

Duquesne, De Paul, Creighton, Rider and St. John's rank among the strongest college quintets in the country. All with the exception of Rider are newcomers to the George Washington schedule. Rider and St. John's were powers in Eastern basket ball circles last winter. Rider was one of the five teams that inflicted defeat on the Colonials last season, when the downtown school had one of its trongest court teams in years.

Quantico Marines and St. Joseph's College, of Philadelphia, other newly scheduled G. W. foes, will meet the Colonials in two games each.

December 16—Shenandoah at home; January 6—Quantico Marines at home; 11, Quantico Marines at Quantico; 15, St. Joseph's College at home; 16, Villanova College at home; 21, Duquesne University at home; 28, De Paul University at home; 30, Lynchburg College at home.

February 2—Elon College at home; 4, William and Mary College at Williamsburg; 5, Virginia Medical College at Richmond; 13, Baltimore University at home; 15, Duquesne University at home; 20, Virginia Medical College at home; 23, Creighton University at home; 25, St. Joseph's College at Philadelphia; 26, St. John's College at Brooklyn, N. Y.; 27, Rider College at Newark, N. J.

Bluenose Retains Title As Fishing Fleet King

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Bluenose, Capt. Angus Walters' big salt banker from Lunenburg, N. S., retained her throne as queen of the North Atlantic fishing fleets today by defeating the American challenger, Gertrude L. Thebaud, of Gloucester, Mass., in the second straight race.

The sailing champion for ten years of the fishing banks led the pride of the Gloucester fleet home from a 36-mile open ocean course by twelve minutes. Yesterday she beat the Gloucester man over the same course by more than half an hour.

Tonight they dusted off a big silver cup, the international fishermen's trophy, forgotten, almost, for eight years, and presented it to Bluenose's fiery little skipper, Capt. Angus and his schooner have never met defeat in an international title contest.

HOLD PRACTICE TONIGHT.

STOCK PRICES JUMP AS RAILS LEAD RISE

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The security markets today gave practical evidence of the better feeling that had been hovering over Wall street for the past week or two. Stocks advanced vigorously, given strong leadership by railroad issues and by United States Government obligations.

The freight rate decision was announced after the close. Wall street was rather uncertain as to just how it should be interpreted; however, opinion in many quarters had been that no flat rise would be allowed, but that higher rates would be permitted on many products, probably on a sliding scale. Rate experts felt the relief granted would be helpful. What effect, if any, the decision would have on the wage matter was one of the questions raised.

Foreign buying of stocks and bonds doubtless helped the rally. In addition, further takings of bankers bills for foreign account were reported and it was immediately assumed that the demand came from the Bank of France, whose buying in this market has helped to spike foreign rumors concerning the dollar and to relieve the pressure for gold. Earmarkings today increased $7,900,000 and exports of gold amounted to $1,165,000, a larger loss than yesterday, but still of very moderate proportions.

Rise Starts Early.

Stocks advanced from the opening and eventually extended their gains to a 1-to-7 range. Scattered profit-taking chipped off small fractions here and there, but the close was strong. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Du Pont, Sears Roebuck, North American and Consolidated Gas were up 2 to 3 net; Atchison, Case, Allied Chemical, Woolworth and Southern Pacific 3 to more than 4; American Telephone 5, Eastman Kodak 6 and Auburn 9.

Freight loadings for the week ended October 10 dropped about 14,000 cars, a somewhat larger decline than had been expected, although it was recalled that the previous week's total had been the year's record.

Reports from the steel trade said many consumers were more optimistic toward their prospects over the next two or three months. Nevertheless, the fact remains that actual shipments from the mills have shown little acceleration.

Sterling Exchange Jumps.

Sterling exchange jumped more than 4 cents and other Europeans, with the exception of the French franc, generally firmed. With the franc declining prospects of heavy gold shipments to Paris are diminished, although how much of the recent earmarkings have been for French account may not be disclosed until later in the week when several fast ships sail.

Partial suspension of the gold standard in Canada created no excitement in the Dominion dollar, since the government's action was taken merely as giving official recognition to a situation that had existed for some time.

Commodities closed lower, although cotton had an early spurt. Wheat futures were affected by weather predictions, favorable European crop news and easy Liverpool cables, selling off ½ to ¾ cent net. Corn's losses were nominal. In cotton the net decline ranged from 8 to 15 points, reflecting afternoon realizing.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—Wholesale realizing of profits on advances amounting to 9 cents a bushel from recent low levels pulled wheat prices downward today. The market was also bearishly affected by surprising fluctuations in sterling exchange. An undertone of strength developed on downturns, however, a circumstance associated with reports that Germany as well as France was likely to make large purchases of United States Government-sponsored wheat holdings.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼@⅞ cent lower, corn unchanged to ⅜ cent down, oats varying from ¼ cent decline to a shade advance, and provisions 5 to 12 cents up.

The fact that official confirmation was lacking in regard to talk of possible deals by France and Prague to acquire American Farm Board wheat did much to prevent bulls from gaining any pronounced advantage. There was also a string tied to frost reports from Argentina, no actual crop damage being noted, although it was stated that if the frosts extended northward serious injury to wheat probably would result. Meanwhile, Liverpool stocks of wheat continued to increase, totaling 5,768,000 bushels larger than a year ago, and continental European stocks were likewise reported as larger than at this time last year.

An increase of 6,812,000 bushels in the world's wheat available supply this week was more or less offset by a showing that the total is now slightly smaller as compared with a year ago. Similarly, liberal receipts of domestic wheat Southwest were counterbalanced by continued scantiness of the spring wheat movement in the Northwest. North American wheat export business was of only fair volume, about 400,000 bushels, mostly wheat to arrive in Canada.

Corn and oats were relatively firm as a result of back spreading operations in which corn was bought and wheat sold. Eastern demand for corn was the best in some time, and primary arrivals were only about half the total at this time last year.

BOND MARKET RISES IN BUOYANT TRADING

Wide Advances Are Noted for Inclusive Nature, as All Groups Benefit.

New York, Oct. 20 (A.P.).—The bond market made a buoyant advance today in all groups. Trading increased sharply. Sales on the stock exchange totaled $15,010,000, compared with $12,751,000 on Monday.

The advance was impressive both for the width of the gains among the more active issues and for its inclusive nature. Net gains of 1 to 5 points were numerous and a few advances were even larger.

United States Government issues were leaders in activity and strength. Several of them made net advances in excess of 1 point, which is an unusually wide gain, and the Treasury 3½s of 1946-49 closed almost 2 points higher.

Rebound in Japanese.

A sharp rebound in Japanese obligations featured the foreign group. The 5½s of 1965 closed 8¾ points higher at 84. This gain was slightly more than yesterday's loss. The 6½s of 1954 regained most of Monday's loss and closed at 96. The turnover in both issues continued heavy.

With a few exceptions, such as Australian 5s of 1955, Belgian 7s of 1955 and of 1956, and 6s of 1955 and German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of 1938, trading in foreign loans was less active than in domestic corporate issues.

The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the petition for increased freight rates was made public after the close. Railroad bonds moved upward consistently, however.

Rail Issues' Gains.

Net gains of 1 to 4¾ points were scored by such active rail issues as Baltimore & Ohio 4½s of 1960, St. Paul adjustment 5s, Rock Island refunding 4s, Erie 5s of 1967 and of 1975, International Great Northern adjustment 6s, Missouri Pacific general 4s and series H and I 5s, Nickel Plate series C 4½s, Pennsylvania general 4½s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s of 1978 and Southern Pacific 4½s of 1981.

Public utility and industrial loans gained ground too but activity in them was not so great as in the rails.

The City of New York has arranged for the sale of $30,000,000 in revenue bills and corporate stock notes to the National City Bank, the Chase National Bank and the Bank of Manhattan Trust Co. These obligations will be dated October 23 and will mature on January 20, 1932. They will bear 4¼ per cent interest. An offering of $20,000,000 of these securities is being made to yield 4 per cent.

GRAND JURY IGNORES DUNCAN RUM CHARGE

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The grand jury for the October term of the Circuit Court of Arlington County, which investigated charges made by Supervisor Edward Duncan that there were more bootleggers and gamblers in the county than ever before, brought in an ignoramus.

The findings as presented to the court and signed by the foreman, Walter T. Weaver, read:

"The grand jury has thoroughly investigated every matter presented before it and after hearing all testimony we have reached the conclusion that there is no further action to be taken by us at this time."

Mr. Duncan made the charges at a political meeting at the Lyon Park Community House. He is one of the candidates running against Sheriff Howard B. Fields.

With the courthouse crowded with persons anxiously awaiting the verdict the 25 witnesses who were summoned following the appearance of Mr. Duncan on Tuesday filed into the jury room to remain a few minutes.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields, in a statement issued following the report of the grand jury, said:

"Duncan was summoned before the grand jury by me as a result of the statements made in Lyon Park Community House, at a political meeting, that there were more bootleggers and gamblers in Arlington County than ever before.

"He appeared, apparently said nothing, but gave a list of 25 persons to testify.

"I asked him in several public meetings to tell me where these bootleggers and gamblers were, but he refused, and I was determined he would tell the grand jury, if he knew.

"If his statements were true, I wanted to know it so that I could break it up. If they were not true, I wanted the citizens of Arlington County to know it."

Pleading guilty to the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, W. M. Brown, George L. Jones, Clarence Gill and George Taylor each were fined $147.50, including costs, and given a jail sentence of 30 days. The jail sentence in the cases of Brown, Gill and Taylor was suspended by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, in the Circuit Court of Arlington County yesterday.

Elijah Brown and Ophelia Garner, pleading guilty to charges of violation of the prohibition laws, were each fined $97.50, including the costs, in addition to a jail sentence of one month by Judge McCarthy.

Charged with violation of the prohibition laws, James Hannah and Anthony Sweeney each were fined $147.50, including costs, and given a jail sentence of 30 days. Roseanna Richardson, on a similar charge, was fined $147.50, including costs, and given a jail sentence of one month.

Pleading guilty to housebreaking, James Hall was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary by Judge McCarthy.

Charged with violation of the prohibition laws, Charles Robinson, Samuel Rees, Leon Balden, Charles Jones and Ernest Butler were each fined $97.50 and each given a jail sentence of three months by Judge McCarthy.

Civic Center Site Urged at Meeting

Development of the triangle in the rear of the National Guard Armory at Silver Spring, Md., as a civic center was urged last night by the Silver Spring Chamber of Commerce after several hours of discussion on three proposed sites. According to the plan presented the proposed new Montgomery County Building will be built in the rear of the present National Guard Armory Building, facing Fenton street.

An auditorium and public library building would be located back of the county building, with an automobile parking space in the rear. Second preference for a civic site expressed as at the junction of Colesville pike and Georgia avenue.

The three suggestions for sites were prepared by Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The present county building in Silver Spring has become too small for county activities.

Maj. Phil D. Foston was reelected president. Other officers elected were Dr. L. M. Christie and James H. Cissel, vice presidents; George Day, treasurer; Horace J. Donnelly, jr., secretary; Dr. Christie, J. Donald Clagett and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation, with John J. Dolan, L. M. Viera and Alan B. Neuman, alternates.

U. S. Employes Dominate Arlington County Election

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

When President Hoover, a little while back, issued an executive order permitting Government employes to hold office in their resident communities provided their two jobs do not conflict, he added considerably to the gayety of the battle for the twelve elective offices to be filled by Arlington County voters on November 3.

If Government employes can be classed as a group, they dominate the field in point of numbers in the fight which 51 candidates are making for the five places on the new county board. A score jumped into the fray when the bars were let down, which might be in the way of proving that there isn't a Government employe "bloc" in the county, or it might prove something else or nothing. They draw their pay from various branches of the Government for doing a wide variety of things.

A list of the occupations of the other candidates for the county board includes doctor, street car conductor, business man, lawyer, housewife, grocer, plumber, insurance agent, manufacturer, mail carrier, head of a collection agency, real estate dealer, automobile dealer, executive of automobile repair business, chief of fire department, former mayor, paperhanger and other callings.

Several of these candidates have held office, others have been active in citizens' associations and civic movements and their virtues and defects as public officials are known to the voters. They are familiar with county conditions and needs.

Among the candidates are to be found some who have, in the course of the years, taken on something of a reputation as perennial candidates for public office. Some, perhaps, do not take their own candidacy seriously, or at least, are not willing to admit they do. One candidate explained his candidacy with the statement that he had been trying for years as a private citizen to get a sidewalk laid in front of his store, but had not been successful.

But not all of the politically inexperienced candidates are to be found among the candidates for the county board. A candidate for one office filed his notice and, meeting the Republican nominee for another office, asked his support. The man who had been nominated by the Republican party suggested that in asking for support he ought to given some in return.

"Why, Mr. Blank, what are you running for?" the newly filed candidate asked in surprise.

The new county board, to be elected next month, will take office on January 1, along with other county officers. It will replace the existing board of supervisors. That the change is more than a mere change in name is indicated by the fact that one of its first duties will be the selection of a county manager. The post should pay between $6,000 and $10,000, it has been suggested, but the salary is yet to be determined.

G. L. Kinnier, county engineer, formerly an engineer in the State highway department, now holds the post most like that of county manager, though the scope of the new job is greater. There has been some talk that Mr. Kinnier should be named as county manager, though that has not become any issue in the current campaign.

On the basis of a total of 6,000 votes it is estimated will be cast in the coming election, those familiar with the situation believe that 1,500 votes will assure election for any candidate. The five candidates receiving the largest number of votes will be elected, and it is believed that the large number of candidates will cause a scattering of votes. Of course there will be considerable cutting. Each voter is entitled to vote for five candidates, but supporters of some are planning to cut off the names of all but their man, which will mean four votes that candidate won't have to worry about.

Three of the candidates are colored. These are not conceded any chance at all. There are, it is estimated, somewhere around 500 colored votes in the county and even if the entire colored vote were delivered to each of the colored candidates they would not have enough to win.

County political observers do not concede any more than 20 of the 51 candidates as having any chance at all. Several are willing to cut the list of possible winners down to as low as eight, nine, or ten. It is interesting that even those who have larger list of possible winners always include the ten or less named by the more positive estimators.

ALEXANDRIA CLERICS TO HAVE RECEPTION

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The congregation of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will hold a reception this evening at 8 o'clock in the Young People's Building, in honor of the new minister of that church, the Rev. Ernest W. Aaron, formerly of Fredericksburg, and of the new presiding elder of the district, whose parsonage is located in Alexandria, the Rev. J. H. Balthis. These two ministers and the members of their families will be the guests of honor.

The eleventh annual convention of the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers will open in Alexandria this morning for a three-day session.

Capt. T. M. Hamilton has named a committee to handle the fund and work of procuring apples for children in the public schools. The committee includes Dr. Robert South Barrett, Dr. J. E. W. Timberman, Charles C. Carlin, jr., Michael T. Dwyer, the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, Aubrey N. Shuman and Roger C. Sullivan.

A verdict for the defendant was given by a jury in corporation court in the case of Miss Mary Monroe and John Moore. Moore sued Miss Monroe for injuries alleged to have been received in January last when the automobiles driven by the two were in collision at Potomac Yards gate.

Prince Georges Hearing On Assessments Nov. 10

The Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday set November 10 as a date when they will hear protests against tax assessments levied on new buildings in the county. All persons who believe that new construction has been valued too high for tax purposes will have opportunity to state their case on this date.

The commissioners also heard a delegation yesterday from Berwyn and Branchville, who asked the construction of a road from the Baltimore boulevard at Branchville to Bell Station on the Defense highway. They presented a petition signed by 625 names. W. F. Mulligan led the delegation.

$10,000 Damage Suit Is Won by Railroad

A Prince Georges County jury yesterday returned a verdict for the defendant in a suit brought by Edward Curtis against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., asking $10,000 for the death of Curtis' son, Philip. Attorneys Lansdale G. Sasscer and J. Wilson Ryon for the plaintiff filed a motion for a new trial.

The verdict was directed by the court, which held that no negligence by the railroad company had been shown. Philip Curtis, 12 years old, was killed when the wagon on which he was riding was struck by a gasoline work car on the Popes Creek branch of the railroad near Marlboro.

25 Scouts Will Receive Eagle Badges Saturday

Twenty-five Boy Scouts will be awarded the Eagle Badge by the Court of Honor of the District of Columbia Council at Wilson Normal School Saturday night.

The Eagle award is a coveted place among the ranks of the scouts and usually requires several years work to qualify for it. More than a hundred additional awards of Life, Star and Palms will be awarded at this court.

Rockville to Get State Laboratory

Maryland Is to Maintain Experts There for Routine Work.

The offer of the Maryland State Department of Health to provide maintenance of a modern health laboratory in the new Rockville Courthouse if the county would furnish the laboratory was accepted yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners. Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, of Bethesda, a member of the State Board of Health, and Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer, were appointed a committee to purchase the necessary equipment.

The State offered to provide an expert at a salary of about $2,000 a year and an assistant at a salary of about $1,200 a year if the county would expend the sum of approximately $1,500 in equipping the laboratory. The offer was made to the commissioners in a letter from Dr. Walter N. Kirkman, of the State board.

A committee of six women was named to inspect the new courthouse and recommend the type, color and style of the window shades to be used in the building. This committee is to report at the meeting of the commissioners tomorrow. It includes Miss Willie Greene Day, Miss Lavinia Engle, Mrs. J. Darby Bowman, Mrs. William Frank Ricketts, Mrs. John B. Diamond and Mrs. Robert D. Hagner.

MONTGOMERY PLANS ON NEW VOTERS LAID

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Preparations are being made by Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the Montgomery County Circuit Court, to care for a large number of new residents who are expected to file notice of their intention to become citizens of the county so they can vote in the presidential election next year. Maryland law requires that the voter declare his or her intention to become a citizen at least one year before the election. This means that declarations must be made before November 7 of this year.

Notices of intention can be filed at the clerk's office in the Rockville Courthouse at any day. In addition, Mr. Watkins has arranged to be present or have one of his deputies at the following times and places in order that every person eligible to file a declaration may do so and vote in the election. There is no fee.

The clerk or his deputies will be present as follows: Tomorrow, October 29, and November 5, Bethesda County Building, Silver Spring County Building and Chevy Chase Library, from 5:30 to 10 p. m.; October 28 and November 4, from 5:30 to 10 p. m., in the Takoma Park Firehouse, the Kensington National Guard Armory and the Glen Echo-Cabin John School.

Persons registered as having come of age in the county and who declared their intentions before registering in the last election will not be required to file notice again.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie has been asked to summon a special session of the State Legislature to repeal the declaration of intentions law, but Democratic leaders declare that this would not be possible in the short time of an extra session.

William A. Rogers, Cartoonist, Dead

Mr. Rogers was born in Springfield, Ohio, May 23, 1854. In 1873 he began his career in New York City as an illustrator and cartoonist for the Daily Graphic. He was later on the staff of Harper's Weekly, Harper's Magazine, Life, St. Nicholas, Century, the New York Herald and The Washington Post. He came to Washington in 1923.

Among his personal friends Mr. Rogers numbered President Theodore Roosevelt, President Grover Cleveland and Jules Jusserand, former French Ambassador to the United States. It was at the suggestion of the latter that he was made a chevalier in the French Legion of Honor for a cartoon published in the New York Herald during the World War.

Mr. Rogers is survived by a daughter, Mrs. W. W. Buckley, of Washington, and a son, Harry A. Rogers, of Wilton, Conn. Funeral services will be conducted in Springfield, Ohio, tomorrow afternoon.

Charles Clark Dies Of Auto Injuries

Potomac Phone Employe Survived by Widow and Parents.

Charles Lawrence Clark, production supervisor, information department of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., whose home was at 1825 New Hampshire avenue, died at George Washington Hospital yesterday morning at 1:10 o'clock from injuries sustained in an automobile accident last Sunday morning at Upper Marlboro, Md.

Mr. Clark was born at Boston, Mass., on July 4, 1902. He had been a resident of Washington since 1916 and graduated from the Catholic University in 1925. He was a first lieutenant, Reserve Corps, Medical Administrative Branch, and a member of the Army and Navy Country Club and the Reserve Officers Association.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gladys C. Clark, and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. Clark, of 412 Emerson street northeast, this city.

MRS. M. C. RATCLIFFE RITES.

Knights of St. John's Auxiliary President Buried Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary C. Ratcliffe, president of St. Joseph's Auxiliary to the Knights of St. Johns, and president of Hospital Guild No. 2, an affiliated organization, will be held from St. Mark's Church Thursday at 10 a. m. Officers and members of the above organizations will attend the funeral in a body.

Mrs. Ratcliffe was a well known worker in the St. Joseph's Auxiliary and other Catholic charitable organizations. She was elected president of the auxiliary in 1909 and remained in this office until her death. After working with the St. Joseph's group she saw the need for a hospital guild in which members would be able to be taken care of in case of illness by having hospitalization at a very nominal and annual charge. She then organized Hospital Guild, No. 2.

Capitol Heights Mayor Resigns Administration

Selig Posen resigned as Mayor of Capitol Heights in a letter received last night by the town council, in which Mr. Posen says that his physicians have advised him to rest from all activities, both political and business.

Posen says that he has been under treatment in Mercy Hospital in Baltimore for some time. The town charter provides that his successor shall be chosen by the town council.

25 Years Ago Today

OCTOBER 21, 1906.

The largest flag in the world, 60 feet long by 35 feet wide, is to wave in the great court of the Postoffice Building, as soon as the contract for its manufacture can be awarded. Several Washington flagmakers have entered bids.

Fire protection in the District is gradually being raised to its highest standard, according to Commissioner Macfarland, in answer to inquiries made by H. Bradley Davidson, chairman of the committee on insurance of the Washington Board of Trade.

The big ocean-going tug Sea King narrowly escaped being wrecked yesterday when her moorings parted while lying at the dock at the foot of Twenty-seventh street. Capt. Frank and Second Engineer Johnson were asleep at the time, but awoke at the noise of the cable's severing and after some thrilling work managed to bring the vessel to before it crashed into the heavy granite piers of the new Highway Bridge.

The President did not forego his Sunday drive because of bad weather. He entered his carriage in the afternoon with Mrs. Roosevelt while a cold drizzling rain was descending and spent several hours driving about the city and its environs.

DENIAL BY SCHENCK OF FRAMING STORY IS BEFORE LAWYERS

ROVER REFUSES PLEA TO ASSURE IMMUNITY

Former Policeman Says He Hoped for Release From Jail for Service.

A retraction by former Patrolman Frederick A. Schenck of the story told before the grand jury of the alleged "framing" of former Patrolman Orville Staples is before the committee of lawyers which is inquiring into the grand jury report.

The retraction of the story was presented by a Post reporter, as the result of a series of interviews at the District Jail, during which Schenck explained his motive for telling the story as a desire to obtain his liberty.

Schenck offered to retract his grand jury testimony if no perjury charges were made against him, and if his parole status would remain unaffected. In addition to explaining the motive for his story, Schenck said he had a contingent offer of a sum of money if he would go before the lawyer's board and repeat the story of the "framing" that he told to the grand jury, which recommended the reinstatement of Staples and the punishment of those responsible for his dismissal.

Motive Was Demanded.

When told that a retraction would be insufficient unless a motive for his story was revealed, he said he had told the story on the promise that he would be given "consideration and relief at the proper time." In conversation with a convict named "Whitey" Cunningham, who is serving an 18 months' sentence at Leavenworth, Schenck said, the question of the Staples case was discussed, and the convict suggested that he tell the story in order to assist in obtaining a parole.

A letter from a Government official, in which Schenck says he was promised "consideration and relief," is being sought by the Department of Justice. This letter, according to Schenck, is in possession of a convict named Schaeffer, who, he says, assisted him in getting mail from the penitentiary without censorship.

"I was facing 20 years in jail," he said. "I saw in the promise a rope that might bring me from the prison and I grabbed it. The worst thing that could happen to anyone in the case, was for him to lose his job. That is the reason I made the statements."

Asked whether all the charges made against Staples were based on proper evidence, he replied they were with the exception of the charge involving the theft of 41 cases of liquor, upon which Staples was acquitted.

"Here I am serving flat time," Schenck said; "back in Leavenworth; I get ten days off for good behavior in every 30 days served. I also made from 50 to 60 cents a day in the shoe shop. They are leaving me holding the bag."

On Thursday night of last week, Schenck said, he was approached by a former newspaperman who promised him 25 per cent of a given sum of money if he would repeat the story told before the grand jury to the board of lawyers.

Schenck offered to give a written retraction of his story, if, in return, he would receive a written promise that no prosecution would be made on his testimony before the grand jury. He furthermore volunteered to tell the story to the district attorney's office, if the written promise of immunity was forthcoming. Under no circumstances, he said, would he testify before a police trial board against Inspector Louis J. Stoll or Patrolman Joseph H. Hunt, who took part in the Staples investigation.

Immunity Promise Refused.

The story of Schenck's proposed retraction was told to Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, and to District Attorney Leo A. Rover. Mr. Rover refused to promise any immunity to Schenck. He also declined to talk with Schenck unless at least two Department of Justice agents were present, as well as a stenographer.

Informed of this decision, Schenck refused to make any further move toward recanting the story. He would attempt, he said, to reach a Government official and obtain his advice on the question of appearing before the lawyer's board.

Schenck's motive in telling the "framing" story was repeated Sunday night in the presence of two Post reporters.

Halloween Parade Entrants Sought

Any Organization MayTake Part by Applying to Capital Committee.

Any organization may enter the Halloween celebration parade by sending a registration card to the committee, giving the name of the organization and the type of the entry, it was announced yesterday. These cards may be obtained from the Greater National Capital Committee.

Request is made that all cards be sent in this week so that W. I. Swanton, chairman of the parade committee, may perfect the parade formation as soon as possible. Approximately 60 groups have signified their intention of taking part in the parade. They include civic bodies, parent teacher associations, community centers; business men's organizations, schools, women's clubs.

All entries will be judged for prizes and trophies. The invitation to enter is extended to individuals, marching groups, organizations of all kinds, owners of decorated cars, noncommercial floats, commercial floats. Out of town entries also will be welcome, it was announced.

Death of Child Laid To String in Throat

Lucille Moran, 3, Fails to Survive Fourth Choking Spell in Week, and Dies When Rescue Is Futile.

A bit of string lodged in her throat caused the death yesterday of Lucille Moran, 3 years old, of 72 K street northwest, physicians decided last night after an autopsy in a case which at first was regarded as something of a mystery.

The child was pronounced dead at Sibley Hospital yesterday afternoon when her frantic mother rushed into the hospital with her child for the fourth time in a week. She had been taken with a sudden attack of coughing which had racked her small body at intervals during the seven days. This time the skill of the hospital physicians was unavailing.

The child was first taken to the hospital on October 13. Her mother, Mrs. Edward Moran, told physicians she believed the child had swallowed a piece of string, but an X-ray showed nothing. She was advised to leave Lucille at the hospital, physicians said, but the child appeared normal after the coughing was relieved and was taken home.

Again on October 15, Lucille had another attack of the mysterious coughing and her parents rushed her to the hospital. They were again advised to leave her, it is said, but the child appeared well again almost as quickly as the coughing had come upon her.

Monday Lucille had a violent coughing spell and again the doctors relieved her when she was brought to the hospital. Authorities at Sibley yesterday asked the coroner's office to conduct an autopsy and inquest into the death. "Asphyxia, due to a foreign body in the larnyx," it was decided after the string was found.

WOODCOCK SPEAKER AT W.C.T.U. SESSION

Coordination With Education Is Held Necessary for Dry Law Success.

"Although I am convinced that we are enforcing the prohibition law honestly, earnestly and lawfully, I am not at all convinced that we are enforcing it as intelligently as possible," declared Col. A. W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, yesterday.

Col. Woodcock made the leading address at opening of the fifty-seventh annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the District, now in session at the National Baptist Memorial Church, Sixteenth street and Columbia road northwest.

Mr. Woodcock pointed out that only by effective coordination of "temperance education," with intelligent administration of the law could enforcement of the amendment be a success.

Pastor Scores American Legion.

In an address of welcome delivered to members of the W. C. T. U. the Rev. Gove G. Johnson, pastor of the National Baptist Memorial Church, congratulated them upon their work and their program for the convention.

He criticized severely the attitude of the American Legion in shouting at Detroit that it wanted beer.

In speaking of the Canadian liquor law he declared, "We have heard it said that in Canada they have government-controlled liquor, but what they really have is a liquor-controlled government."

The convention was called to order at 10 a. m. by the president, Mrs. N. M. Pollard. A song service was led by Mrs. Ethel H. Reed. Mrs. George Selbold gave a salute to the flag.

A review of the year's work was presented by Mrs. H. E. Rogers, corresponding secretary, after which Mrs. George A. Ross, treasurer, gave a financial report.

Dr. Johnson's welcoming address was followed by a response from Mrs. Everret L. Eaton. The president, Mrs. Pollock, followed with her annual address.

Committee reports on Americanization, child welfare, Christian citizenship, circulation of official organ and evangelistic were heard in the afternoon. A young people's night was observed last night, consisting for the most part of musical selections. The convention will be concluded today.

Man Pays $1,500 In Dry Law Fines

New Mark Is Set in Police Court; Violator Gives Over Two Bills.

Arthur Mason, colored, yesterday appeared in Police Court with a $1,000 bill and a $500 bill and paid them out in fines for violating the liquor law.

He had just completed nine months of a jail sentence, and he paid the fines rather than spend 540 days additional in jail. Mason was fined $1,000 by Judge John P. McMahon when he was convicted of maintaining a nuisance, and on five counts of "second" possession charges. On the first of the five counts he was fined $500 and on the other four he was given 90 days on each.

This batch of sentences Mason served and rather than spend the other sentences in jail, he paid the fines. So far as officials of the court could recall, the fines were the largest ever to be paid there.

Man Hurt in Fall Off Pole.

William Davidson, 29 years old, of 1015 N street northwest, was in Emergency Hospital last night with slight injuries received when he slipped from a telephone pole on which he was stringing a line for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. Monday afternoon.

PAROLED PATIENT'S BULLET MISSES MAN

Sheer luck yesterday afternoon saved the life of a pedestrian walking near Eighteenth street and Columbia road northwest, when a 29-year-old paroled inmate of St. Elizabeths Hospital fired three times at him at close range in a protest demonstration against being returned to the institution.

The pedestrian, William Busick, manager of the Devonshire Courts, 41 Wisconsin avenue northwest, was the first person encountered by the paroled man, John A. Eaton, 29, 1803 Biltmore street northwest, when he appeared on the street with the pistol after badly frightening Mrs. Minnie Nelson, who lives in the same apartment building as Eaton, with the gun.

Eaton, police were told, pressed the pistol to Busick's side and pulled the trigger three times. Miraculously the gun discharged but once, and this bullet only tore away the apartment manager's necktie and part of his shirt.

By this time Policeman Thomas Heide and F. J. Haack, of the Second Precinct, had arrived on the scene in a radio scout car in response to numerous telephone alarms. The policemen caught Eaton, as he ran, gun in hand down Columbia road toward Seventeenth street. Threatening to shoot him on the spot, the policemen succeeded in cowing the paroled hospital patient.

Eaton's demonstration caused wild excitement in the vicinity. His father was to have returned him to St. Elizabeths this afternoon and he told Policeman Heide that his objection to returning to the institution caused him to run amuck.

Car Lot Employes Draw Small Fines

Two Men Aided by Owners of Removed Autos Are Assessed $3 Each.

Aided by testimony of auto owners, Leroy G. Eakes and Charles B. McDonald, employed on a parking lot at Tenth street near Grant place northwest, yesterday were given minimum fines in Police Court for violating the parking regulations.

The men were arrested by Policeman W. G. Liveryman, of the Traffic Bureau, who watched them as they took seven cars from the lot and placed them on an adjacent street. The two testified the cars were being placed on the streets for friends who did not pay to use the parking lot, and was merely done as an accommodation.

When owners of the cars corroborated the story, Judge Ralph Given directed the two to pay fines of $1 each in three cases.

Woman Loses Savings In Purse-Finding Trick

An unidentified colored man is presumably still "looking for the boss," and Hattie Covington, colored, of 1418 Q street northwest, with the aid of police, is looking for her life savings of $300, for she "bit" on the old flim-flam game yesterday.

She met the usual two men at Fourteenth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, she told police. One of them had just picked up a pocketbook. He told the woman it contained $2,000, and that he would give her $700 if she kept quiet about it. The woman was told to show $300 as evidence of good faith. She drew this sum from the savings bank and presented it to the men, who said they must go around the corner and see the boss. They apparently kept going, and Hattie is out her $300.

Wife and Policeman Treat Drugged Man Near Theater

Early theater-bound pedestrians were thrown into a state of mild excitement last night as a policeman and an estranged wife attempted first aid to a young husband whom they believed had just swallowed several tablets of a slow-acting poison.

Throngs collected in front of the Tivoli Theater on Fourteenth street northwest at Park road as the policeman, Private E. E. Hall, and Mrs. Mary Fisher Miller, attempted to force medicines down the throat of Donald Miller, 26 years old, of 1337 Seventeenth street northwest, as they awaited an ambulance to take the man to Garfield Hospital.

Mrs. Miller told police her estranged husband had come to her home, at 3121 Fourteenth street, a short time earlier and greeted a group of friends with her. He then asked for a glass of water and when it was given him, drew out a bottle filled with white tablets and attempted to swallow two of them.

She knocked the bottle from his hand, she said, and managed to overpower her husband and get the poison from his mouth. Then Miller left the house and went to the home of a "girl friend" on Kenyon street, while Mrs. Miller called police.

Garfield Hospital attaches said Miller had apparently swallowed little of the poison. He was transferred to Gallinger.

STRAWN REVIEWS CAUSE OF SLUMP BEFORE CHAMBER

HARRY KING REELECTED CAPITAL GROUP'S HEAD

G. A. G. Wood and T. P. Littlepage Selected as Deputies.

An address by Silas Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in which he reviewed conditions in Europe and this country, and reelection of officers featured the annual meeting of the Washington Chamber of Commerce last night at the Mayflower Hotel. An attendance of more than 500 was recorded.

The following were elected as directors to serve with other directors already in office: Oscar Coolican, Robert H. Dalgleish, Fenton M. Fadeley, Creed W. Fulton, Dr. George C. Havenner, Edmund F. Jewell, Louis Levay, Alfred G. Neal, A. Lee Thompson and Leon S. Ulman.

Work Called Answer.

Mr. Strawn referred to the Chamber of Commerce as the type of organization best fitted to put people in a better frame of mind and "to help pull the country out of the depression." "There is no panacea for present conditions," he said. "We should make up our minds to pull ourselves out of the present situation and work our hardest until things do get better."

Mr. Strawn, in speaking of conditions abroad, expressed the opinion that the trouble between China and Japan will soon be settled. He asserted that "enthusiastic prosperity" in the United States is impossible until political conditions in Europe improve and that this country has not hope of returning to prosperity until foreign trade conditions are ameliorated. He said that there is a great opportunity for foreign trade in America, but added that this will await the development of Argentina and other Latin-American countries.

Cites Reserve Fund.

Mr. Strawn referred to agricultural conditions in the United States as "deplorable" and spoke of the "alarming" tendency toward increase in taxes. He opined that the time is not ripe for employment insurance and suggested that industries set aside reserve funds for periods of depression.

John Poole, scheduled as the other principal speaker, was unable to appear because of illness.

Another feature of the meeting was the annual address of Mr. King in which he reviewed the accomplishments of the chamber during the past year. After his talk, the organization went on record advocating reduction in coal rates; opposing begging on the streets of Washington; recommending that taxicabs be controlled on the same basis as other public utilities, and favoring a new terminal for the Alexandria-Mount Vernon electric railroad.

Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., secretary of the chamber, reported the dispatch of 64,000 pieces of correspondence during the year, 123 meetings, 90 radio talks and the release of 121 new stories.

Fourth Street Residence Is Looted by Burglars

Mrs. Cordelia Fanciulla, of 6022 Fourth street northwest, reported to police last night that her home was entered by burglars, and jewelry, valued at $225, stolen.

BALLOU POINTS OUT BURDEN ON SCHOOLS BY UNEMPLOYMENT

$272 BALANCE SHOWN FOR FREE-LUNCH FUND

Report Reviews Policy Also on Speeding Construction to Help Jobless.

Effect of unemployment on the school system and developments leading up to the decision of the Board of Education to admit outsiders to examination for positions as administrative principals, are among the subjects of chief interest reviewed by Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou in the first section of his annual report made public yesterday.

"Unemployment," states Dr. Ballou, "places additional burdens not only on the home but on those who administer the schools whose chief interest is, and must always be, the general welfare of the boys and girls who attend them."

As an introduction to this observation the superintendent states, "The period of financial depression through which the country and the world are now passing is reflected more or less not only in the appropriations for education but also in the inability of children to get work and in the effect of unemployment on the home. Many pupils who otherwise would go to work on reaching 14 years of age are compelled by the compulsory attendance law to continue in school until 16 years of age because they can not find employment."

Free Lunch Fund Balance.

Dr. Ballou then expressed the opinion that the problem of feeding needy school children will likely continue as long as serious unemployment prevails. The report reveals that there is a balance of $272.10 in the free lunch fund. The committee appointed to raise and supervise distribution of the money is still functioning, and the superintendent indicates that the situation should be kept under control without further assistance this winter.

Interest is attached to the superintendent's review of the policy admitting outsiders for qualification as administrative principals, in view of the protest recently voiced by a citizens association.

May Search Elsewhere.

Dr. Ballou's report shows that the board agreed to allow outside candidates to compete with local teachers for positions as administrative principals after July 1, 1933. This does not alter the fact, however, that in the meantime the superintendent may search elsewhere when local teachers can not qualify for such a position, it is pointed out. Dr. Ballou states that local teachers are given every opportunty to qualify before outside teachers are considered.

Other school policies reviewed by Dr. Ballou include: Speeding up of the school construction program to aid unemployment; extension of courses at teachers' college; modified eligibility requirements for annual substitutes; higher eligibility requirements to teaching principals and new qualifications and salaries governing school librarians.

Automobilist Acquitted Of Manslaughter Charge

A jury in Criminal Court yesterday acquitted Carl Henry Ramey, 20 years old, of 1216 Sixth street southwest, of a charge of manslaughter that grew out of the death of Mildred Taylor, colored, last summer. The jury deliberated less than 15 minutes on its verdict.

Ramey's automobile struck the girl at Second and M streets southeast July 5. He was ordered held for the action of the grand jury by the coroner's jury, and was indicted on the charge of manslaughter.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ANSWER TO A DILEMMA.

"You are a married man away from home on a transcontinental railroad journey. You strike up a haphazard acquaintance with a woman who is old enough to understand life and who seems to you contented, sedate, well-poised and attractive. On the second day she informs you that she is unmarried and that she has been hoping to meet some man who appeals to her as much as you do. In short, she has flung herself completely at you. And yet she has been absolutely frank and sincere with you and has done what was to her a difficult thing.

"Is there any course of action on your part which will seem completely satisfactory to you as you look back on it afterward? If so, what is it?"—The Book of Dilemmas by Leonard Hatch.

* * * * *

In answers submitted and published in the above book, Mr. Bruce Barton says: "I should show her the pictures of my three children, raise my hat and be on my way."

* * * * *

Elmer Twitchell's answer (unsought) was obtained today.

"I should blush, stammer a bit and then ask the sedate, well-poised lady, 'Would you mind going over that again, please?'" says Elmer. "Then I guess I'd ask where she lived and make certain she wasn't a Mrs. Klopmeyer who used to visit the Hofies in Cos Cob.

* * * *

"Then, I guess, I'd ask her what she thought of Hoover. Probably I'd bring in the gold standard and the depression and ask if she saw Yale play Harvard last year. I'd need all this time to catch my breath, understand, being as how I have not had any sedate, well-poised and attractive women flung at me from that distance in many years.

* * * * *

"I'd tell her I could see she had traveled much and ask her what she thought of Mussolini, of course, and she'd probably reply (in view of that running start of hers), 'Let's not talk of Mussolini; let's talk about YOU.' I'd be pretty nervous, and I'd counter with, 'How did you like Geneva? There's a picturesque spot, eh?' If I know the type, she would put her hand on my arm and say: 'You have the most honest blue eyes, baby.'

* * * *

"It would be a tough spot for any man, and, even if I had a picture of three children, I doubt that I could whip it out, show it, tip my bonnet and say, 'Well, good-by, I've got to be off to the convention of iron stove designers,' like Bruce Barton."

* * * *

"Me—were you ever in Gallipolis?

"She—It's funny that I should make such a fool of myself over you—a man I never saw before.

"Me—Of course. Hoover has made his mistakes. Now, you take the wheat situation. Nobody could——

"She—You're my dream boy, that's what you are, my great big dream boy!

"Me—I know the chairman of the Farm Board personally, and he told me what agriculture needed was * * *

"She—Kiss me, my fool!"

* * * *

"Well, this would be the point where I'd have to quit hedging. I can't be certain what I'd do, but I certainly would make a brave effort to think of Mrs. Twitchell, the 27 little Twitchells and old Grandma Twitchell. Then, if I didn't weaken, I'd get out of that parlor car chair, draw myself to my full height and say, 'Lady, it isn't fair to let you go on with this. You don't know who I am.'"

"'Who are you?' she would ask.

* * * *

One of the most heartbreaking cases of unemployment is that of the wardrobe-trunk salesman who lost his job because he couldn't sell Mahatma Gandhi.

Doak and Hyde in List Elevated by Masons

385 Elected to Knight Commander's Rank, Court of Honor, by Scottish Rite Council Meeting Here; Other Names Announced.

Secretaries Doak and Hyde, of the Departments of Labor and Agriculture, respectively, led a list of 385 men who were elected to the rank of knight commander, court of honor, by the Supreme Council of Scottish Rite Masonry, Southern Jurisdiction, meeting yesterday at the Scottish Rite Temple in biennial session.

The council also designated 182 others to receive the thirty-third degree. They included the following elected at large: Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, retired; Maj. Gen. Robert Alexander, retired; Bishop Titus Lowe, of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Bishop William B. Stevens, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and Edward L. Faucette, of Mississippi.

Three men who were elected from the Washington bodies for the thirty-third degree are Frederick M. Bock, Lurtin R. Ginn and John Walter Karsner.

Senator John Thomas, of Idaho; Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University; Bolivar Jones Lloyd, chief of the Public Health Service; Arthur E. Lindborg, Virgin Island education director, and Rear Admiral Coontz were among those elected at large to the knight commander rank.

Harry W. Beach, John O. Bowen, Elmer W. Goss, John D. Hess and Frank Stetson were nominated as knight commanders, Court of Honor, from the local bodies.

The Supreme Council, which is composed of 26 active thirty-third degree Masons, was presided over by John H. Cowles, of Louisville, Ky., grand commander of the jurisdiction. The jurisdiction comprises the Eastern United States south of the Ohio River, all States west of the Mississippi River, and all territorial possessions of the United States.

Knight commanders will be installed in the rank tomorrow night and on Friday night the thirty-third degree will be conferred in a secret ceremony conducted by the officers of the jurisdiction.

Samuel C. Cochran, of Dallas, Tex., was elected lieutenant grand commander of the supreme council. Other officers named by the mother council were: Edward C. Day, Helena, Mont., grand prior; William P. Filmer, San Francisco, grand chancellor, and Perry W. Weidner, grand minister of state.

$50,000 CAFE FIGHT SUIT IS THROWN OUT

On a technical point raised by Alvin L. Newmyer, attorney, the suit of Melvin C. McDonald, 1242 Eleventh street northwest, against the Cooperative Restaurant, Inc., which operates the Lotus Restaurant at 727 Fourteenth street northwest, for $50,000 damages was thrown out of court yesterday by Justice Peyton Gordon.

Mr. Newmyer, defending the corporation, raised the point that whereas the declaration of the suit charged the commission of an assault "with force and arms" by the corporation, the proof of the suit went toward establishing that a waiter committed the assault without the knowledge of the officers of the corporation. Justice Gordon held that the suit should have established the knowledge or the direction of one of the officers to make the corporation responsible.

McDonald, it was shown, was hit on the head in a fight in the restaurant June 17, 1928, at which time Floyd Gibbons, radio speaker and writer, was likewise struck. Gibbons was not called as a witness.

McDonald's testimony linked a waiter with the assault, but he failed to show that the waiter had been ordered by an officer of the company to make the attack. Since the statute of limitations has expired, there can not be another suit filed.

4 School Projects Ready January 1

Total Expenditures Since June Brings Value to $2,289,170.

Work is being completed on four school projects, scheduled to be occupied by January 1, it was announced yesterday.

The Murch addition and Shepherd school are expected to be completed by November 15, the Powell and Key additions by the end of December. With the thirteen buildings completed since June, and now in use, the four new buildings will bring the total expenditure on schools since June to $2,289,170.

The projects completed since June are: Anthony Bowen addition, $104,495; Congress Heights addition, $138,795; Alice Deal Junior High, $463,100; Deanwood addition, $91,800; Gordon addition, $135,000; Lafayette School, $103,390; Horace Mann School, $108,470; Crosby Noyes School, $68,445; Stuart Junior High addition, $160,600; Whittier addition, $85,940; Young Platoon, $200,550; Dunbar athletic field, $70,995, and Western High athletic field and field house, $91,980.

HENDERSON WILL PETITION IS FILED

Motion to Dismiss Attacks by Mrs. Wholean and Others Is Sought.

Motions to dismiss attacks upon the last will of Mrs. Mary F. Henderson by Beatrice Henderson Wholean and the Battle Creek College were filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by George E. Edelin, named as executor in the will. George P. Hoover, president of the District Bar Association, represented Mr. Edelin.

In his petition, Mr. Edelin insisted that Mrs. Wholean is not the adopted daughter and sole heir at law of Mrs. Henderson. The claim was made that the decree of adoption by which Mrs. Wholean became Mrs. Henderson's daughter in December, 1924, was void and that she therefore has no interest in the estate which would be injuriously affected by the probating of the last will.

The direct assertion is made that Mrs. Henderson was of sound mind when she wrote her last will, and that she was not unduly influenced by Jesse S. Shima, her Japanese major domo, to whom she left a $100,000 trust fund and $100,000 outright. The court was told that the only heirs at law are Henry and Frances Arnold, of New York City.

The Battle Creek situation was taken care of by the statement that the will in which it figured was revoked by the last will, and that it therefore has no material interest in the last will that will be affected by allowing it to be probated.

Relatives Sought In Amnesia Case

Police last night were seeking to locate friends or relatives of a man about 35 years old who collapsed yesterday afternoon in the midst of swirling traffic at Fourteenth and F streets northwest. He is apparently suffering from amnesia, and could only tell police that his name is "Kid" Kiltie.

Kiltie—if that is really his name—approached Private Arley Cidwell, of the Traffic Bureau, at his stand in the middle of Fourteenth street and asked the way to the nearest police station. Before Cidwell could answer the man fell to the street. The officer hailed a passing car and took the man to Emergency Hospital, where he remained last night.

The man was dressed in brown suit, black shoes, blue shirt and a faded blue-gray overcoat. All tags and marks of identification had been removed from his clothing, according to police. He wore a Masonic watch charm bearing the initials "J. S. W."

KEECH AND HARTMAN CLASH ON OPERATING COSTS AT CAB PROBE

Heads of Big Companies Urge Meter System Return; Trade Body Joins.

Independent taxi drivers testified before the Public Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon that cost of operating cabs for hire ranges from 2 to 6 cents a mile. This testimony constituted first concrete data offered since the cab rate case was opened in the District Building board room Monday.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning with William F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., as first witness. City Cab Co. officials and other operators also will be heard. It is conjectural as to whether the hearing will be concluded today.

Several clashes between People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech and Harleigh H. Hartman, vice chairman of the commission, marked yesterday's session. Disagreements arose in questioning drivers as to costs of operation.

Keech Favors Low Fares.

The commission has held from the first that many of the zone cab owners and drivers are operating at a loss, while Mr. Keech has contended that a majority are earning comparatively good returns.

The people's counsel and Mr. Hartman did most of the questioning of witnesses, as William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, was engaged at a meeting of the Police and Firemen's Retiring and Relief Board.

Among yesterday's witnesses was John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., who declared that low taxi fares have cut deeply into his company's revenue. He recited that the railway had gone to considerable expense to serve outlying sections of the city and consequently should be protected from ruinous competition.

Big Companies Ask Meters.

William J. Brown, president of the Black & White Taxicab Co., joined the Diamond Cab Co. and the Protex-U Cab Co. in a plea for a return to the meter system. He said that his company was forced to adopt the flat rate fare and that now only 135 of its 500 cabs are being utilized.

John Colpoys, editor of the Trades Unionist, spoke in favor of meter cab operation and declared there are too many cabs on the streets at present. The zone system, he said, tends to encourage dishonesty among drivers.

Mark Lansburg, president of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association, whose letter to the commission inspired the hearing, said that he favored a strict regulation of the taxicab industry, a return to meters and compulsory insurance. His body will support the commission, he said, and the public utilities.

2 Injured When Bus And Private Car Crash

Two persons were injured yesterday afternoon in a collision between a Washington Railway & Electric Co. bus and an automobile at the intersection of Connecticut avenue and Woodley road northwest. The bus was thrown against a tree by the impact of the collision.

Mrs. Maude McWilliams, 73 years old, of 4300 Thirteenth street northeast, was treated at her home for minor injuries received in the crash. She was a passenger in the automobile, driven by John Hannah, 35 years old, of 3205 Twelfth street southeast. Ada Stroman, 32, colored, of 1900 Rosedale street northeast, a passenger on the bus, suffered a cut on her head.

Emergency Treats Man Who Swallowed Poison

A young man caused a mild stir at Emergency Hospital last night when he calmly walked into the emergency room and announced that he had just swallowed two tablets of a high-powered poison.

The man gave his name as Albert Sanford, 28 years old, of 626 Ninth street northwest. He was given prompt treatment and was later released from the hospital.

Phone Call Brings Rum And Police Arrest Man

Malcolm Jones, 28 years old, of 4612 Forty-second street northwest, was charged with illegal possession of liquor, driving without a permit and no registration card last night by three members of the vice squad.

Police said Jones met them at the intersection of Fourteenth and F streets northwest in response to a telephone call and delivered them 3 pints of whisky.

22d Street Light To Be Experiment

Right Turn on Red Will Be Instituted to Speed Traffic.

A right turn on the red light signal at Twenty-second street and Massachusetts avenue northwest as a means of disolving traffic congestion, especially during the morning rush hour, is being contemplated, it was announced yesterday by William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic and motor vehicles.

This new system, which will probably go into effect Friday of this week, will allow the motorist to turn south on Twenty-second street on the red light, and cross Q street, tangent to Massachusetts avenue at this point, without waiting, as the Q street light will be green at the moment the motorist is turning into Twenty-second street. The P street intersection will then be reached on the green light. A temporary sign instructing motorists to this effect will be placed at the Massachusetts avenue intersection.
